PREFACE.

ASHLEY is becoming a not uncommon name in the United States. Besides the descendants of the Ashleys who settled here before the year 1700, many others have arrived since from England, while numbers have crossed over from Canada, some of the latter having merely assumed the name.

To set forth the difficulties encountered in the compilation of this Genealogy, would give no new facts to the genealogist or interest others, so a detailed account of them and the various sources of information made use of is unnecessary. The compiler will say, however, that all statements contained in this Genealogy are the result of personal examination of public records or are based on correspondence with members of the family. The names and dates in the family registers are printed exactly as they appear on record or in the letters received, as the proof sheets were compared with the compiler's original notes and the aforesaid letters. A few typographical errors, the only ones it is hoped, are corrected on page 408.

The facts concerning the earlier generations of the family were collected by the compiler by means of a personal search of the public records; in the later generations he has had to depend for the most part, naturally, on correspondence. Very little, and that for the most part untrustworthy, has appeared in print about Robert Ashley and his descendants. The names and dates obtained by correspondence have not always been distinctly written, and in some instances both names and dates have been given differently in the same letter or in subsequent letters. Again, the dates given in town, church and probate records, or on gravestones, are found frequently to differ from each other and from those which appear in the family record. In such cases the compiler has endeavored to reconcile conflicting dates, and, when that was impossible, has printed the different dates in foot-notes. The compiler has searched the public records diligently for the few dates that are missing in the earlier generations, and his correspondents know how earnestly he has written them to supply even the most trifling details in the history of the later generations. He has made a special, and he thinks a successful, effort to get particulars as to the birth and parentage of the Ashley mothers, and he thinks no other printed family history contains as full an account of its members' services in the colonial wars.

The descendants of Robert Ashley are very numerous. This book is intended to record the history of those in the male line, and that a few families are not carried down to the present generation is not the fault of the compiler, but is to be attributed to the indifference of the members of such families. To have followed out the history of the female lines would have made not only so large a volume that it could not have been sold within the means of most of the family, but would have to have been largely a reprint of genealogies already published or to have anticipated others in preparation.

It will be seen that the pioneer work of the family has been done by the descendants of the oldest son of the Settler, and they have been by far the most numerous and are spread widely over the country. The descendants of the two other sons have lived, with a few exceptions, within a few miles of their birthplaces; those of the second in Windham and Tolland Counties, Conn., and those of the third in Hampden County, Mass. The descendants of the oldest son, himself a settler of Westfield, Mass., have been conspicuous for their enterprise as pioneer settlers—first in the rich valley of the Housatonic at Sheffield ; up that river as far as Pittsfield ; into New Hampshire and Vermont ; over into Northern, Central and Western New York, whither others of the family also emigrated from their Massachusetts birthplaces ; into Western Pennsylvania ; through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin ; across the Mississippi into Missouri, Arkansas and Texas, Minnesota and Dakota ; and Westward over the plains of Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas ; through Colorado and Utah to California, Oregon and Washington ; until, at the present time, the descendants of Robert Ashley are found in nearly every State in the Union.

At all periods of our country's history the Ashleys have been noted for their patriotism. When danger threatened, they have been among the first to take up arms to oppose foreign invasion and suppress domestic treason ; and in all other movements, civil, educational or religious, which laid the foundation of American society, they have done their part well.

The compiler with regret has drawn his labor to a close, thankful that it has been his privilege to gather from the fast crumbling records of the past, and record in this comparatively enduring form the genealogy and history of a family whose ancestors have left a record worthy of imitation by their descendants.

COAT OF ARMS.

The picture of the coat of arms on the opposite page is taken from a painting which has been owned by the Massachusetts branch of the family for over a hundred years. It is the arms of Ashley of Lowesby, County Leicester, England, and is: Argent a lion rampant sable crowned or. The compiler will not put himself on record as the authority for the use of these arms by descendants of Robert Ashley, as he has been unable to prove that the Settler sprung from that family.

As the compiler has spent several hundred dollars more than he can hope to get back from the sale of this Genealogy, and as no member of the family volunteered to share the expense of an exhaustive search of the records in England, investigation in that direction had to be abandoned. At some future time, doubtless, some one will be found who will feel sufficient interest in the subject to visit England, and search out the birth and parentage of Robert Ashley.

ROBERT ASHLEY

OF SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

1. ROBERT ASHLEY first appears on record as a resident of Springfield, Massachusetts, January 13, 1638-9, when there was a rating of £40 agreed upon to meet a portion of the expense of the minister's residence and maintenance. Robert Ashley's disbursement was £1 for the former and 16 shillings for the latter, being the fifth in amount on the list.* This shows that Robert Ashley must have been in Springfield in 1638.

The first participation of Robert Ashley in the allotment of lands on record was on January 5, 1640-1, when "It is ordered that these psons underwritten shall have theyr lotts for y<sup>e</sup> 2d Division of plantinge ground granted them accordinge to y<sup>e</sup> number of acres and order of place as is under neath written. w<sup>ch</sup> is to be measured out by the first of Aprill next, pvided that those y<sup>t</sup> have broaken up ground there shall have allowance for it as 2 indifferent men shall judge equall. Single psons are to have 8 rod in bredth, maryed psons 10 rod in bredth, bigger familys 12 rod, to begin upward at the edge of y<sup>e</sup> hill." [Chestnut Street.] Robert Ashley had lot No. 3, of 8 rods, he being unmarried, situated between Widow Searle and John Dibble.

The next mention of Robert Ashley of importance is on pages 19 and 20 of the records of Mr. Pynchon, which contain the following instrument:

"August 7, 1641. Know all men that whereas there is a marriage shortly intended between the widdow Horton & Robert Ashly, both of Springfield. That the said widdow Horton in the p'sence of Robert Ashly doth assigne & set over her house & house lott containing about

WILLIAM PYNCHON.

An Inventory of the Goods & Cattell of the widow Horton of Springfield this first July 1641 we whose names are under written do value & appraise as followeth :

Imprimis for all her linnen, brasse, pewter, beddinge, vessels & other implements . . . . .	£17. 0. 0.
her hoggs litle & great as they were rated by the appraisers her house & house lot . . . . .	12. 0. 0.

SAMUEL WRIGHT,
SAMUEL HUBBARD.

Robert Ashly was sworne at Springfield this 24 day of ye 10 Month 1641."

Although the marriage of Robert Ashley and the widow Horton is not recorded in the Springfield records, there is little doubt that it was actually consummated, for it is known that he married about 1641, that his wife bore the christian name Mary, and that after 1641 the widow Horton's name disappears from the records. She was the widow of Thomas Horton of Springfield, who had died the previous summer, leaving her with two children, one three years old and the other an infant.*

The home lots of the inhabitants were laid out on the west side of what is now Main Street, extending to the Connecticut River. On the east side of Main Street was the "wet meadow," which was allotted each inhabitant in the same width and just opposite to his home lot, and running 40 rods to the foot of the hill. Adjoining the wet meadow on its eastern end was also given a wood lot 80 rods in length and 8 rods in width. Robert Ashley's home lot was on what is now the northwest corner of Main and State streets and extended down to the river, Francis Ball being his neighbor on the north and John Leonard on the south. His "wet meadow" and "wood lots," just opposite, extended back along State Street to what is now Spring Street. His land in the "planting grounds" was across the Connecticut River, and between it and Agawam River.† On "A rate made the 6th of May, 1644, for the payinge of £20 in part of payment for y<sup>e</sup> Indian purchas of y<sup>e</sup> land of y<sup>e</sup> Plantation," Robert Ashley paid 15s, the fifth in amount. There were but four other inhabitants, Mr. Pynchon, Mr. Holyoke, Mr. Moxon and Henry Smith, who owned more land than Robert Ashley did at this time, and in 1647 he was taxed on 51 acres.

Robert Ashley, like most of the inhabitants, was chiefly occupied with agriculture. His ear mark for his cattle was "in the off ear a slit cut in the under side or back side of the ear (not at y<sup>e</sup> top of y<sup>e</sup> ear), but toward y<sup>e</sup> root of y<sup>e</sup> ear, the slit is but a little slanting outward toward y<sup>e</sup> root of y<sup>e</sup> ear."

River on condition that he should keep the ordinary. He consented to keep it, and was so engaged for several years. Keeping the ordinary or inn in those days was a highly respectable position and was only filled by those who were considered responsible persons.

"January 22, 1651. There is granted to Robert Ashley three acres and half of meddow upon y<sup>e</sup> Mill River begining lowermost on y<sup>e</sup> South-east branch, and so going up to y<sup>e</sup> little brooke and then upward to y<sup>e</sup> 16 Acres, and so over to y<sup>e</sup> North branch at y<sup>e</sup> upper end, and then come downeward, and lastly to y<sup>e</sup> lake or pond. But one acre and half of it is given in relation to his keeping y<sup>e</sup> ordinary, and he is to leave it into y<sup>e</sup> Town's hands whenever he shall cease to keepe y<sup>e</sup> ordinary, and he to enjoy 2 acres, at most but 2 acres and half."*

The keeper of the ordinary was under the supervision of the town's officers and was placed under certain restrictions.

"The copy of an order of restraynt to Robert Ashley and his wife forbiddinge them to sell wine or strong waters to the Indians sent to them the 27 June 1655.

To Robert Ashley and his wife keepers of the ordinary in Springfield :

Whereas it is famously known how the Indians abuse themselves by excessive drinking of strong liquors whereby God is greivously dishonored, and the peace of this Plantation in great danger to be broken :

And whereas you have noe Lycence formally and according to Law to sell eyther wine or stronge waters to English or Indians :

These are therefore to will and require you upon yo<sup>r</sup> perill that you henceforth forbear to sell eyther wine or strong waters to any Indians, though for selling to the English wee would not restrayne you, but doe allow y<sup>e</sup>of :

Springfield June 27, 1655.

This was signed by y<sup>e</sup> commission's of this town."†

Robert Ashley resigned his position of keeper of the ordinary, probably, in the fall of 1660, for on December 31st of that year Samuel Marshfield was appointed to keep it.

"December 31, 1660. Whereas there was one acre of meddow on y<sup>e</sup> Mill River w<sup>ch</sup> Goodman Ashley had in relation to his keeping of y<sup>e</sup> ordinary, and he was to leave it into y<sup>e</sup> Towne's hands whenever he should cease to keepe y<sup>e</sup> ordinary : He having given over y<sup>e</sup> ordinary, and 1 acre of meddow more or less now falling into y<sup>e</sup> Towne's hands, it is ordered that Samuel Marshfield who now keeps y<sup>e</sup> ordinary shall have it."

† Pynchon Records.

By this time, as has been seen, Robert Ashley had become by means of grant and purchase an extensive owner of land on the west side of the Connecticut River in what is now West Springfield. His house lot there had been granted him in February, 1661, "provided that he build and dwell there," and in March he had "liberty to build on his land towards y<sup>e</sup> round hill." He probably built his house on it soon after this, and lived there the remaining twenty years of his life.

Robert Ashley probably placed his house on the hillside to the west of that part of West Springfield now known as Riverdale. Tradition says that all the earliest settlers built their houses along the hill for fear that floods would cover the plain below. This plain stretches about two miles to the north from Meeting-house Hill and was the first part of West Springfield to be cultivated.

Robert Ashley was employed considerably in the public service. He was called frequently to serve as jurymen, his first appearance in the records of the court being on January 2, 1639-40, when he was on the jury that tried Mr. Moxon's slander suit against John Woodcock. He also served as juror at the courts held at Springfield, February 13, 1639-40, and March 1, 1654, and those held in the month of September in the years 1661, 1662, 1664, 1667 and 1670. His life seems to have been given but little to litigation, and the following extracts contain the only mention that has been found of Robert Ashley either as plaintiff or defendant.

"December 24, 1640. It is ordered and voted that whereas Henry Grigory, John Leonard and Robert Ashley have contrary to an order formerly made sold away theyre cannoes, they have therefor liberty granted them to redeme and bringe y<sup>m</sup> into the Plantation agayne untill the 15th of May next, and in case of defect herein they shall be Lyable to the forfeiture y<sup>t</sup> is expressed in the order dated Febr. 14th. 1638." [Cancelled.] This order was that no inhabitant should sell his canoe to outside parties.

On February 15, 1641, Robert Ashley entered a complaint against John Woodcock for not delivering to him a gun for which he had paid twenty-two shillings. The jury found for the plaintiff in the sum of twenty-two shillings and costs, amounting in all to twenty-six shillings.

"In Answere to a Petiti<sup>on</sup> of Robert Ashley of Springfield for Satisfaction for a horse killed by a Neapanett Indian the last yeare: The Commissioners being informed by Mr. Pinchon that the said Indian liveth att

Quabage under the Sachem Annoackamor doth thinke twenty pounds should bee demanded of the said Sachem or the man that killed the horse to bee delivered into the hands of the said Ashley to bee kept by him and disposed of as hee sees cause. Mr. Pinchon is desired to take care that Satisfaction bee demanded, and the ptie secured if there bee oportunitie, which if hee cannot attaine, wee desire the Massachusetts Government to effect the same as they shall see cause.*

On September 27, 1659, Robert Ashley entered a complaint against Richard Fellows "for detayning a sword from him. The sword and damages he reckons at forty shillings." In this action the plaintiff withdrew his charge "promising to pay the costs of the costs."

On September 29, 1663, Robert Ashley and Miles Morgan complain against John Scott, John Riley, William Brooks and William Morgan for violating town orders. On September 25, 1660, Miles Morgan had sued Robert Ashley for wrongfully impounding his swine.

In the transactions of the town Robert Ashley appears rather prominently.

"November 5th, 1650. William Warriner and Robert Ashley chosen overseers of fences for y<sup>e</sup> fields p<sup>r</sup>tayninge to y<sup>e</sup> upper p<sup>t</sup> of the towne from y<sup>e</sup> meeting house upward."

"November 4th, 1651. Robert Ashley and Nathaniel Bliss were chosen surveyors of highways for the year ensuing." He was also chosen to this office the following year and in 1667.

In 1653, at the reorganization of the town by the younger men, Robert Ashley was chosen one of the five selectmen.

"November 1, 1653. At a Town meeting it was concluded to make choise of five Townsmen, viz: George Colton, Robert Ashley, Tho: Cooper, Benja. Cooly and Tho: Stebbins who are to order y<sup>e</sup> prudential affairs of y<sup>e</sup> Town for y<sup>e</sup> year ensuing."

Robert Ashley was relected annually until 1659, and in 1660, 1662 and 1665, being first selectman in 1657. In 1655 he with two of the others refused to serve and they were fined twenty shillings apiece.

Robert Ashley took the oath of fidelity March 23, 1655-6.

On February 7, 1659, Robert Ashley was chosen town constable, and on March 5th of that year sealer of weights and measures, being reelected to the latter office the following year.

In those days the people of the town jointly made arrangement for the grinding of their corn.

"At a Towne Meeting called to settle something about y<sup>e</sup> mill," it was agreed that Mr. Holyoke should grind the corn, "and y<sup>e</sup> Towne designated John Pynchon. George Colton. Robert Ashley, Miles Morgan and Samuel Marshfield to set their hands to y<sup>t</sup> in y<sup>e</sup> behaffe of y<sup>e</sup> Towne, and theire hands being to it, this ingagement is firme to all intents and constructions in Law. According hereunto y<sup>e</sup> Aforementioned persons have hereunto set their hands the 4th day of June 1662.

Elizur Holyoke.

John Pynchon.

Miles O-M Morgan, his marke.

Samuel Marshfield."

The town ordered and appointed Benjamin Parsons, Samuel Marshfield and Robert Ashley, the sealers, "to mak a Tole with true and exact to y<sup>e</sup> twelfth p<sup>t</sup> of y<sup>e</sup> bushell, and to seale it with y<sup>e</sup> Towne's seale."

Public officers were expected to attend strictly to their duties, as will be seen from the following order.

"At a Court held at Springfield Sept. 27, 1664. Robert Ashley and Jonathan Burt were presented for the like offence in not viewing on y<sup>e</sup> East side of y<sup>e</sup> River, being chosen for y<sup>e</sup> work. But Robert Ashley pleaded y<sup>t</sup> he had not warning y<sup>t</sup> he was soe chosen & it beinge not proven y<sup>t</sup> he had warninge, the Selectmen are fined 20s a peece for the use of the Towne accordinge to y<sup>e</sup> law except they can cleare y<sup>m</sup>selves and they did give warninge to y<sup>e</sup> viewers, w<sup>ch</sup> Captain Pynchon is ordered to examine & determine, vizt: whether he had legall warning, and if he fynd Robert Ashley had legall warning y<sup>t</sup>of then the Selectmens fynes are to be remitted & he is to pay as a fine 20s for the use of the County."*

In April, 1665, Robert Ashley and several others were fined for absenting themselves from town meeting.

Four years later Robert Ashley petitioned to be relieved of military training.

"At a Court held March 30, 1669, Robert Ashley of Springfield presenting his desires that by reason of the weakness of his body he may be freed from military exercises: The Court granteth his desires on such terms as the chief officers of that company shall determine."*

The following extract refers to a maid servant in Robert Ashley's service.

"July 29th, 1671, Katharin Hunter (of about 14 y: old) servant to Robert Ashley Deserting from her Master's service unlawfully: once last Tuesday and then coming againe on Thursday and yet goeing away againe on Friday morning to her father and for noe cause y<sup>t</sup> shée can relate herself but only y<sup>t</sup> her dame once only and y<sup>t</sup> some tyme before gave her a blow or 2 with her hand: there being nothing to justifie her in her unlawfull deptime. I [Mr. Pynchon] ordered her to ye house of corection there to abide till I discharged her. And William Hunter her father for harburing his s<sup>d</sup> daughter and not discharging her and sending her to her afores<sup>d</sup> Mr. (none informing). I aco<sup>t</sup> 20s due by law to y<sup>e</sup> County: But respited the sentence till some other tyme."†

Robert Ashley seems to have felt much interest in the welfare of the village church, and, certainly, always paid his proportion of the tax for the maintenance of public worship. As has been seen, the first time his name appears in the Springfield records was in connection with a rating to raise the means for the minister's support, and, when on later occasions it was necessary to raise funds for this purpose, he invariably paid his share of the assessment.

"At a Town Meeting Assembled February 5th, 1651, George Coulton and Robt Ashly were nominated by Mr. Jn<sup>o</sup> Pynchon, and appoynted by y<sup>e</sup> vote of y<sup>e</sup> Inhabitants to gather in y<sup>e</sup> rate y<sup>t</sup> shall be made by y<sup>e</sup> Selectmen for y<sup>e</sup> charge layd out about this floore" [of the meeting-house chamber].

In February, 1653, Robert Ashley received three shillings as payment "for the use of his mare for the use of the church."

The first list of seatings in the meeting-house bears date of December 23, 1659. Robert Ashley sat in the first seat, and was on the seating committee. His two oldest sons sat "below y<sup>e</sup> pillars on y<sup>e</sup> North side." In 1663 he was again one of a committee to distribute the seats in the meeting-house.

† Pynchon Records.

Robert Ashley and his two oldest sons were among the sixty-two inhabitants of Springfield who signed the petition against "a custome imposed on all goods and merchandizes" by an order of the General Court at the October session in 1668.*

Robert Ashley took the oath of allegiance with the other Springfield inhabitants on December 31, 1678.

The foregoing pages contain all the references to Robert Ashley that the compiler could find in the various records. He was obviously a man of energy and ability, and that these qualities were recognized by his fellow townsmen is shown by his election to discharge the duties described. These offices, although not of the highest grade, were regarded as of much greater importance than they have been in later years, and were never bestowed upon any but trustworthy men. His education had not been such as to qualify him for the performance of some important duties in the administration of the affairs of the town. Like many others of the early settlers, who were men of great worth and useful citizens, he did not write his own name, but made his mark whenever his signature was necessary. His mark was something like a Greek Γ. He is called Goodman Ashley in Mr. Pyncheon's account books. He seems to have been industrious, upright and public spirited, and a man of strong religious principles.

Robert Ashley died November 29, 1682 in West Springfield.

Mrs. Mary Ashley died there September 19, 1683.

The age of neither of them is known, nor does any monument mark their graves.

THE WILL OF ROBERT ASHLEY.

" Robert Ashley deceased, his Last Will and Testament together with an Inventory of his estate was presented to this Corte [holden at Northampton March 27, 1683] which will aforesaid was attested to by Mr Holyoke before y<sup>e</sup> Worship<sup>l</sup> Major Pynchon and y<sup>e</sup> Worshipfull Major Pynchon made oath before this Corte as witnesses to s<sup>d</sup> will & it was thereupon approve<sup>d</sup> & confirmed in Corte as y<sup>e</sup> Last Will and Testament of Rob<sup>t</sup> Ashley deceased. Here followeth Coppys of s<sup>l</sup> Rob<sup>t</sup> Ashley's Last Will and of y<sup>e</sup> Inventory of his Estate.

I, Robert Ashley, being aged and of infirme body but yet of sound minde and perfect memory doe now make this my Last Will and Testament.

In the first place I doe comitt my Soul to y<sup>e</sup> care, grace and salvation of one God in three persons, the second person being incarnate, Who by His blood hath purchased it, trusting in His name for all that good of grace and glory He hath bought for His, having hopes only for His own sake and in His alsufficient mercyes, that He will at y<sup>e</sup> Resurrection of y<sup>e</sup> just reunite Soul and Body to enjoy a sinless state with Himself in that house not made with hands which He hath p<sup>r</sup>pared for those who believe in Him. And my Body to such decent buriall as my friends and surviveing relations shall judge meete.

Nextly I doe confirme my deede of gift made to my beloved son Jonathan of lands, uplands, meadows on y<sup>e</sup> East side of Conitticut River all as in that s<sup>d</sup> deede is expressed.

And to my beloved son Joseph I doe give all my lands on y<sup>e</sup> West side of y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> River, that at Chickapy plaine and that over against the town plott on y<sup>e</sup> East side of y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> River, and that below Agawame River, all these on the West side of Conitticut River. Also I doe give unto my son Joseph that lott I have this yeare bought of Major Pynchon, Esq<sup>r</sup>, lyeing and fronting on the lane that leades to y<sup>e</sup> upper wharfe on y<sup>e</sup> East side Conitticut River.

And to my welbeloved son David I doe give five pounds besides what I have given him already.

And to my welbeloved wife Mary I doe give the full thirds of all the lands on both sides y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> River, dureing the terme of her natureall life.

To my grandson John Ashley I doe give a colt.

And to the rest of the children of my beloved son David Ashley I do give ten shillings p<sup>r</sup> child.

And to the children of my beloved son John Root I do give ten shillings a peice.

And for the rest of my estate, all my debts being paid, and in particular that debt for the lot fronting upon the upper wharfe, I do give one third thereof to my well beloved wife during her natural life.

And the other two thirds to my son Joseph and my wife's thirds to Joseph at her decease, he being to pay her five pounds when she dyes, and in case my son Joseph dye without issue then this whole estate bequeathed hereby to my son Joseph I do order and bequeath to my son David and his children.

In witness whereof I do hereunto set my hand and seal this 9th day of October Anno : Dom : 1679.

PART I.

DAVID ASHLEY

OF WESTFIELD, MASS.

2. DAVID ASHLEY (Robert), born 3 June 1642 in Springfield, Mass.; died 8 December 1718 in Westfield, Mass.; married 24 November 1663 in New Haven, Conn., HANNAH GLOVER, daughter of Henry and Helena Glover, born in May 1646 in New Haven; died 7 June 1722 in Westfield.

David Ashley settled in Springfield and lived there the first three years and a half of his married life. In 1661 grants of lands had been made to Captain Pynchon, Robert Ashley and George Colton at the new settlement then being made at Woronoco, now Westfield, and David Ashley eventually had his father's title confirmed to him. On February 8, 1663-4, David Ashley received a thirty acre grant at Woronoco, on condition that he and the other grantees were "to pay the Indians for their purchase within three years and that they go there to dwell." He was one of the original grantees of land on the Fort Side (Main Street) on July 6, 1666. This land was to be settled "in their own persons on the last of May next." He probably removed his family to Westfield in the spring of 1667. He lived near the confluence of Great and Little rivers, and styled himself "yoeman." In March, 1668, a division of territory was made into three parts, and lots cast for it, and David Ashley's lands fell in the first division. In March, 1669, Sacketts creek was granted to Joseph Whiting and David Ashley "to set a mill thereon and grind corn."

At a county court held at Springfield September 27, 1670, Walter Lee brought an action against David Ashley "for taking away from him 10 shock of his wheat last year and a load of Indian corn this year off the ground which he had plowed and sowed." This must have been a mistake on Mr. Ashley's part, as the parties agreed before the jury brought in their verdict.

In the fall of 1671 Mr. Edward Taylor, recently graduated at Harvard College, was invited by the inhabitants of Westfield to come there and preach to them. He says in his diary, "This being the 2d [1st?] of December, we came to Westfield. . . . We went to Mr. Whiting's. There the men of the town came to welcome me, and after supper I went to Goodman Ashley's, where I was till Mr. Whiting had got his house ready that I might be with him."*

David Ashley was one of a committee of three appointed to convey to the government at Boston the protest of the town against a letter dated March 20, 1676, advising that the town of Westfield be abandoned and the inhabitants retreat to Springfield for protection against the Indians, as the cost of maintaining the scattered settlements along the Connecticut River was considered too much. This was during King Philip's War.

On September 6, 1685, the town granted to David Ashley, Thomas Noble, Isaac Phelps and Nathaniel Weller liberty to erect a sawmill "on the brook on the northeast side of the river."

"At a town meeting held November the 18, 1696, it is voted y<sup>t</sup> Left Samuel Root, Nathaniel Baneroff, Adijah Dewey and David Ashley should be as a commitey to prise all lands in Westfield, and stock all y<sup>t</sup> is above one year old, and y<sup>t</sup> all heads should bee apprised at ten pound p<sup>r</sup> head to defray town charges."

On June 9, 1712, towards the close of Queen Anne's War, the town voted to "fort" certain houses, and David Ashley's was one of those selected to be "forted."

David Ashley was prominent in the management of Westfield affairs and held a number of responsible offices. He served as a juror in 1665; he was elected a selectman in 1676, 1677, 1679 to 1685, 1694 and 1699; Clerk of the Writs in 1678, 1686 and 1690; and Treasurer of the town in 1694. He performed the duties of all these and other less important offices in a manner satisfactory to the town and creditable to himself, and was highly respected. He united with the Westfield church January 1, 1679-80, five months after its organization, and took the freeman's oath at a court held at Springfield on September 28, 1680.*

The gravestones of David Ashley and his wife are among the oldest in the old Westfield cemetery. They are short irregular slabs of native stone, and are so weather-beaten that they were deciphered with difficulty as follows:

* Administration was granted on the estate of David Ashley 10 March 1718-19 to his widow Hannah. [Hampsh. Co. Prob. Rec., vol. 4, p. 13.] The inventory was taken 6 January 1718-9 and amounted to £270: 7<sup>s</sup>: 6<sup>d</sup>. It included: "home and homestead, £96"; "lot in ye Fort Meadow, £43"; "4 acre pasture in ye Plain, £16"; "16 acres of plowing land, £35"; "50 acres at Four Mile Brook, £5"; "16 acres at Munn's Meadow, £2"; "5 acres in the 100 Acre Swamp and 6 acres at ye Pine Hill, 5<sup>s</sup>"; and cows, swine, household furniture and wearing apparel. [Ditto, p. 23.]

The settlement of his estate was to the widow Hannah, the nine living children, and James, the only child of his son Joseph deceased. [Ditto, p. 24.]

† The first five children are recorded both in Springfield and Westfield, but from the fact that the third, fourth and fifth are recorded at the same time in Springfield, and as their father was then living in Westfield, there is no doubt that all but the two oldest were born in the latter place.

3. SAMUEL ASHLEY (David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 26 October 1664 in Springfield, Mass.; died 1722 in Westfield, Mass.; married 27 April 1686 in Hadley, Mass., SARAH KELLOGG,* daughter of Lieut. Joseph and Joanna Kellogg, born 27 August 1666 in Hadley; died 30 January 1729 in Westfield.

Samuel Ashley settled in Westfield. He was a carpenter by trade, but naturally was engaged to a large extent in farming. He also kept the inn at Westfield for a number of years. He was a considerable land owner, and had a quarter interest in a gristmill at Two Mile Brook in company with his brother Dea. David Ashley and Lieut. James Dewey.

"At a Meeting of the Governor and Council held at Hartford February 21st, 17<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>: Upon the consideration of two letters from Major Myndert Schuyler of Albany, dated Dec. 6th and 14th, giving an account of five of our horses which he sent by Mr. Samuel Ashley of Westfield (which were delivered by said Ashley to Major Talcott), with the charge he had been at upon them, amounting to three pounds, six shillings and six pence, and of one sorrel horse which he still hath in his custody and would buy; as also of more horses belonging to this colony, which are still in the neighborhood of Albany.

And whereas Mr. Samuel Ashley designs speedily to go to Albany, it is agreed that the Gov<sup>r</sup> give him power to demand, receive and make Sale for the use of this Colony of any horses belonging to this Colony, which he can come at there, with instructions that if he judges it most for the advantage of the Colony to bring them down, rather than sell them, that he bring them accordingly, with such other directions as may be proper." †

During Queen Anne's War, June 9, 1712, it was decided "to fort" three houses in the town as a protection against the Indians, and Samuel Ashley's house was one of those selected "to be fortified."

In 1719 he sold to his brother David half the homelot which had belonged to their father. His name appears either as grantor or grantee in a large number of deeds of land during his residence in Westfield.

Samuel Ashley was conspicuous in the management of town affairs and his name is to be seen in the records in various connections. He was elected tythingman in 1697, 1698 and 1703. On November 1, 1700, he was chosen with his brother Deacon David and two others a committee to build the schoolhouse. He was elected a selectman in 1703, 1704 and 1720. In 1709 he was elected town constable, but refused to serve. On March 8, 1713-4, he was appointed one of a committee of three to settle the bounds between Westfield and Springfield. He united with the Westfield church April 15, 1714, and was very active in its interests. He was appointed on the committee to build a new meeting-house in 1719, and, after its completion, was chosen a member of the seating committee in October, 1721. He continued to be interested in the welfare of the church up to his death, and his services were considered worthy of a special vote of the town after his death, which was presented to his widow.*

DAVID ASHLEY (David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 10 March 1666-7 in Springfield, Mass.; died 7 August 1744 in Westfield, Mass.; married 11 July 1688 in Westfield, MARY DEWEY,* daughter of Cornet Thomas and Constant (Hawes) Dewey, and sister of the wife of his brother Joseph, born 28 January 1667-8 in Northampton, Mass.; died 13 December 1757 in Westfield.

David Ashley settled in Westfield. He lived on the south side of Main Street, buying of his brother Samuel in 1719 one-half of their father's homelot. He was a cooper by trade, but in one deed (of 1728) he is styled "clothier."+

"November 17, 1697, granted to Thomas Root, Lieut. Root, Nathaniel Bancroft and David Ashley, Jr., liberty to set up a gristmill on the west side, at the place called the half mile fall, o'r on the little river, where they shall see cause, between the up'r end of the field and Mun's widow." David Ashley was later associated with his brother Samuel and Lieut. James Dewey in the ownership of a gristmill on Two Mile Brook, and eventually appears to have bought out his partners' interests.

"May 8, 1716, Deken David Ashley had liberty by a vote of the Town to set up his Tainter hooks in highway near his own hows provided he takes care that it doth not damnifi creturs going upon the comons by ensnaring of them in the back-side of the frame."

David Ashley became one of the leading men of Westfield. He was elected a selectman in 1712 and 1713; constable in 1707 and 1723; and in 1709 sealer of weights and measures, ganger and packer, which latter office he performed in such a satisfactory manner that he was reelected to it annually until his death. He was chosen with his brother Samuel and two others a committee to build a new schoolhouse on November

1, 1700, and was also a member of the school committee on several other occasions. But it was in matters relating to the welfare and management of the Westfield church that his opinion and services were most in demand. He united with the church on February 3, 1710. The following year he was made a deacon, and faithfully performed the duties of that office until his resignation in 1730. His wife, Mrs. Mary Ashley, united with the church August 4, 1697.

Difficulties arose with respect to the location of the new meeting-house, and on November 17, 1719, the town appointed a committee to locate the house and "made choice of Dea. Thomas Noble, Dea. David Ashley and John Shepard to accompany the Comitey to enform and to enlighten them in respect to the surcumstances of the Town." Having fixed upon a site, it was voted to raise the meeting-house on Wednesday, June 8th, "at two hours by the sun in the morning." Every man in town of seventeen years and upward was to assist at the raising and the subsequent work, or pay a fine of three shillings a day for his absence, unless he had a good excuse. The committee had "liberty to prepare four or five barrels of bier" for the refreshment of the workers. It was voted that Deacon Ashley and two others should "go and desire Mr. Taylor to come to the place of raising the meeting-house, then and there at the time appointed to seek to God for his gnide and protection in the work of raising." On October 11, 1721, the town chose Capt. John Ashley, Deacon Ashley and two others "to go and treat with Mr. Taylor concerning his removing to the new meeting-house to attend the worship of God there." "March 8, 1725, David Ashley for going to North Haven 5 s." He had been appointed to wait on Rev. Isaac Stiles* there in regard to the ministry. On May 26, 1726, Deacon Ashley was chosen one of a committee of three "to ask Mr. Taylor if he be willing to lay down preaching."

Deacon Ashley thus led an active life in Westfield and seems to have been entrusted with much important town business. He was highly respected and was noted for his piety.†

He married, 2d, 20 January 1708-9 in Westfield, Mrs. MARY (WHITING) SHELDON, widow of Joseph Sheldon, Esq., a prominent citizen of Suffield, who had died the previous July while attending the General Court at Boston, and daughter of the Hon. still a young man. His name is to be seen frequently in the records* in various connections.

On May 10, 1714, the town "voted to give John Ashley 0-3-6 pr day for serving y<sup>e</sup> town as a representative. Y<sup>e</sup> town granted to John Ashley twenty acres of land on y<sup>e</sup> north side of y<sup>e</sup> river above Pochasicke farm where land is not laid out, also at y<sup>e</sup> land that has been laid out to him on such land as he has bought that lys within y<sup>e</sup> tract of land last granted to y<sup>e</sup> town, those grants were granted to John Ashley on y<sup>e</sup> account of his serving y<sup>e</sup> town as a representative y<sup>e</sup> year past."

John Ashley, then, was thus early representing Westfield in the General Court. He was appointed that year (1714) one of a committee of three from Westfield to meet with a similar committee from Northampton and "settle the bounds between the two towns." In 1716 he was on a committee of three "to provide a town schoolmaster and look after the school land." The following year he was chosen one of the committee "to agree on a place for a meeting-house."

The questions arising about the location of the new meeting-house were numerous, and it was several years before it was finally completed and ready for occupancy, but Captain Ashley continued to serve on the building committee until its completion, and then was chosen a member of the seating committee for the new edifice.

"At a town meeting held October 31, 1718," Captain Ashley was chosen one of a committee of three "to go and treat with John Gunn, Sen., and with y<sup>e</sup> Widow Noble concerning a place to set a new meeting-house and the terms thereof, and to bring report thereat unto the Town at the next meeting."

"October 11, 1721, Captain John Ashley, Deacon Ashley and two others were chosen "to go and treat with Mr. Taylor concerning his removing to the new meeting-house to attend the worship of God there." On January 9th, following, Captain Ashley was chosen "to go and discourse with Mr. Taylor concerning giving a minister a call."†

In December, 1722, Captain Ashley was one of a committee chosen "to dignifie the seats in the meeting-house, which dignification the townsmen confirmed by a voat."

* Captain Ashley presented the town with the "new" book for recording the births, marriages and deaths, with the understanding that the town should be at the expense of copying the previous vital statistics into it.

† Mr. Taylor was becoming infirm from age.

As early as 1722 plans were being made for settlements in the Housatonic Valley, and on January 30, 1722-3, one hundred and seventy-six inhabitants of Hampshire County petitioned the General Court for "a certain Tract of land lying upon Housatonack River, alias Westonock, in order for the settling two towns there." This petition was granted, and the townships were ordered to contain seven miles square each. Col. John Stoddard and Capt. Henry Dwight of Northampton, Capt. Luke Hitchcock of Springfield, Capt. John Ashley of Westfield, Capt. Samuel Porter of Hadley and Capt. Ebenezer Pomeroy of Northampton were appointed a committee for dividing the tract, granting lots, admitting settlers, and reserving certain lands for the use of the first ministers and the support of the schools and gospel. The committee met at Springfield in January, 1724, and received the names of fifty-five settlers.

On April 25, 1724, Chief Conkepot and twenty other Indians, "all of Housatonack, alias Westonock, in New England, in y<sup>e</sup> province of the Massachusetts Bay: for & in consideration of a valuable sum well secured by bond, viz.:—Four Hundred and Sixty Pounds—Three Barrels of Sider & thirty quarts of Rum: bearing date with these Presents, under y<sup>e</sup> hand & seal of Capt. John Ashley of Westfield in y<sup>e</sup> County of Hampshire: . . . convey & confirm unto Col. John Stoddard, Capt. John Ashley, Capt. Henry Dwight & Capt. Luke Hitchcock, Esqrs., all in the County of Hampshire, Committee, appointed by y<sup>e</sup> General Court," the aforesaid tract of land.*

This deed was acknowledged before Capt. John Ashley, Justice of the Peace, and the tract of land embraced the present towns of Sheffield and Great Barrington and the towns west of them in Berkshire County. Captain Ashley and Captain Pomeroy, members of the committee, soon after divided the lower township into lots for the settlers, who presently began to arrive and plant themselves on the river bank in the present town of Sheffield.

It will be remembered that at this time the Indian conflict, known as Father Rasc's War, was in progress, and Captain Ashley was much occupied with military affairs in relation to it. That he was a prominent figure in the county's forces will be seen from the following extract.

* See "N.-E. Hist. and Geneal. Reg.," vol. 8, p. 215-6, for the deed in full.

"April 19, 1725, Capt. John Ashley writes from Westfield, asking for six or eight men to guard the workmen in the fields. He says, 'We have no news from our Gent<sup>l<sup>m</sup></sup> that are gone to Canada, neither from Capt. Wells,* neither from Albany, but only a gent sends to us to be careful as he expected the Indenss would be revenged on us for the Inden wee kiled of thars at my farme.' The news as to the expected invasion was received by Capt. Ashley in a letter from Albany by Philip Schuyler who had dispatches from the commissioners in Canada. A meeting of the military officers was held at Hatfield, and a post sent Governor Dummer with Captain Ashley's letter and the dispatch from Canada."†

To return to affairs on the Housatonic. In June, 1733, Captain Ashley and Captain Pomeroy were appointed by the General Court a committee to advance the settlement in the lower and upper townships. That year Sheffield was incorporated and the first town meeting held. At a town meeting held in Sheffield March 27, 1734, it was "voted to allow Nathaniel Austin three shillings for employing Captain John Ashley to set this place off for a town."

On January 15, 1735, Captain Ashley, then a member of the General Court, was appointed one of a committee of five to establish the four grants of the towns of Tyringham, New Marlborough, Sandisfield and Becket.‡ He was that day summoned by the Indians of Stockbridge "to come as their friend."§

Enough has been said to show how valuable a man Captain Ashley was to his town, county and state. He was elected a justice of the peace on June 15, 1716, and Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Hampshire County on January 9, 1722-3, both of which offices he filled many years. He was a representative from Westfield to the General Court for many sessions, and was elected a member of the Quorum on January 2, 1753. While performing the duties imposed on him by these responsible positions, he did not neglect local affairs, and at various times held in succession most of the important offices of the town of Westfield. He was a member of a large number of committees appointed at different times, either to take charge of civil or military affairs, or treat with the Indians, and among the latter may be mentioned his appointment to treat with the Mohawks in 1752.

John Ashley was known as "Captain" and "Squire" Ashley, and the word "Gentleman" was always added to his name in formal documents. He was an extensive land owner in Westfield and the other Massachusetts towns in which he was interested, and also owned land in Suffield and Enfield, Conn. He resided all his life in Westfield, and died there at the age of nearly ninety years, having outlived most of his near relations and all of his immediate family, except his son John of Sheffield.

Capt. John Ashley was admitted to full communion in the Westfield church on April 14, 1728, and his pastor, Rev. John Ballantine, writes in his diary under the date April 18, 1759, "Attended Captain Ashley's funeral. He had outlived y<sup>e</sup> expectations and even desires of most of his relations. He was forgotten as one y<sup>t</sup> had been long dead. Considering y<sup>e</sup> numbers of his relations* and y<sup>e</sup> offices he had sustained, very few attended his funeral."

Captain Ashley left no will, and no account of any distribution of his property is on record at Northampton. The grave-stones of himself and his wife Mary are in the old cemetery in Westfield. They are of red sandstone, sound and clear, and are inscribed as follows:

10. Lieut. EZEKIEL ASHLEY (Samuel<sup>2</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>2</sup>), born 27 April 1701 in Westfield, Mass.; died on the Louisburg Expedition; married 5 November 1724 in Westfield, HANNAH GRISWOLD,§ daughter of ? Samuel and Susannah (Huntington) Griswold, born 30 April 1699 in Windsor, Conn. She married, 2d, ——— Wright and was living in Norwich, Conn., in 1769.||

Ezekiel Ashley with his brothers Daniel and Aaron was among the first proprietors of the present town of Sheffield, Mass., and probably removed his family there in 1728. He and John Pell surveyed and located the "old ore hill" in Salisbury, Conn., a tract of one hundred acres which was granted in October, 1731. In May, 1734, he, his uncle Capt. John Ashley (5) and others petitioned for a grant of one hundred acres of land lying west of the Housatonic River near a large pond known to the Indians by the name of Wonokopoko Pond. He also had an interest in the forge, iron works and water privileges in Sheffield. He styles himself "husbandman" and "gentleman" in deeds drawn about this time.

Ezekiel Ashley took a prominent part in the management of town affairs in Sheffield. He was chosen one of a committee of three on June 7, 1734, to interview Rev. Mr. Devotion in regard to his settling in the ministry in Sheffield. At a town meeting held March 17, 1734-5, he was chosen moderator, and again at the annual meetings held in 1736, 1737 and 1738. At a town meeting held April 5, 1737, "Nathaniel Austin, Ezekiel Ashley and Daniel Kellogg were chosen a committee to represent the town to the late committee chosen to survey the town of Sheffield over again." At that meeting it was also "voted that Ezekiel Ashley shall build a good sufficient grist mill for the town use . . . to be built on the Iron Work River, a little above the iron works." August 7, 1738, "Ezekiel Ashley, Daniel Kellogg and Nathaniel Downing were chosen a committee to designate the seats in the meeting house and with Moses Ingersoll were chosen seaters in the meeting house." Ezekiel Ashley was also elected a selectman of the town in 1736 and 1738. In the winter of 1740 he calls himself "of Brookfield, Mass." He returned to Westfield the following year, and soon after removed with his family to Hartford, Conn.

Ezekiel Ashley had always taken interest in the military affairs of the several communities where he resided. Before his marriage he had served as trumpeter of Capt. Adijah Dewey's company of Westfield troopers from September 3 to September 25, 1723.* While he was residing in Hartford, preparations began for the expedition against Cape Breton, and he volunteered his services to the Connecticut colony, which were accepted and "This Assembly do appoint Mr. Ezekiel Ashley to be Lieutenant of one [of] the military companies of recruits ordered by this Assembly to be raised for the Expedition against Cape Breton."† "This Assembly orders that Ezekiel Ashley be appointed to be one of the lieutenants belonging to Capt. Adonijah Fitch's Company."‡

Lieutenant Ashley's commission was dated May 30, 1745. Whether he actually took part in the battle in which the undisciplined militia of New England seized Louisburg from the veteran troops of France the records do not state, but it is probable that he died while on service in the army.§

† Rev. John Ballantine spent several days with his daughter Mrs. Mary Ashley (wife of No. 18) in Sheffield in 1770, and speaks in his diary of visiting among others "Aaron Ashley." Eldad Taylor in his will (dated 1777) mentions "my daughter Mehitabel Ashley wife of Aaron Ashley." "Widow Mehitabel Ashley" united with Westfield Church on Aug. 4, 1783. It is evident, therefore, that Aaron Ashley died between 1777 and 1783.

‡ And married before October, 1728.

§ His will, dated 23 Mar. 1733, proved 20 May 1741, mentions his daughter Bethia. [Hampsh. Co. Prob. Rec., vol. 6, p. 112.]

|| As he forbade the banns on Sept. 8th, it may have been some time before the ceremony took place, and the date has not been found. He mentions her and her two oldest children, however, in his will, dated 7 Jan. 1746-7, proved 9 Jan. 1753. [Hampsh. Co. Prob. Rec., vol. 8, p. 15.]

** Hon. George Sheldon, the well known genealogical authority, agrees with the compiler in crediting Aaron Ashley (No. 11) with this third marriage. It will be noticed (see register of his children) there are recorded to him two daughters named Bethia. As the first did not die until 1808, it seems strange that he should have given the same name to another child, although there was a difference of thirty-two years in their ages. The compiler would have liked to have found that it was a son of the same name who consummated the third marriage, but a persistent search has failed to discover any other children than those hereafter given. There is no mention of Aaron Ashley's estate in either the Hampshire or Berkshire Probate Records.

Aaron Ashley first comes into notice as a soldier in Father Rasle's War (1722-26). He served from May 13 to October 25, 1725, in Capt. John Ashley's company, "guarding Westfield" against an attack by the Indians.* He was also a soldier in Capt. Samuel Barnard's company during the war.†

For a year or two after his first marriage he lived probably in Westfield, for his wife united with the church there in October, 1728. He removed before the summer of 1732 to the new settlement on the Housatonic River, now the town of Sheffield, of which with his brothers Daniel and Ezekiel he was an original proprietor. He also owned land in Great Barrington. He styled himself "husbandman."

Aaron Ashley appears to have taken interest in town affairs in Sheffield. He was chosen town constable in 1734, and held a few other minor offices. He continued to be a resident of Sheffield the greater part of his life.

On March 10, 1740-1, he sold for £150 to Benjamin Day of West Springfield "465 acres of land in the First or lower division of Sheffield, part of which I formerly dwelt on." In this deed he calls himself "of Branford, Connecticut."‡ It is unlikely, however, that he removed his family there, and he calls himself "of Sheffield" again on July 27, 1742. On August 5, 1742, he repurchased his old farm of Day, paying but £37-10<sup>s</sup> for it.

From 1745 to 1748 he lived in Westfield, and is spoken of as Ensign Aaron Ashley. He enlisted from there as a soldier in King George's War, and served from November 16, 1747, to January 12, 1747-8, in Capt. William Lyman's company at Fort Massachusetts, part of the time acting as sentinel.§

In 1755 he had returned again to Sheffield. The French and Indian War had begun, and he was made sergeant of Capt. Elisha Noble's company in the South Hampshire Regiment, raised for the Crown Point expedition, and served from September 12 to December 6, 1755.|| He reënlisted March

30, 1756, in Capt. John Burk's company, Col. Joseph Dwight's regiment, for the Crown Point expedition, and served thirty weeks and traveled fifty miles. The roll is dated October 11, 1756, in camp at Fort William Henry, and mention is made that "Aaron Ashley was left sick at the Flatts." He was discharged October 25th, according to the rolls of that company,* but is reported as serving until November 5th in Capt. John Fellow's company.† His name is in "a list of the men that went out of the First Foot Company in Sheffield to Fort Edward on the Alarm in the year 1757 for the relief of Fort William Henry, the number of miles each traveled and the number of days each lay at Fort Edward, with one day in the same column to provide for their march before they set out and also the sum allowed for a horse each day while in camp, etc." . . . . . "Aaron Ashley, 204 miles at  $2/8$  each 15 miles,  $36/$ ; 9 days at  $2/8$ ,  $24/6$ ; 8 days,  $5/4$ ; sum total £3 : 5<sup>s</sup> : 4<sup>d</sup>."‡

In the spring of the following year, 1758, he was living in Westfield again, but continued to serve in the army. "A Billiting Roll of Capt. Jonathan Ball's company in Col. William Williams' regiment made up at Northampton: Aaron Ashley of Westfield enlisted April 14, 1758, received King's allowance May 31, 1758, 47 days at 6<sup>d</sup> per day."§ In the "Muster Roll of Capt. Jonathan Ball of Granville in the Expedition to Canada: Aaron Ashley enlisted April 14, 1758, discharged November 3, 1758, received £13 : 2<sup>s</sup> : 4<sup>d</sup>."|| He reënlisted from Westfield on April 6, 1759, in Capt. John Baneroff's company, Brig.-Gen. Timothy Ruggles, and served until December 1, 1759, "in the late expedition to Crown Point, and received £15 : 8<sup>s</sup> : 7<sup>d</sup>."***

His service in this campaign seems to have been the last military duty performed by Aaron Ashley. In the following year, 1760, and up to the time of his third marriage, he was living in Sheffield. After his marriage he seems to have lived §§ Received into the church in Westfield Feb. 27, 1737-8.

Joseph Ashley was graduated at Yale College in 1730. He studied theology and settled in what was then called Arlington,* but afterwards became the town of Winchester, in the southwestern part of New Hampshire, and was ordained first pastor of the church there on November 24, 1736. "He was given £150 towards his settlement, and was to receive a salary of £130 and the ministerial right in land. The generosity of this salary is noticeable, for the governor of the Province received but £100 and the minister at Portsmouth, then the largest and wealthiest settlement, the same as Mr. Ashley."† Mr. Ashley was also interested in the grant of the town of Putney.

The settlement at Winchester was broken up by the Indians in 1746, and Mr. Ashley was regularly dismissed in April, 1747, and on November 10th was installed pastor of the Congregational church in Sunderland, Mass. His Tory sentiments caused difficulty between him and his congregation, and in December, 1784, by advice of an ecclesiastical council, he desisted from the exercise of his pastoral office. He was not dismissed, however, though another pastor was settled in 1792 and dismissed in 1793, but continued in office as "pastor emeritus" until his death.‡

Mr. Ashley's position in religious controversies was similar to that of his cousin Rev. Jonathan Ashley. He was one of the majority on the council which dismissed Jonathan Edwards, and one of the joint authors of "An Account of the Conduct" of that council, published in a pamphlet of eight pages.§

The house in which Parson Ashley lived in Sunderland was built for a parsonage in 1717. It stands next south of the site of the first meeting-house, erected in 1717, and next north of the present church. The "minister's lot" where Parson Ashley lived is on the southwest corner of the main street and the road leading west to the bridge over the Connecticut River. The house is the oldest one in the town and is still in a good state of preservation. The "study," just back of the

It is said that the windows were thus arranged so that the minister's thoughts would not be distracted by the outside world while writing his sermons. There is a cupboard in the room which is said to have been made for the minister's wines.* It was not used as a parsonage by any minister after Mr. Ashley, and at his death came into possession of his son Gideon. No record of the settlement of the estate of Rev. Joseph Ashley has been found.

He served in his father-in-law's company of troopers from September 3 to September 25, 1723 (Father Rasle's War).§ He, probably, rather than his son of the same name, was the David Ashley who was impressed with thirteen other men to make up a deficiency in Capt. man in 1731, and to several town offices, such as surveyor of highways, sealer of weights, etc. He styled himself "husbandman." He was a soldier in the French and Indian War as appears by the following extracts :

"The Province of Massachusetts Bay Dr. for soldiers upon a Larrum to New London when the cattel was killed, by order of Ajutant Mather in the year 1742 : Moses Ashley, one day each man and a horse, 22 days at 2/6 pr day. Westfield February 4, 1747-8."*

"For going to Deerfield upon a Larrum under Col. Stoddard with a week's provision for man and horse to go to Hoosuck May 27 and 28, days when Hoosack was rebuilding and was sacked by the Eneme. Moses Ashley, corporal. . . . The fore particular accounts on this sheet have been examined from our former minutes from which our former accounts was made which was burned in the town house of Boston February 25, 1747."†

Moses Ashley was interested in the development of the new towns in the Housatonic Valley, and on April 5, 1768, he sold lot No. 25, 100 acres, in the town of Lenox to John Hewitt of Norwich, Conn. He removed to Hartwood, now Washington, Mass., on March 31, 1772.* On April 30, 1772, he sold land in Westfield given him by the will of his brother Thomas. He continued to reside in Washington the remainder of his life.

A little over a mile northeast of Washington center is Ashley Lake, a beautiful natural reservoir of pure water, now owned by the Pittsfield Water Company and the main source of supply for that city. Moses Ashley lived near this lake, which was included in his farm, and this doubtless gave it its name.

The gravestones of Moses Ashley and his wife are badly broken, and were found and deciphered with some difficulty.

16. DR. ISRAEL ASHLEY (David,<sup>4</sup> David,<sup>2</sup> Robert'), born 14 October 1710 in Westfield, Mass.; died 2 August 1758 in Stillwater, N. Y.; married 20 November 1735 in Westfield, MARGARET MOSELEY, daughter of Quartermaster John and Hannah (——) Moseley, born 2 June 1714 in Westfield; died 25 July 1791 in Westfield.

Israel Ashley was graduated at Yale College in 1730, and became a physician in his native town. At a town meeting held in Westfield May 11, 1732, "Mr. Israel Ashley agreed to keep the school from Monday the 15th for five months." On March 12, 1733, he was elected treasurer of the town, and held that office until his death, a period of twenty-two years. He was elected a selectman in 1747, a justice of the peace for Hampshire County in 1755, and a deacon of the Congregational Church in 1746;‡ all of which offices he continued to hold until his death. He also served on the school committee and was otherwise prominent in town affairs. His general standing may be inferred from the regard of Jonathan Edwards, who speaks of him, in 1751, as "A very serious, pious man, and very active and discerning in the management of affairs."§

Doctor Ashley lived on the Ashley homestead on the south side of Main Street. In 1747, when it was decided "to fort" the town of Westfield, his house was selected "to make a fort round." The following particulars of Doctor Ashley's military service are to be found in the Massachusetts Archives.

"Petition of Israel Ashley of Westfield, October 10, 1750. He had a negro man, Pompey, enlisted for the Canada Expedition under Mr. McClanachan in the company of Captain Clapham which went to Annapolis and Minas. He was captured and carried to Quebec, where he now is."*

ISRAEL ASHLEY (Capt.)"†

"December 26, 1754. This Memorial Humbly sheweth Israel Ashley, of Westfield, that when Captain Cotton and he were about returning home with the Companies under their Command were ordered to Stockbridge and adjacent Places (in the late Alarm there) by the Colonel of the Regiment. The considering the Distressed Circumstances of Sixteen or Eighteen men, some of them belonging to Connecticut for the Protection of the People for one month under the care of Colonel Dwight. That in Consequence thereof thirteen men being promised to their pay by particular gentlemen in Case this Government should decline to pay them for their service engaged therein and faithfully did the Duty of Soldiers there the most of them for the whole time aforesaid, in watching, warding and Scouting, Wherefore the said Ashley humbly prays that the said Service may be considered as the proper service of this Government and allowance made, as in Duty bound shall ever Pray, ISRAEL ASHLEY."‡

"February 18, 1755. Israel Ashley Humbly sheweth that upon the last sitting of the Court the account of Charles Goodrich and Abner Dewey of Pontasick of Expences and Entertaining the Company forces when they came to relieve them and their Neighbors in their Distress by Circumstances by reason of the Great Allarm at Stockbridge were then Exhibited but no allowance made to Discharge the same.

17. Major NOAH ASHLEY (John<sup>b</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 15 June 1704 in Westfield, Mass.; killed in battle 8 September 1755 near Lake George; married, 1st, in June 1732 in Hatfield, Mass., DOROTHY DWIGHT, daughter of Capt. Henry and Lydia (Hawley) Dwight, born 17 September 1709 in Hatfield; died 13 January 1745 in Westfield. He married, 2d, 16 February 1747 in Hadley, Mass., MIRIAM PORTER, daughter of Samuel and Anna (Colton) Porter, born 30 January 1724-5 in Hadley. She published intention of marriage 13 November 1759 in Westfield with Samuel Smith of that town, and died there 7 December 1762.

Noah Ashley passed the first five years of his married life in his native town, of which he was chosen constable in 1737. In 1738 he removed with his family to that part of Brookfield that became Western‡, and is now Warren, in Worcester County, Mass. The first town meeting after the incorporation of the town in January, 1741, was held on March 8th, and Noah Ashley was chosen moderator. In May, 1743, he and three others were chosen a committee to build the meeting-house, which was "to be 45 by 35 feet, and 20 feet and 6 inches from sill to plate." At a town meeting held on March

* He is mentioned in the will of his uncle Thomas Ashley (13) of 1755, but not in that of his father of 1758. [See his father's gravestone.]

† Her birth is not recorded. [See her father's gravestone.]

‡ Weston is given as his residence in deeds drawn about that time, and the return of his second marriage was made to that town by mistake of the town clerk of Hadley.

8, 1741-2, he was chosen moderator and selectman, and was reelected to those offices at each successive annual meeting during his residence in Western, being first selectman in 1748. He was also elected town clerk from 1746, and appears to have been one of the leading citizens of the community.

He returned to Westfield in 1752, and he and his wife were recommended to the church in Westfield from the church in Western in December of that year. He had been received into full communion in the Westfield church on January 10, 1737-8. He was elected a selectman of Westfield in 1752 and 1753. He was also moderator of town meetings and held other town offices, among them those of assessor in 1752 and school committeeman in 1753, when a new schoolhouse was built. He was appointed a justice of the peace for Worcester County in 1753 and for Hampshire County in 1754.

The following anecdote is told of Noah Ashley: "He was returning from work at Pochasuck, and was met by an Indian near the Baueroft house. Both drew up their guns, but Ashley fired first and the Indian fled. He was tracked by blood through the brush to a place nearby, but was never found. The plain has ever since been called Indian Plain."*

"August 26, 1724, a party of the enemy, probably the same that shot Edwards near Northampton the day before, appeared at Westfield. An Englishman was wounded, and one of the assailants, a Scatacook, was killed by Noah Ashley, who received £100 for his scalp."†

"March 9, 1725, Capt. Thomas Wells of Deerfield led a scouting party of sixty-five men out towards the frontiers of Canada. They came back on the Connecticut River in canoes. April 24th, one of these, containing Lient Joseph Clesson, Samuel Harmon, James Porter, Simeon Pomroy, Thomas Alexander and Noah Ashley, was upset in the rapids at the 'French King,' near the mouth of Miller's River, and the three last named were drowned. The others reached land with great difficulty with the loss of all their arms and effects."‡

Major Ashley's military career was as follows :

His name appears on "A Muster Roll of eight soldiers listed by Capt. John Ashley [his father] by order of Col. Samuel Partridge, Esq., which soldiers were improved in guarding the inhabitants of Westfield." He served from May 13 to October 25, 1725.* "Paid Noah Ashley from Westfield to Northampton to Colo. Stoddard (express), 8s." "Paid Noah Ashley for carrying letters to Colo. Stoddard with John Pell, 16s." "Captain Noah Ashley went May, 1748, to Worcester and Lunenburgh."† He was ensign in Capt. Thomas Buckminster's company of forty-eight Brookfield men, August 6 to August 20, 1748, which saw service at Fort Dunmer and the western frontier.‡

A letter from Noah Ashley, dated at Westfield, July 30, 1751, gives,

"The account of what I paid for the charges for the captives that the Honorable Colonel Wendal sent from Albanay to Brookfield. I received them at Westfield by Colonel Wendal's letter, and sent them to the tavern and paid £00,16,00 lawful money, and the next day I sent them to Brookfield with a man and five horses which cost me £12,00,00, and their expenses cost me four pounds, all cost me old tenor £16,00,00, and I paid Mr. Clap £06,00,00, and to seting six of them on horses £01,10,00, the whole of the account £23,10,00, old tenor.

NOAH ASHLEY."§

Major Ashley enlisted March 29, 1755, in Col. Ephraim Williams' regiment.¶ He was present "at a Council of War held at camp at Grate Carrying Place August 22, 1755, by the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Major-General Johnson, Commander in Chief of the Provincial Troops raised in the present Expedition against Crown Point."***

The expedition to Crown Point was under the command of Col. Johnson of the Hampshire County troops. dians and Indians had continued to advance, and on September 8th was within a few miles of Johnson's camp. The latter had sent forward that morning a thousand men and two hundred Mohawks under Col. Ephraim Williams to intercept the enemy who were supposed to be on the point of attacking Fort Edward. The advance of Col. Williams was discovered by Dieskau, who made his plans to ambush him at a point where the path lay through a ravine. The ambushade was successful, although in their subsequent attack on the camp the enemy were worsted and driven off with loss. The fight lasted four hours and was hotly contested on both sides. The Hampshire regiment suffered most severely, forty-six of the regiment being killed and twenty-four wounded. Among the officers slain was Major Noah Ashley, who fell in the ambushade. "There was a pond in the vicinity, behind which the retreating army took refuge, and into which the French threw the bodies of the slain."*

"The Petition of Miriam Ashley, widow of Major Noah Ashley, who administered the estate of her late husband. When my husband was killed in the late expedition near Lake George, being one of the scouts and in the front of the battle, was soon stripped of sundry value things by the Enemy; She begs for an allowance therefore." John Ashley was graduated at Yale College in 1730. His father was one of the chief proprietors of the settlement recently made on the Housatonic River which became the town of Sheffield, and the son took up his residence there soon after his admission to the Hampshire Bar in 1732. He lived in that part of Sheffield which was named Ashley Falls in his honor. He rose to distinction as a lawyer; was an extensive land owner and merchant; and became a man of large wealth. He held the title of large tracts of land in the Housatonic Valley and a farm at "Konkepot," three miles east of the river, which he bought of Abraham Root. He owned saw-mills and gristmills in Sheffield, and rights in the iron ore beds at Salisbury, Conn.

John Ashley early took an active part in the management of town affairs. On May 22, 1735, "Obadiah Noble and Ensign Ashley were made choyce of to Dool out Drink* to the labourers for the raising of the meeting house when it is convenient, and likewise to sell Drink to Strangers or Town people, and also to receive the money. Likewise Ensign Ashley to serve as Pinman." On November 7th Ensign Ashley, Dr. Nathaniel Downing and Nathaniel Austin were chosen to lay the affairs of the town before the General Assembly at Boston.

He was a leading member of the First Congregational Church in Sheffield. He was on the committee to supply the pulpit, and was chosen later to settle the differences between Rev. Jonathan Hubbard and the town and church. He had a right "to build a pew" in 1743, and in November, 1761, was appointed "to designate the seats in the new meeting-house."

John Ashley was elected a selectman of Sheffield in 1740, and held that office nearly continuously until 1783. He also presided as moderator at most of the town meetings held during that period. He also served the town in other capacities, such as surveyor of highways, assessor, school committeeman, overseer of the workhouse, and "agent to appear in court in behalf of the town." He represented the town often in the General Court, was after 1753 a justice of the peace, and was elected one of the sheriffs of Hampshire County in 1755.

John Ashley was early interested in military affairs. He was commissioned Captain of the First Foot Company in the town of Sheffield, and later was promoted Major of the South Hampshire Regiment.* In the French and Indian War he led the troops under his command to the relief of Stockbridge and Pontoosnek (Pittsfield) on the "Great Alarm" in September, 1754,† as appears from the following:

"Memorial of John Ashley, of Sheffield, January 6, 1757.

Major Ashley commanded "the men that went out of the First Foot Company in Sheffield to Fort Edward on the Alarm in the year 1757 for the relief of Fort William Henry.† He rose in the militia to the rank of Colonel of the South Berkshire Regiment.

With Joseph Dwight, Esq., he was a committee to represent the town in the proceedings which lead to the separation of Berkshire as a distinct county in May, 1761, and his wealth enabled him to supply the county with ready money toward the erection of the county buildings. He was elected a member of the Quorum, and appointed Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Berkshire County at its establishment on June 24, 1761. He occupied his seat on the Bench until 1781, with the exception of the period from 1774 to 1779, when the disturbances due to the Revolution caused the suspension of the court.

He acquired an unenviable notoriety, while he represented Sheffield and Great Barrington in the General Court in 1768-69, by voting with sixteen others to rescind a certain circular which had been issued by the General Court on the demand of Governor Bernard. His vote was condemned by the town of Great Barrington, "in town meeting assembled," and the obnoxious seventeen members were branded as "rescindors" and held up to public scorn and contempt. He was reelected, however, the following year.

Colonel Ashley arrayed himself for the popular side in the Revolution, presided at the county convention held at Stock-

He was one of the committee chosen by the town of Sheffield on January 16, 1775, to receive donations for the relief of the towns of Boston and Charlestown, and was also on the Committee of Correspondence the following year. Colonel Ashley continued a firm and consistent Whig throughout the war.

"Among Colonel Ashley's possessions were a number of negro slaves which he seems to have been inclined to retain in bondage after the Declaration of Independence. Hence the noted case of 'Brom and Bet vs. Ashley,' commenced by writ of personal replevin at the August term of the Court of Common Pleas in 1781."*

Colonel Ashley's homestead was on the west bank of the Housatonic River on what is known as the "back road" between Sheffield and Ashley Falls, about a mile north of the post office in the latter village. The house is still in good order, and is now owned and occupied by Mr. George A. Brewer who was obliged to cut down recently some of the trees which shaded its front. Colonel Ashley's warehouse and store were just across the road from his house, but they have long since been torn down.

Colonel Ashley was patriarchal in appearance, of middling size, and domestic habits. He commenced life with a reasonable capital, which he increased by industry and good management. He became a gentleman of great wealth for the time and locality, and left a large estate, including about one thousand acres of finely cultivated land, most of which he had held from its first settlement.*

Colonel Ashley and his wife were buried in the old cemetery in Sheffield center, and their graves are marked by handsome white marble monuments. On that of Colonel Ashley, under a bas-relief representing a weeping willow and funeral urn, appears the following inscription:†

21. REV. JONATHAN ASHLEY (Jonathan<sup>7</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 11 November 1712 in Westfield, Mass.; died 28 August 1780 in Deerfield, Mass.; married — 1736, DOROTHY WILLIAMS, daughter of Rev. William and Christian (Stoddard) Williams, born 20 June 1713 in Hatfield, Mass.; died 20 September 1808 in Deerfield.

Jonathan Ashley was graduated at Yale College in 1730, and studied theology the following year. On January 9, 1731-2, the town of Deerfield, Mass., voted "to invite y<sup>e</sup> Worthy Mr. Jonathan Ashley to preach the Gospel here a few Sabaths," and voted on February 7th to hire him for two months. On April 10th he was chosen minister of the town by a large majority, therein concurring with the church vote.* He accepted, and was ordained second pastor of the Congregational church in Deerfield on November 8, 1732. The ordination sermon was delivered by Rev. William Williams of Hatfield, whose daughter he subsequently married, and was published (Boston, 1733,) with the title "The Work of Ministers and the Duty of Hearers, asserted and enforced."†

France declared war on England on March 15, 1744, and on May 21st the town of Deerfield voted to build "mounts" at certain houses in the town, one of which was Mr. Ashley's. In November Mr. Ashley and Deacon Childs were desired to use their influence with the representatives in the towns below, that they might report the distressed condition of the inhabitants to the General Court and get an allowance for the expense the town had been at in building a garrison to defend itself and neighboring towns. Mr. Ashley considered the distressed condition of the land due to "God's Anger at the sins of the Nation," and urged the repentance of the people. "Unfortunately, Mr. Ashley's character was not a lovable one, and his unpopularity seems to have blinded his flock to a sense of justice towards him. His complaints that he was unfairly treated in the payment of his salary seem well founded."‡

Mr. Ashley was opposed to the great revival of 1740. Being in Boston, he was invited to preach by the Rev. William Cooper, one of the party which favored the great revival. In accepting, he seized the opportunity to preach so as to manifest his strong disapprobation of revival measures, and subsequently published his discourse, against the urgent request of Mr. Cooper. His position in religious controversies was similar to that of his cousin and classmate Rev. Joseph Ashley (12). He was an active antagonist of Jonathan Edwards in the controversy which resulted in the dismissal of the latter from Northampton, and delivered two sermons there February 10, 1750, as an antidote to Mr. Edwards' preaching.*

The following was written by Rev. Jonathan Ashley "To The Reverend Mr. Stephen Williams at Longmeadow, Springfield, in the Expedition against Crown Point."†

Deerfield August 30, 1755.

" March 21, 1758, about fifty Indians came to Morrison's Fort [Coleraine], wounded John Morrison and John Henry, killed several cattle and sheep, and after they had roasted, and fed themselves, came and fired at the fort and went off and lodged within a mile and a half of the fort."*

"Ashley was not satisfied with the conduct of the people on this occasion," writes Mr. Sheldon, "and in his next sermon belabors them heartily. . . . He is indignant that 'no attempt was made to pursue and overtake' the marauders, etc. . . . It would be interesting and instructive to know the comments made by his hearers on this arraignment."† It is to be hoped that it had a salutary effect.

In the Revolutionary War Mr. Ashley favored the side of the British. The following extracts will serve to show how unpopular he must have made himself by the expression of such sentiments.

" July 22, 1774, Parson Ashley had a tea party in defiance of the non-consumption association, and his son carried a pound of tea, which he had procured Fast day of Israel Williams and Son at Hatfield, to the wife of Parson Roger Newton at Greenfield." . . . "The fast appointed for November 3d was observed by religious services here. Mr. Lyman of Hatfield preached in the morning and Rufus Wells of Whately, a Deerfield man, in the afternoon. Parson Ashley would have nothing to do with the affair. As he firmly believed the Lord was on the side of the King, it would only be labor thrown away." . . . "December 11th, Parson Ashley refused to read the proclamation issued by the Congress for a thanksgiving day, but at the request of the people it was read by his son, Esq. Jonathan Ashley.*

“Rev. Jonathan Ashley was settled here for life, and nothing short of an ecclesiastical, as well as civil revolution, could unsettle him. He had prayed publicly for the King for forty years, and continued true to him and his ministers, and he took no pains to conceal his loyalty. He was a strong minded man and his influence was all against the Whigs and their wicked rebellion. The Whigs were desirous of getting rid of him by any means in their power. The town, hoping to freeze him out, in 1774, refused to vote him any salary or fire-wood. At a town meeting December 4, 1774, Article 1 was ‘to see if the Town will reconsider a vote passed December 6, 1762, respecting an addition to ye Rev. Mr. Ashley’s Salary.’ The vote was not to reconsider. The Tories carried the day.”*

“The Tories in Western Massachusetts were few in number, and occupied everywhere a very uncomfortable position. After the opening of hostilities, those who favored the cause of the King, at heart, were very chary in the expression of their sentiments. That there were a few brawlers, is evident, from the petition of the county convention assembled at Northampton in 1777. The clergy, as has already been stated, were almost unanimously in favor of the patriot cause. Among those who were in reality opposed to it were Rev. Mr. Ashley of Deerfield, who had married a relative of Gov. Hutchinson, and Rev. Mr. Newton of Greenfield, over whom Mr. Ashley was supposed to exercise considerable influence. On one occasion these two clergymen made an exchange, and Mr. Ashley was informed by Mr. Newton that he might take the occasion to treat upon the subject of the Revolution, ‘by way of caution to the people.’ Mr. Ashley somewhat enlarged upon the liberty granted him, and seriously offended the congregation. During the intermission of service, at noon, the friends of the patriot cause assembled and talked the matter over. They finally resolved themselves into a meeting, and chose a committee to take measures in relation to the afternoon preaching, which they did by fastening up the meeting house. When Mr. Ashley came to commence the afternoon service, he was met at the door by one of his Deerfield parishioners, who gave him a significant nudge with his elbow. After repeating this form of salutation, Mr. Ashley asked him the reason of the attack, and admonished him that he ‘should not rebuke an elder.’ ‘An elder? an elder?’, replied his tormentor, ‘if you had not said you was an elder, I should have thought you was a poison sumach.’ Mr. Ashley had to retire without entering the church. But this was not the last of the reverend gentleman’s troubles. Returning to his own parish, at Deerfield, he soon after preached a sermon in which he spoke against the patriot cause, and gave his opinion that those Americans who fell at Lexington had met with a fearful doom in the next world. On the following Sabbath, he undertook to enter his pulpit but found it spiked up. After ineffectual attempts to enter, he turned to one of his deacons, and requested him to go and get his hammer, and force for him an entrance. The deacon was a blacksmith, but informed his pastor that he did not work on the Sabbath. At last, an axe was procured and the pulpit entered."*

By the position he took during the war, with other reasons, Mr. Ashley found himself at variance with his people. After they had for some years refused to fulfill their obligations to him, an ecclesiastical council was convened by mutual agreement in May, 1780, to arrange the difference, but adjourned after a session of ten days without arriving at any conclusion. At this time he was ill, and he died three months later, being still pastor of the church. During his ministry in Deerfield he is said to have married four hundred and forty persons.

His immediate successor in the Deerfield pulpit thus wrote of him: "Mr. Ashley possessed a strong and discriminating mind, and a lively imagination, and was a pungent and energetic preacher. He preached the doctrines of grace with a pathos which was the effect, not merely of his assent to the divine authority, but of a deep sense and lively view of their importance and excellency." He is described by other authority as a man of ready talents, excelling in biblical knowledge.†

Rev. Jonathan Ashley, on June 28, 1733, bought of John Wells for £250 the house lot on the west side of Main Street in Deerfield known as No. 2 in the early records of the town, and erected a house on it that year. It was built "bullet proof," and was stockaded during the French and Indian Wars. It stood there until 1869, when it was moved to the rear of the home lot to give place to a more modern dwelling, and is now used as a storehouse. As the chimneys were torn down and other changes made in its appearance when it was moved, the present owner, Mr. Charles H. Ashley, a great-great-grandson of Rev. Mr. Ashley, decided not to attempt to have a picture of it in this volume. Unfortunately, there is no likeness of Rev. Jonathan Ashley in existence.‡

22. Capt. BENJAMIN ASHLEY (Jonathan<sup>7</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 9 February 1714-5 in Westfield, Mass.; died ——— 17 ———; married, 1st, 17 May 1739 in Westfield, SUSANNAH BANCROFT, daughter of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Root) Bancroft, born 30 January 1717 in Westfield; died 27 May 1740 in Westfield. He married, 2d,* 13 March 1744-5 in Suffield, Conn., REBECCA KELLOGG, daughter of Capt. Martin and Sarah (Lane née Dickinson) Kellogg, born 22 December 1695 in Hatfield, Mass.; died ——— 1757 in Onquaga, now Windsor, N. Y.

Benjamin Ashley settled in Westfield. He lived on a farm owned by his father in the western part of the town, the title of which he acquired by the will of the latter who died in 1749. He was elected surveyor of highways in 1741, 1744 and 1746, and town constable in 1742. In 1745, during King George's War, he served on a scouting party under Colonel Stoddard.†

It was, probably, on this expedition that he became acquainted with his second wife, Rebecca Kellogg. She had been taken prisoner, with other members of her family, by the Indians when they destroyed Deerfield, February 29, 1704, and carried to Canada. She resided until womanhood at Calnawaga‡ in New York, and became well acquainted with the Indians in that neighborhood and was employed frequently as an interpreter by the missionaries.

Captain Ashley also became interested in the Indians, and about 1752§ he and his wife became teachers in the Indian school in Stockbridge, she being employed as interpreter. Jonathan Edwards, at that time minister of Stockbridge and missionary to the Indians, took a deep interest in the welfare of the Indians at Onquaga|| on the Susquehanna River, and procured a missionary for them, Rev. Gideon Hawley, who was accompanied by Captain and Mrs. Ashley. "They started on May 22, 1753, and proceeded to Schoharie, thence to the Susquehanna River, and down it to the Onohoghwage Indians near the Great Bend in the Susquehanna."* They labored here, with satisfactory results, until the death of Mrs. Ashley in 1757. Captain Ashley is said to have returned the following year to Stockbridge,† but no further particulars about him were found there, and he is supposed to have gone back again to the Indians and to have died at their village.

She married, 2d, 6 November 1753 in Salisbury, Conn., Ensign John Dean of Salisbury.

Ebenezer Ashley settled in his native town, and with his brother Phineas occupied their father's house. He united with the church in Westfield on August 30, 1738, and his wife was received by letter from the church in Northampton on January 7, 1743. He was town constable in 1751. He removed to Sheffield a few months before his death. He appears to have been a farmer.§

Samuel Ashley, his brother Martin and his cousin Rev. Joseph Ashley (12) had been original grantees of Winchester,* N. H., under the Massachusetts charter. In 1753 the settlement of the boundary line between Massachusetts and New Hampshire threw the former grant of Winchester into the New Hampshire territory, and it became necessary to obtain a re-grant. This purpose was accomplished by securing to the original grantees the same tract under a charter from Benning Wentworth, and Winchester was incorporated July 2, 1753. Settling in Winchester,† Samuel Ashley, his step-father, Col. William Symes, and Capt. Josiah Willard were chosen the first selectmen of the town. Mr. Ashley, while living in Northfield, had occupied lands which fell over the new line in Hinsdale, N. H., and was one of the "Hinsdale petitioners" August 29, 1753. He was also a petitioner and grantee of the towns of Windsor, Vt., in 1761, Shrewsbury, Vt., in 1763, and Claremont, N. H., in 1784.‡

At forty years of age, therefore, Samuel Ashley had become an influential citizen, a large land owner, and, for those times, a wealthy man. He was an officer in the militia, a justice of the peace, and one of three men in Cheshire County authorized to record deeds. It was, however, after the age of fifty-three that he came into special prominence by espousing the patriot cause in the Revolution.

Samuel Ashley had been a delegate to the Provincial Government as representative from Winchester, and was at the session which met May 10, 1774, at Portsmouth, at which, notwithstanding the strong remonstrance of John Wentworth, who had been appointed Governor in 1767, the representatives appointed a Committee of Correspondence, for the purpose of exchanging information with similar committees from other colonies. He was also a delegate to the convention held at Exeter on July 21, 1774, which appointed representatives to the First Continental Congress at Philadelphia, and to those held there January 5 and April 21, 1775; the latter two days after the battle of Lexington.

On May 17, 1775, another convention met, composed of 151 delegates, and, styling themselves the First Provisional Congress, appointed the famous Committee of Safety, composed of five members, who, at a session held that day, elected four more, one of whom was Samuel Ashley; and he was in continual attendance from June 14th till June 29th. From that date to October 31st he was absent in the service of the State, during which time he acted as mustering officer and was commissioned (August 24th) Colonel of the "first part" of the regiment lately commanded by Col. Josiah Willard. From October 31st to November 16th he was again a constant attendant on the committee. His services ceased, however, January 5, 1776, when he was elected a member of the Council of Eight, in which body he served till 1780, as one of the two members from Cheshire County, which then included Sullivan County.

On January 10, 1776, Colonel Ashley was appointed First Justice of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas of Cheshire County. On June 26, 1776, the House voted to appoint a committee to consider a petition of Colonel Ashley and others for a company of "Rangers," and two days later voted to raise four companies of fifty men each to guard the Western frontier. Colonel Ashley was to enlist one of these companies, muster and pay the men, and deliver the commissions to the persons chosen officers by the soldiers. The following July he was appointed to muster men for the reënforcement of the army in Canada. At the requisition of General Gates he marched his regiment on October 21st to reënforce the army at Ticonderoga, returning on November 16th.

On May 2, 1777, dispatches were received by the Committee of Safety, stating that the garrison at Ticonderoga was in danger of being taken by the British and urging that the militia be sent forward to reënforce this important post. The following day expresses were sent to Colonels Ashley, Bellows and Chase, entreating them to raise as much of the militia as possible and march to Ticonderoga. In reply, Colonel Ashley marched with one hundred and nine men on May 7th, and served until June 18th, when he was discharged. He reënlisted June 29th, and was present at the evacuation of Ticonderoga by the Americans the following month, receiving his discharge July 11th. The evacuation of Ticonderoga threatened the subjection of New England. At this crisis, the Committee of Safety convened the Legislature on July 17th. The Council and House resolved themselves into a Committee of the Whole and conferred with the Committee of Safety. The State was destitute, and it was supposed that it had done all it possibly could in the way of furnishing troops. On the second day (July 18th) John Langdon made his patriotic offer towards equipping troops to check Burgoyne's advance, and advised that General Stark, who had so nobly defended the honor of New Hampshire at Bunker Hill, should be intrusted with the command. Colonel Ashley immediately volunteered for General Stark's staff. He served on the staff as Brigade Major, and was at the battle of Bennington, receiving his discharge September 25th. He continued in the service under General Gates at Saratoga until Burgoyne's surrender. That he served from purely patriotic motives, the following letter proves :

TICONDEROGA, NOV. 9, 1777.

To COLS. ASHLEY AND BELLOWS :

Gentlemen,—I return to you, and to the officers and soldiers of the regiments under your command, my sincere thanks for the spirit and expedition both you and they have shown in marching, upon the first alarm, upward of one hundred and fifty miles, to the support of this important post when it was threatened with an immediate attack from the enemy's army. I now dismiss you with the honor you have so well deserved.

I also certify that neither you nor any under your command have received any pay or reward from me for your services on this occasion. That, I leave to be settled by the general Congress with the Convention of your State. With great respect, I am,

Your most Obedient Servant,

HORATIO GATES.

Colonel Ashley continued in the command of his regiment, the Thirteenth, afterwards the Sixth, New Hampshire until he resigned his colonelcy June 18, 1779. On March 24th of that year he had been chosen with Gen. Nathaniel Folsom a representative to the Continental Congress, but for some unknown reason did not accept.

In 1781 occurred the celebrated Vermont Controversy, where the harmony of the two States, and the towns on either side of the Connecticut, was at stake by the proposed formation of a new State. Colonel Ashley, with ten others, strongly protested, at a meeting held at Charlestown, against the proceedings of the Convention, and doubtless by his own and his associates' determined action prevented civil feud, which had so nearly occurred between these towns themselves. Robert Wier attacked the court for his indictment for encouraging the rioters at Keene in 1782 in the following language: "Colonel Ashley is for arbitrary power, and arbitrary power he shall have; damn the court and their authority."*

About this time Colonel Ashley removed to Claremont. He had been Associate Justice of the Court of Common Pleas for Cheshire County from 1776 until then, and about that time was appointed Chief Justice, a position he filled until July, 1791.

Claremont had been granted to Josiah Willard, Samuel Ashley and sixty-seven others on October 26, 1764, and Samuel Ashley was designated as the first moderator of the grantees. After the Revolution, of the seventy-five shares into which the town was originally divided, twenty-two were possessed by Samuel Ashley and the members of his family. At a meeting of the proprietors May 26, 1784, these shares were, by vote of the proprietors, laid out into one tract, the dividing line being known as "Ashley's Line." Its course was in a straight line across the town, from the vicinity of the "Ferry," easterly from the Connecticut River to the town line of Newport. Eighteen of these twenty-two shares were the confiscated rights of original grantees, who had neglected to pay their proportion of the assessments incidental to the settlement of the town, and for which neglect they were sold at auction, and doubtless purchased by Samuel Ashley. The territory thus acquired was controlled independently from the other town proprietors.

Colonel Ashley had a strong sense of humor, and the nicknames he gave his sons are characteristic—"Snarling" Oliver, Martin Ashley spent his early years in Northfield, Mass., with his mother and her second husband Colonel Symes, and probably went with them to Winchester, N. H., in the early days of its settlement. He was living in Winchester in 1748, and settled there after his marriage.

Ebenezer and Editha (Gunn) Billings, born 11 May 1745 in Sunderland; died 16 September 1826 in Leverett.

Stephen Ashley came with his father in 1747 to Sunderland, Mass. He was a soldier in the French and Indian War, and served in the expedition against Crown Point and Canada in 1759, having enlisted April 25th and being discharged November 25th of that year.†

He was one of the pioneers of the Long Plain district of the town, about one mile southwest of what is now Leverett village. In 1773 he and other residents there petitioned the town of Sunderland for liberty to be set off into a new town. The petition was granted, and the new town of Leverett was incorporated March 5, 1774, and at the first town meeting, held March 24th, Stephen Ashley was elected a selectman. On September 29th of that year the town voted "to lend our minds in writing to the Provincial Congress by a Committee," and Stephen Ashley and four others were chosen the committee to carry out its instructions. He was also elected a selectman in 1775, 1778-82, 1784 and 1785.

Stephen Ashley was received into the church in Sunderland by confession in 1766, and was one of the founders of the church in Leverett in 1784. He was a farmer by occupation, and his son Joseph inherited his farm.‡

33. Capt. DAVID ASHLEY (David<sup>1</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, David<sup>3</sup>, Robert<sup>4</sup>), born 27 September 1727 in Westfield, Mass.; died 22 October 1813 in Pittsfield, Mass.; married 1 May 1758 in West Springfield, Mass., Mrs. HANNAH (LEONARD) MILLER, widow of Capt. William Miller, and daughter of ? Joseph and Thankful (Bagg) Leonard, born ? 15 July 1732 in West Springfield; died ——— 1790 in Pittsfield.

David Ashley passed his early life in his father's house in Westfield. He was a soldier in the French and Indian War, and saw nearly a year and a half of service in Capt. Israel Williams' company, in which he enlisted May 28, 1755, and served until October 18, 1756. His name is borne on the roll at Colerain, Fall Town, Rice's Charlemont, Pontoosuck, Greenfield and Northfield.§

He lived in Westfield the year succeeding his marriage, and in 1760 removed with his family to the new settlement at Pontoosuck, now Pittsfield, Mass. He had visited that locality before as a soldier, and his father had been interested in the town since its earliest settlement. He lived on the road running west from the center and was engaged chiefly in farming. He also owned a sawmill there, whose location is to be seen in the map of 1794.||

During the Revolution, there seems to be no doubt that David Ashley enrolled himself on the popular side, although

This assertion is refuted by his descendants, two of whom† write that their family records state that "David Ashley was an intimate friend of Ethan Allen and was with him at Ticonderoga." This latter statement agrees with what the official records show. David Ashley served as a private in Lient. James Hubbard's company, Col. David Rossiter's regiment, August 17-22, 1777.‡ He reenlisted and served in Capt. Joel Stevens' company in the same regiment October 12-25, 1781, and "marched on the alarm at Saratoga."§ His name is also on the roll of Capt. John Bacon's company, Col. Caleb Hyde's regiment, October 20-8, 1781,|| and July 3, 1782.**

In November, 1789, David Ashley petitioned to be exempt from the minister's tax, declaring that he thought "it not right to support Mr. Allen (the Congregational minister) by a tax." On the same occasion, his son David said that he had been "an attendant on Mr. Rathburn's (a Baptist) from a child, and chooses to attend there still." He was a member of the Methodist class, organized in 1792 by Rev. Robert Green at the house of Capt. Joel Stevens in the "west part," and was of the Methodist (East) society, when it was incorporated in 1804.††

Moses Ashley was graduated at Yale College in 1767, and came with his father to Hartwood (now Washington), Mass., in the spring of 1772. He was appointed an ensign in the militia soon after his arrival there, and was sent to represent the town at the convention held in Stockbridge July 6, 1774. At the Lexington Alarm, April 19, 1775, he enlisted in Capt. Peleg Porter's company, Col. In June, 1778, his command was at the battle of Monmouth, and in August following at the battle of Rhode Island. From 1779 to the close of the war he was with the main army on the Hudson, sometimes acting as Brigade Major of Glover's brigade and again as Inspector.* He was promoted Major of Vose's regiment on January 6, 1780,* and on July 28, 1780, Major of the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment,* commanded by Col. Rufus Putnam. He was appointed Brigade Inspector, and was on duty at Camp "Tenack" August 31, 1780,† and Major-Commandant under Col. Putnam on March 16, 1781.‡ August 5, 1782, he commanded a light detachment on the outposts and was also one of the majors of the Light Infantry of that year. February 6, 1783, he was transferred to the Sixth Regiment, Col. Groaton, and in June following retired with reputation from the army, his service having been continuous for over eight years.

The following is a letter written by him to his brother Azariah after the battle of Bunker Hill.

CHARLESTOWN CAMP, June 20th, 1775.

DEAR BROTHER:

Last Friday we had a very hot battle with the Regulars. The circumstances are, as near as I can understand, as follows: On Friday night the 16th of this instant about 2000 of our men were ordered to entrench on a hill called Breed's Hill at the lower part of Charlestown. They had a good battery made by daylight when they were fired upon by the ships in the harbor. They killed some of our men up at Boston and kept up a continual fire of cannon all day. About three o'clock there landed about 1200 men with some field pieces, and in cover of their cannon upon the back part of the town. Our people began to fire upon them as they landed and were obliged to retreat to the intrenchments, and they rushed up and took it from them. Some of our men fought bravely, but many were killed on both sides, among whom are many brave officers. Perhaps there are about 120 wounded and missing, but I am not able to tell the certain number at present. They are now in possession of a great part of Charlestown and have burnt most of the houses and other buildings. We are expecting every moment to be attacked as they continually fire at us every chance they can get. When you heard the cannon that you spoke of in your letter it was at Chelsea, where we had the better of them without the loss of a single man and but 4 wounded. We there burnt an army schooner and drove off many cattle belonging to them on the Island. I myself was in that battle, and can tell you more when I shall see you. We have now a continual crack of the rifle and roar of cannon, but they don't reach us. The roaring bellow of the cannon does not seem to frighten or dishearten our men, but rather to encourage and strengthen them. We are situated well and are well fortified. We lost five pieces of cannon in the last battle. I have nothing more to tell except I am well and have been in good health ever since I left home, as are all the Berkshire men. I put my trust in the God of our forefathers Who is able to protect and preserve me in danger and in safety, Who is able to confound our enemies and deliver them into our hands, and to return me safe to you and my other friends in His own time. I would not have you be at all troubled about me, I fare well for provisions and all other necessities of life. You blame me because I do not write oftener, I will try to send once in every 3 weeks by Mr. Hatch, as he will be a post to carry letters to Berkshire. Now farewell. Remember me to all the family and my other friends as you know best who they are.

I am your loving brother,

MOSES ASHLEY.*

Returning to Stockbridge, where he had married while in the army, Major Ashley engaged in business and held office. In his business he was active, enterprising and industrious, and was possessed of a very considerable property. In 1787 he was one of the commissioners appointed to treat with the Indians for the purchase of the tract of country in New York in which Binghamton is situated. The tract contained 230,000 square acres and embraced ten townships, and between three and four hundred Indians were present at the meeting at which the negotiation was completed.* Major Ashley was elected County Treasurer on February 5, 1788, and commissioned Brigadier-General of the militia in 1790, both of which positions he filled until his death.† He was a member of the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati.‡

‡ Administration was granted on his estate 11 Oct. 1791 to his widow Thankful et al. [Berks. Co. Prob. Rec., file 1533.]

§ His certificate, now in the possession of Miss Frances L. Beale of Canaan Four Corners, N. Y., is dated May 5, 1784. It is signed by its president, George Washington, and secretary, Thomas Knox, and must have been one of the very earliest issued as the first general meeting of the society was appointed for May 4, 1784.

During Shays' rebellion, a party of rioters under the command of Capt. Perez Hamlin passed through Stockbridge on February 27, 1787. "From Dr. Sergeant's they went on to Gen. Ashley's, who was taken prisoner, but he is said to have been sent home by Hamlin, who expressed regret at seeing a fellow officer of the Revolution in his hands as a prisoner."*

The Berkshire Star of August 30, 1791, contains the following obituary:†

"It is with the most painful sensations that we announce to the public the unfortunate death of Brigadier-General Moses Ashley of this town, who was drowned at the dam of his forge in Lee on Thursday last. On Saturday at two o'clock P. M. his remains were carried from his late residence to the meeting house, when the Rev. Mr. West of this town delivered a discourse from the words "Wherefore the Holy Ghost saith to-day if ye will hear his voice." (Hebrews iii. 7.) The corpse was then carried to the burying-ground attended by a numerous assembly, the gravity of whose deportment testified their great regret and the respected estimation in which his character was held by his friends and acquaintances. He left a wife and three small children to mourn and feel their loss.

Although that species of encomium which eulogizes the dead, intending to flatter the living, is the offspring of detestable meanness of spirit, and in every honest mind will in various ways produce disgust, yet praise justly bestowed is always the most operative incident to virtuous action. General Ashley, at a very early period of his life, received the advantages of an academic education, and though while at college he was distinguished by industry and decency of behaviour, yet it was not by literary acquisitions that his life was rendered most useful. More active scenes have employed every period of his ripened manhood. While in the bloom of life, at the age of twenty-four, when America was aroused to opposition by the usurpations of Great Britain, he, with the ardour of youth, and a promptitude of decision, by which he was always distinguished, embraced the profession of arms for the security of freedom. He served until the conclusion of the war, and for several of the last years as a major in the line of Massachusetts. During the whole time it was his happiness and glory to be greatly respected by his superiors, affectionately beloved and confided in by those of his own grade, and almost adored by the soldiery under his command. Sensible of the importance of vigorous discipline, he was willing at all times to pay the same implicit obedience to those above which he exacted from those below him. Brave, enterprising, active, generous, patient, he possessed those qualities by which military fame is acquired. Blessed with a firm and vigorous constitution, he rendered those qualities eminently useful to his country. At the conclusion of the war, having married a very amiable lady, the widow of Col. Williams, he settled in this town. Without complaint he submitted to those exigencies by which the government was deprived of the means of rendering justice to the brave army which had secured the freedom of America. On all occasions his influence was for the support of the due administration of justice ; and has uniformly practiced the virtues of a modest and worthy citizen. These virtues have not been unrewarded ; they have produced the confidence, the esteem and gratitude of the government and the people ; from whence have proceeded those various appointments and elections of the former, and of the latter to the many and important offices which he has sustained, and the duties of which he has so honorably discharged, that even the malignity of malice and envy have not whispered reproach. In his own business he was active, enterprising and industrious. Possessed of very considerable property, he improved it in such a manner as to feed and clothe more poor and industrious people than perhaps any other man in this county. He received his death in the midst of those whose dependence in some measure was on the support he afforded them. His heart must have been callous to every sentiment of tender sympathy who could have beheld or can reflect on that scene of distress and anguish which the first shock of this unfortunate event must have produced, among his friends, his fellow citizens and his dependents. It ought to be mentioned that his conduct as a husband, father and master, was tender, affectionate and just.

An intimate friend of his begs leave to add to the above, the apology of his high military fame which was proclaimed in the Funeral Procession by the shrill trumpet's sound though no splendid parade of men in arms appeared on the melancholy occasion, the more strongly to impress on the minds of the numerous spectators that their deceased General was truly a soldier—though the plaintive notes of the fife and the mournful sound of the muffled drum echoed not to the throbbing breasts of the mingled throng—yet never were there met together on a similar occasion a greater number of weeping hearts than were collected on Saturday to pay their last respects to the reliques of their beloved General. And what greater tribute can be paid to the memory of departed friends than the tribute of a sorrowful heart.

And art thou, Ashley ! to that number joined,
To illustrate the sad Muse's theme ;
To bear thy witness to the pained mind
How life and its enjoyments are a dream.

Need she recount how late we saw thee stand
With blessings and with honors circled round ;
What anxious hopes, suspended at thy hand,
Whelmed in thy fate, are fallen to the ground !

Sad to recite, and painful were the strain,
And many a sigh, and many a tear should cost,
How loved, how honored, and how prized the man,
How fam'd, how useful, and alas ! how lost !

Let weeping friends their aching bosoms beat,
 And tell how tender was his interest there :
 If friendship's melting plea such audience meet,
 Ah !—what man more the grimly power to spare.

Ask your bright columns that emblaze the fields,
 If ever to them his worth was known and dear.
 Mark how they point the vacant post he held,
 Eye their black weeds, and drop the conscious tear.

Speak of his deeds, ye children of his care,
 For indigence a parent in him knew,
 Much of his usefulness can ye declare,
 That usefulness alas ! now lost to you.

But what avails the Muses' weeping lay—
 Ah, what avails to tell what once he was !
 Cold, silent and insensate is his clay,
 Heedless alike of censure or applause.

General Ashley's grave in Stockbridge cemetery is marked by a handsome stone bearing the following inscription :

Israel Ashley was graduated at Yale College in 1767, and, like his father, became a physician in his native town. After the death of his father in the army in 1758, the family continued to reside in his house, the old Ashley homestead, on the south side of Main Street in Westfield village. It was here that Doctor Ashley lived, and at his death the homestead passed to his only son.

Doctor Ashley took an active part in affairs in Westfield during the Revolution, and was chosen a member of the Committee of Correspondence and Safety in 1776. His patriotism led him to enlist in the army the following year, and on September 21st he was appointed Surgeon of the Third Hampshire County Regiment, Col. John Moseley. His regiment was in service during the Saratoga campaign, which ended with Burgoyne's Surrender on October 17th, at which time

Doctor Ashley received his discharge.* He also served in the same capacity in the same regiment at Northampton, June 12-14, 1782, during the excitement following the release of Samuel Ely from Springfield jail.†

Doctor Ashley became an influential citizen of Westfield, both socially and politically, and was well known as a physician throughout Hampshire County. He was a selectman 1779-82, 1784-85, and 1802-1804; town clerk 1781-89; and a justice of the peace for many years, and up to his death. He and his wife were members of the First Congregational Church in Westfield. They died of fever within five days of each other.‡

"Dr. Ashley used to say that home work was the best exercise in the world for women, as it developed every muscle in the body. He taught his wife to sew on fingers and thumbs and do other light surgery, so that the farmers would not be kept waiting if he was not at home. His daughters were taught thorough housekeeping, and wove and spun all the linen for their wedding outfits."§

John Ashley was graduated at Yale College in 1758. Returning to the home of his father, Judge Ashley, in Sheffield, he read law, and was admitted to the Hampshire Bar at the April term of 1762. Being an only son, and destined to succeed to large interests in lands, he engaged early in mercantile business, and followed his profession for only a few years. He owned a piece of land in the adjoining town of Mount Washington that is still known as Ashley hill, and the stream which runs through it is Ashley brook.

His father built him a house a short distance south of his own, and about a mile north of the present Ashley Falls post office. The house stands on the west bank of the Housatonic River on what is known as the "back road" between Ashley Falls and Sheffield, and is now owned by Mr. George Bartholomew, who has altered its appearance by the addition of a front porch and other improvements.

John Ashley, from his youth, was interested in military affairs, and rose successively through the several grades of Ensign, Lieutenant and Captain in his father's regiment. On September 3, 1771, he was commissioned Second-Major of the South Hampshire Regiment, of which his father was then colonel, and two years later was commissioned Major.

After the outbreak of the Revolution, his patriotism and position in the militia naturally led him to enlist in the army. He was commissioned Colonel of the 1st Berkshire Regiment April 4, 1777,§ receiving his appointment as Field Officer on May 4th. "He marched his regiment to the Hudson in July, after the evacuation of Ticonderoga, and appears, from certain references, to have been at Bennington and with the Massachusetts forces in the Burgoyne campaign. He would naturally turn out at that crisis. It is probable also that he served on other occasions in that quarter."*

Colonel Ashley took a prominent part in the suppression of Shays' rebellion. On September 10, 1786, Major-Gen. John Paterson, anticipating that the mob would attempt to prevent the sitting of the court at Great Barrington, issued orders to his officers to have their men assembled there fully armed on the following Tuesday morning. Among others, Colonel Ashley replied to this order as follows:†

SHEFFIELD, 1786.

GEN. JOHN PATERSON:

In obedience to your orders, I have called upon the several companies in the Regiment under my command for their respective quota of men. The number were without difficulty collected in this place. The ammunition will be expended by to-morrow evening. We wish your directions in which manner they shall be supplied. Ammunition is also wanted for the troops from Sandisfield and New Marlborough.

Yours respectfully,

Notwithstanding these precautions, the court was intimidated and voted to adjourn.

Colonel Ashley's command had a sharp skirmish with a force of the rebels on February 27, 1787, and scattered them. A report was received that the insurgents, after their plundering of Stockbridge, were in retreat through Egremont to New York. Colonel Ashley took his command by a back road towards Egremont. Finding that the insurgents were in their rear, a halt was made, and quite a hot engagement of a few minutes' duration ensued, when the rebels turned in flight. The plundering of Stockbridge was the last important demonstration made during the rebellion, and this was the only fight which occurred. General Lincoln, learning of Colonel Ashley's movements, wrote him: "Your successes must be important, as they will teach these deluded wretches that they cannot march unchecked by the good citizens, or spread depredations among them with impunity."

GEN. JOHN ASHLEY'S HOUSE, ASHLEY FALLS, MASS.

Colonel Ashley held numerous civil offices. He was appointed a justice of the peace on June 27, 1771, and continued in frequent attendance on the Court of Sessions, of which he was a member, both before and after the Revolution. He was a selectman of Sheffield from 1777 to 1779, and in 1787 and 1788; and, at various intervals, from 1782 to his death, represented that town in the General Court. In 1788 he was commissioned Brigadier-General, and in 1789 Major-General of the 9th Division of the Massachusetts militia.

"General Ashley was ever a firm friend to the constitution and liberties of the United States. As a magistrate he was upright. By his death his aged parent is deprived of a dutiful son; the town has lost a friend to order; the poor have lost a benefactor; and his family a loss irreparable. He received a wound in his leg a few days before his death, which his surgeon supposed was healing. November 5, 1799, he rose in the morning, and unexpectedly expired in a few moments. On the seventh, he was buried with military honors. A large number of people testified their respect by attending his funeral."* The sermon on that occasion was preached by Rev. Ephraim Judson of Sheffield and the text was taken from Ecclesiastes vii. 2.

General Ashley was buried in the Ashley lot in the old cemetery in Sheffield. His gravestone bears the following inscription:†

JONATHAN ASHLEY (Jonathan<sup>21</sup>, Jonathan<sup>7</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 6 January 1738-9 in Deerfield, Mass.; died 30 May 1787 in Shelburne, Mass.; married 28 November 1771 in Deerfield, TIRZA FIELD, daughter of Col. David and Thankful (Taylor) Field, born 16 April 1749 in Deerfield. She married, 2d, 27 August 1792 in Deerfield, Rev. Jonathan Leavitt of Heath, Mass., and died 22 November 1797 in Heath.

Jonathan Ashley was graduated at Yale College in 1758. He was admitted to the bar and settled as a lawyer in his native town, where his talents gained him a large practice. He was elected a representative to the General Court in 1762, 1763, 1765 and 1768, and a selectman of the town in 1765, 1769, 1771 and 1772. He was appointed a justice of the peace on May 9, 1770, and held that office for five years.

His father, Rev. Jonathan Ashley, as has been seen, was entirely devoted to the interests of the King during the Revolution, and it was but natural that the son should identify himself with the Tories, and he did so most thoroughly.

"Great preparations were made by Tory creditors for the August courts [1774]. Esq. Jonathan Ashley was a busy man. He was so crowded that for nearly a week his brother Elihu was engaged with him in drawing writs. August 4th, news reached here from Great Barrington that David Ingersoll, a Tory, had been mobbed by the Liberty men. His Deerfield connections and friends began to open their eyes to the possible consequences, but Esq. Ashley and his brother kept on drawing writs. August 19th came news that on the 16th the court at Great Barrington had been stopped, . . . but Esq. Ashley and his brother kept on drawing writs—for the court was to meet at Springfield, Tuesday, August 30th."†

"The popular feeling was now at fever heat, and it was in a gloomy frame of mind that Esq. Ashley, with his green bag stuffed with writs, accompanied by Judge Williams and others, set off August 29th for Springfield to attend court . . . . About eight o'clock [the following day] Esq. Ashley arrived [in Deerfield], with his bag still full of writs, and gave the particulars of the lawless outrage‡ to a sympathetic circle of listeners. One present said, 'I never see any person so altered in my life as Squire Ashley was.' . . . . On September 5th a party of Tories garrisoned the house of Esq. Ashley. There may have been intimations of an approaching mob from the West,"* [but no trouble occurred].

When the progress of the war had reached the point where Great Britain made an effort for a peaceful settlement of the questions depending on its issues, provided that the claim of independence was not demanded, Jonathan Ashley was one of those instrumental in carrying the town meeting of January 22, 1781, so that the town's representatives were to urge on the General Court that "some immediate advances be made to the Court of Great Britain in order to effect peace without further effusion of blood." A hearing was held on these instructions by a committee of both houses of the General Court. This action followed :*

"Whereas, the Instructions given to the Representatives of the Town of Deerfield are expressed in such manner as renders it doubtful what the Intention of the Inhabitants of said Town of Deerfield is, relative to the Subject Matter of said Instructions, therefore

Resolved, that Seth Catlin, Gent., John Williams, Gent., and Jonathan Ashley, Esq., all of Deerfield, in the County of Hampshire, be, and they are hereby ordered, forthwith to attend the General Court to make answer to such Questions as shall be put to them relative to their views and designs in such Instructions."

As it appeared from the examination of the case by the Court that these three were unfriendly to Independence, they were laid under such restrictions "as the Commonwealth receive no injury from them," and put under bonds to appear at the Superior Court at Springfield in September, 1781, "to answer to such matters as may be brought against them touching their conduct in the war with Great Britain."*

On March 5, 1781 occurred the annual town meeting in Deerfield. "The principal offices were all filled with Tories; and, as if in open defiance of the Governor and Council, Jonathan Ashley was chosen town clerk and also treasurer, . . but at an adjourned meeting, March 19th, many of the Tory officers resigned."*

* Sheldon's "History of Deerfield."

Catlin, Williams and Ashley had been cast into jail in Boston on March 10th, and on the 23d they petitioned the Governor and Council for a release, but their petition was not granted. After another month in prison, Squire Ashley sent a petition, accompanied by a physician's certificate, stating that his health was impaired by his confinement and desiring the use of the jail yard to take exercise in. His request was granted, and he was given permission to lodge in the jailer's house. The next day, April 24th, all three prisoners petitioned for a release, and on the 25th they were admitted to bail in the sum of £2,000 each. This ended their prosecution.

In 1786 Squire Ashley sold his place in Deerfield and removed to the adjoining town of Shelburne, where he died the following year. "Though strongly set in his principles of Toryism, his sensitive nature and delicate constitution never recovered from the humiliation of his prison experience, and his life was shortened by it."*

Benjamin Bellows, and marched to reënforce the army at Ticonderoga, being in service from October 21 to November 16, 1776. The following year he served there in the same regiment until the evacuation, being discharged July 8th. On August 17th he led his company to Bennington. He reënlisted September 21st, and served under Col. Bellows during the Saratoga campaign, which ended with Burgoyne's surrender. Captain Ashley received his discharge October 21st.

Captain Ashley was elected a representative from Claremont in 1780, and was a delegate at the Charleston Convention, held January 16, 1781, and composed of delegates from forty-three towns of the New Hampshire Grants. In 1784 he was elected a justice of the peace. He also held the rank of Major in the militia and was known by this title.*

Major Ashley lived on the farm now owned by John Bailey, and established the ferry across the Connecticut River which bears the family name, the sole right of which was granted to him November 3, 1784. At his death he left by his will $5,000, the income of which was perpetually to assist in the maintenance of the Union (Episcopal) Church in West Claremont.*

† His will, dated 13 Nov. 1817, proved 8 July 1818, mentions his wife Olive, grand-nephew Oliver Ashley, the Union Church in Claremont, Melinda, wife of Jonathan Hill, and Isaac Hubbard. [Keene, N. H., Prob. Rec.]

Mass.; died in October 1820 in Springville, Pa.; married 9 August 1770 in Northfield, his cousin LYDIA DOOLITTLE, daughter of Lucius and Sarah (Smith) Doolittle, born 25 December 1753 in Northfield; died _____.

Samuel Ashley, leaving his father's house in Winchester, N. H., where he had spent his youth, settled in Claremont in the same State, and became a man of importance. He lived on what is now known as the Charles Ainsworth farm.

Enlisting in the Revolution, he was appointed First-Lieutenant of the Claremont company, of which his brother Oliver had been commissioned captain July 5, 1776, and was ordered "to go to Newbury for three months or less." This company was the Fourth in Col. Benjamin Bellow's regiment, the Sixteenth New Hampshire, and marched to reinforce the army at Ticonderoga, serving from October 21 to November 16, 1776. During this and the Saratoga campaign, September 21 to October 17, 1777, he acted as Adjutant on Col. Bellows' staff. His company had also served at Ticonderoga until the evacuation, being discharged July 8, 1777, and he probably marched with it to Bennington on August 16th of that year.

He was six days on horseback in Lieut. Jeremiah Spencer's scouting party of twenty-four men, which, in August 1780, went in pursuit of the enemy who had made a raid from Canada on Claremont and adjacent towns. The party searched in the woods three days, and two lieutenants of the British army fell into their hands. About that time Lieutenant Ashley was made Captain in the New Hampshire Line.

After the close of the war Captain Ashley continued to take an active part in military affairs. He was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fifteenth New Hampshire Militia Regiment on December 25, 1784, and its Colonel on September 25, 1786.*

Colonel Ashley removed with his son Charles to Springville, Susquehanna County, Pa., in the spring of 1818, and died there two years later.

Daniel Ashley settled near the Ashuelot River in Winchester, N. H., of which his father was an original grantee and influential citizen. The patriotic stand his father had taken at the outbreak of the Revolution could not fail to imbue his son with like sentiments, and he early enlisted in the American Army. He was commissioned Lieutenant of Capt. John Houghton's company, Col. Nahum Baldwin's regiment, mustered September 22, 1776, to reënforce the army in New York. The regiment was in the battle of White Plains, October 28, 1776, and was dismissed early in December of that year. He was delegate from Winchester to the Concord Convention held June 10, 1778, to form a new constitution. In 1781 he was elected a selectman of Winchester, and in 1786 and 1787 he represented the town in the Legislature. Prior to this he had been commissioned Captain in the Sixteenth New Hampshire Militia Regiment, and on June 22, 1786, he was appointed its 2d Major.*

The following two anecdotes in the life of Major Ashley were wont to be related by his widow :

"He was Sheriff of Cheshire County before the Revolution, when New Hampshire and New York were quarreling about the so called "New Hampshire Grants," now the State of Vermont. He went over to the "Grants" to secure writs of ejectment on the New York squatters, but they seized him and took him to Albany. He was confined in jail, where he was very near freezing to death for want of clothing and fire, but he was finally released."

"In the Revolutionary war, when Banne was advancing upon the military stores at Bennington, a draft of one in four was made, and my husband, Daniel Ashley, was among the drafted. It was in harvest time, and farm help was very scarce. His father insisted upon taking his son's place, saying, 'I can fight as well, better even than Daniel, and Daniel can do more work ; if one is to be killed, it far better be me.' His father with some difficulty prevailed, and fought in his son's place."

Sheriff of Windsor County for several years. He had the titles of "Captain" and "Squire."

Strictly honorable in all his business transactions, Squire Ashley's advice was often sought by his neighbors and his opinion highly valued. He was always a friend of the poor. Martin Ashley came, when a boy, with his father to Walpole, N. H. The following account of his service in the army during the Revolution is taken from his pension application.* In the spring of 1776 he enlisted under Capt. Cook of Keene, N. H., and served four months as a private and teamster. He reënlisted July 21, 1777, in Capt. Christopher Webb's company, Col. Silas Stickney's regiment, and was engaged in the battle of Bennington, being discharged September 22d. In 1776 he reënlisted at Walpole, under Lieut. Case, to serve three years in the Continental Army, but after serving about three months, not being of a strong constitution, he procured a substitute and left the service.

He then returned to Walpole, where he was elected to several town offices, among them that of school collector in 1787. He and his wife joined the Congregational church there on August 31, 1788, and that day his child was baptized. The following year he removed to Shrewsbury, Vt., and was engaged in farming there and in the adjoining town of Mount Holly for the remainder of his life. A pond of considerable size in Shrewsbury is still known as Ashley's pond.

William, born 2 June 1777 in Richmond, Mass.; died 8 March 1849 in Richmond, N. Y.

Noah Ashley, after teaching school a short time, entered the store of a relative in his native town as a salesman. At the age of seventeen, in 1786, he went to the town of Pawlet, Rutland County, Vt., to accept a similar position. He continued to reside there for the first six years succeeding his marriage. In the fall of 1802 he went to examine the condition of the new country around Richmond, Ontario County, N. Y., making the journey on horseback. He was so well pleased with the prospect that he bought a farm of 185 acres near the center of the town, on which was a small clearing and a log house, and early in 1803 removed there with his family. His farm was a little north of the center of the town of Richmond, and Honeoye, a small village at the foot of Honeoye Lake, is the present post office.

Richmond is a distinctly farming community, but, although educated to other pursuits, Squire Ashley, as he was called in his new home, soon made his farm a source of liberal income. Possessing an indomitable will and fixedness of purpose, in which traits of character his faithful wife largely shared, he soon rendered himself exceedingly valuable to his fellow pioneers. He entered zealously into all public enterprises, and furthered the interests of the settlement, not only by wise and judicious counsel, but by practical work which his sound business capacity enabled him to perform satisfactorily. As the necessity presented itself, he was administrator, assignee, lawyer and magistrate for the early settlers; positions for which his education peculiarly fitted him. He was supervisor for many years and held other town offices. His son Noah inherited his homestead.

William Ashley settled in Richmond, N. Y., about the time his brother did, 1803. He first lived near him, but later moved to a farm in the southwestern part of the town. In 1831 he removed to Conesus, Livingston County, where he lived four years, returning to Richmond in 1836.

In the spring of 1847 he emigrated to Oakfield, Mich., where his oldest son had settled, and lived there the rest of his life. He was a farmer, and was prominent in the First Baptist Church of Oakfield, usually known as the Ashley Church. He was a musician by nature and an excellent bass singer. He was an active and ambitious man, very quick witted, and possessed a keen sense of humor.

He married, 2d, about 1802, JERUSHA LEONARD, daughter of Col. Noadiah and Jerusha (Smith) Leonard, born 3 March 1769 in Sunderland, Mass.; died ————.

William Ashley, after living a few years in Pelham (now Prescott) and Amherst, Mass., came among the early settlers to Hudson, N. Y. He was known in Hudson as Captain Ashley, and his name first appears on the tax list there on May 27, 1797. He lived on the hill one mile east of the landing, where he built a large brick house, the first one in that neighborhood, and claimed the privilege of naming the elevation Prospect Hill. He kept a country store in this house nearly fifty years.

56. Capt. STEPHEN ASHLEY (Oliver<sup>32</sup>, David<sup>14</sup>, David<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 4 September 1751 in Westfield, Mass.; died ——— 18— in Sandy Hill, N. Y.;† married [? CHARLOTTE] CALKINS.

Stephen Ashley passed his childhood and youth with his father in Sheffield and Pittsfield, Mass. He returned to Sheffield shortly before the Revolution, and, after its outbreak, hastened to enlist in the American Army. His name appears as sergeant on the muster roll of Capt. Peter Ingersoll's company, Col. David Brewer's regiment, from May 19 to August 1, 1775.‡ He reënlisted that day, and served two months in the same company and regiment,§ and then served in the 9th Regiment of Foot, Col. Rufus Putnam, until his discharge, December 20, 1775. He received pay for eight months service in 1775.§ He may have been engaged at Bunker Hill, and was certainly at the siege of Boston.

After leaving the army, Stephen Ashley is supposed to have lived on his father's farm in Sheffield for about a year. He then married, and a few years later was one of the early settlers of Jessup's Landing (now Corinth), Saratoga County, N. Y., and kept the first inn there.* Early in the spring of 1786 he came to Van der Heyden's Ferry, now Troy, N. Y., being the second settler of English descent there.

"The next applicant was Capt. Stephen Ashley of Salisbury, Conn.† He secured the old building of Matthias Van der Heyden at the corner of Division and River streets by a two years' lease and opened the house as a tavern.‡ In connection with his business as landlord, he controlled and operated a ferry, which being the only public crossing over the river in the vicinity brought him both guests and gain. . . . The place was known as Ashley's Ferry or Vanderheyden's Ferry until January 5, 1789, when the name Troy was adopted by the property owners." At the end of his lease Captain Ashley was obliged to give up his tavern and ferry to Van der Heyden, who continued to keep both.

"One of the celebrities of Troy, in the year 1790, was Captain Stephen Ashley, who having vacated, in the previous year, the Matthias Van der Heyden house, had now opened an inn in a new and larger building on the east side of the road north of the corner of Ferry and River streets. This was a tavern much resorted to by a large number of farmers, to whom this jovial host had endeared himself, and it was also a favorite stopping place for a night's lodging for those going to and returning from New York on river craft. Upon Ferry Street he planted two high poles, one on each side of the roadway, and connected them at the top with a horizontal bar, and from it he suspended a small gate, upon which was painted in large letters :

THIS GATE HANGS HIGH, IT HINDERS NONE,
REFRESH, THEN PAY, AND TRAVEL ON.

In front, on River Street, was erected a tall sign-post, on the top of which was a three-sided box supported by pivots, which turned with the wind, and bore this public invitation on its several sides :

COME, HERE IS ASHLEY'S, LET US CALL."

The services of public worship were first held in the ball-chamber of Ashley's Tavern, which was the most commodious apartment offered. The conchshell used at the ferry was blown at precisely nine o'clock on Sunday morning, with a slow and prolonged sound, by which it was generally understood that religious services would begin at ten. When the people had convened, William Frazer (the only person who would pray in public) invoked the Supreme Being, after which Jacob D. Van der Heyden lined out a Psalm, in the singing of which the men and women united their voices. This was followed by a selected sermon read either by Doctor Gale or Colonel Pawling, both of whom were excellent readers. The services closed as they had begun, Jacob D. Van der Heyden lining the hymn and William Frazer making the closing prayer. Frequently, preaching occurred in the old Brick Church in Lansingburgh. This was announced in the papers, and the service was generally well attended by the people of Troy.

With such antecedents, Ashley's Tavern was not only a reputable rendezvous for all travelers, but the place of the annual meeting of the County Court, a poll for the election of civil officers, and on Sundays a meeting-house for divine worship. Incongruous as some of these uses may seem in connection with a tavern, still they are to be considered as due to the pressing necessities of a new village where the wants are greater than the accommodations. Additional prestige was given the house in the month of May, 1791, when the Secretary of State, Hon. Thomas Jefferson, and James Madison, then a member of the Constitutional Congress, representing the State of Virginia, made it a stopping-place on their way to Lake George. The tavern was also a meeting place at all celebrations and other gala occasions, over one hundred people being often entertained at dinner at such times.** long after this he removed to the village of Sandy Hill in the town of Kingsbury, Washington County, N. Y., where he also kept a tavern, and subsequently died.

Daniel Ashley, after passing his boyhood at his father's home in Pittsfield, Mass., returned to his native town, Sheffield, just before the outbreak of the Revolution. He joined the army during the first year of the war, at the age of seventeen, and saw about one year and a half of almost constant service. He enlisted December 16, 1776, as a private in Capt. Ephraim Fitch's company, Col. Benjamin Simonds' Berkshire County Regiment, and served two months and nine days, the roll being dated at Ticonderoga February 25, 1777.|| He continued in the service in Capt. Truman Wheeler's company in that regiment,† and marched that day to Fishkill, continuing with his company during its term of service.‡ Colonel Ashley's regiment marched to the Hudson in July after the evacuation of Ticonderoga, and probably was at Bennington and with the Massachusetts forces in the Burgoyne campaign. He continued in the service in Colonel Ashley's regiment, serving in Capt. John Spoor's company, October 15 to 17, 1780, when the regiment "marched to the Northward when Forts Ann and George were taken by the enemy";§ and October 12 to 28, 1781, when the regiment "marched on the alarm to Barnes' Heaths in Stillwater."*** His name is also on a warrant to pay the same company on a roll dated March 7, 1783.**

Daniel Ashley continued to reside in Sheffield for a few years after his marriage. He lived on Taconic Mountain, the range west of Sheffield.** About 1788 he removed to what was then Stillwater, Saratoga County, N. Y. In 1791 he called himself a resident of Greenfield, N. Y., and that year sold his land in Sheffield to Ezra Fellows. He lived in that part of Greenfield which became the town of Hadley, and later Corinth. In 1801, or 1802, he removed to Martinsburgh, Lewis County, N. Y., arriving there during the first or second year of its settlement. He built a house there, and kept a country inn. The house is still standing. He was an earnest Christian, and a deacon in the Baptist church until his removal by death.

Oliver Ashley came, when a boy, with his father to the latter's old home in Sheffield, Mass., and lived there over thirty years. He then removed to Hadley (now Corinth), Saratoga County, N. Y., where his elder brother Daniel had settled, and a document in the possession of his descendants certifies that "on July 16, 1815, Oliver Ashley was a member in good standing of the Baptist Church of Christ in Hadley." It is thought that he soon after returned to Sheffield.

His eldest son had settled in Tallmadge, Ohio, and, after his marriage in 1820, he sent for his parents and sisters to come there and live with him. They joined him there in the fall of 1821, and continued to reside with him the remainder of their lives.

Mr. Ashley was engaged to some extent in farming, but defective eyesight prevented close attention to any business. "He was a gentle, kindly man, ever thoughtful of the comfort of others."

David Ashley settled in Pittsfield. He came into special prominence in the summer of 1790, when the new meeting-house was in course of erection. "The frame of the building being extremely large and cumbrous, and the mechanical appliances for managing large timbers being very imperfect, it was necessary that workmen should go, at risk of life and limb, upon elevated or exposed portions of unfixed roof and tower. The essential service was performed by David Ashley and Butler Goodrich, young men of great activity, strength and courage, and it was in this that they executed those feats which were rewarded by the town and remembered by tradition."§

David Ashley seems to have resided in Pittsfield as late as 1816, when he removed to Grafton, about eight miles southeast of Elyria, Lorain County, Ohio. He was appointed postmaster there August 20, 1825, and held that office until July 3, 1845. He was a farmer.

critical times. His only uniform consisted of a belt and powder-horn. He was present at the battle of Bennington. He used to tell of being called out suddenly in the night, and going with thirty other boys to Bennington, where they arrived before the redcoats, and had a skirmish with them. He carried a flintlock musket, which he loaded with bullets made by himself out of his mother's pewter cooking utensils. He had no knapsack, but carried his bread and ham in a basket. Among his papers* was a bill (unpaid) for twenty-five pairs of shoes for General Stark's commissary, dated in 1771, and two letters written by him in 1778, one from Pamrapo and the other from Morristown, N. He was in New York when Washington bade farewell to his generals, and again when he was inaugurated President. I have heard him often describe these two events."†

After his marriage he settled as a farmer in Bennington, Vt., and lived there some years. He then moved to the vicinity of Troy, N. Y., and from there to the neighborhood of Utica. He removed from Oneida County to Conesus, a village about thirty miles south of Rochester, and the last years of his life were passed with his sons Simeon and Isaac in that city.

64. Capt. RICHARD HENRY ASHLEY (Moses<sup>33</sup>, Moses<sup>15</sup>, David<sup>4</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 3 February 1787 in Stockbridge, Mass.; died 16 February 1856 in Canaan Four Corners, N. Y.; married ANN E. ROBINSON, daughter of James Robinson of New York City, formerly of Newport, R. I., who died 18 August 1857 in Brooklyn, N. Y., aged 64 years.

Richard Henry Ashley was graduated at Williams College in 1808. On April 14, 1809, he was appointed from Massachusetts to West Point Military Academy, and was graduated as a cadet March 1, 1811. He was that day promoted to the United States Army as Second Lieutenant of the Regiment of Artillerists, and served at Fort Wolcott, Rhode Island, in 1811 and 1812. He served in the War of 1812 on quartermaster duty and in garrison at Fort Adams, Newport, R. I. He was Captain of Staff, Assistant Deputy Quartermaster General, April 11, 1813, and First Lieutenant of the Regiment of Artillerists May 20 to December 31, 1813, and was disbanded June 15, 1815. He was reappointed in the army with the rank of Second Lieutenant of the Fifth Infantry July 30, 1817, and served in the garrison at Detroit, Mich., 1817, and on the Canada Frontier 1817-19. He resigned from the army March 10, 1819.

He returned to Stockbridge, where he lived about three years. He inherited his mother's dower farm in Lee, and owned land in Stockbridge and West Stockbridge. He sold the latter in the fall of 1822, and soon after his brother bought the Lee farm. About this time Captain Ashley came to the town of Canaan, N. Y., seeking a position as school teacher, and was employed to teach the district school. He made his home with the Warner family in the Center. A number of the citizens formed an association and erected an academy building, of which he had free use and in which he taught until about 1840. The school soon became well known through all the country round about and in more remote parts. There were young men under his instruction from Hudson, Albany and Troy, from New York City, and from Stockbridge, Pittsfield and other towns in the Berkshires. The standard of his school was considered so high that his certificate would admit a student to any of the nearby colleges without examination.

Captain Ashley was very exacting in his requirements, and only a perfect recitation would pass. He was wont to say, "If you can't think of it, then you don't know it." He was a severe disciplinarian, lenient to the earnest student, but never to the heedless and indolent. It was his delight to teach, and he would have had no vacations or Saturday holidays of his own choice. Very many young men were educated by him to fill useful places in all the professions, and in after life realized advantage from his exactness and accuracy.

About the year 1840 Captain Ashley removed his school to Canaan Four Corners, where he continued to teach until his death. He and his wife were buried in that place. The degree of A. M. was conferred on him by Union College in 1832.*

65. THOMAS ASHLEY† (Israel<sup>1</sup>, Israel<sup>2</sup>, David<sup>1</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>2</sup>), born 16 March 1788 in Westfield, Mass.; died 9 February 1870 in Westfield; married 19 December 1833 in Westfield, CELESTIA DOLLY IVES, daughter of Major Matthew and Rhoda (Root) Ives, who died 25 July 1868 in Westfield, aged 61 years.

Thomas Ashley prepared for college, but a long confinement, the result of a broken leg, prevented his entering with his class, and he abandoned the idea. He settled in his native town, and resided all his life in the old Ashley homestead on the south side of Main Street, which he inherited from his father, Doctor Ashley.

Mr. Ashley never sought public office, but was a selectman in 1831. He was plain and quiet in his way of living, and had intense dislike of all affectation; and was, in fact, too practical to suit most of his neighbors. He was a studious man and was well read in the classics; he was fond, too, of a good story, and had a large fund of anecdote. During the Civil War, he drew in all the money he could and invested it in government bonds, saying that that was the best way he knew of putting an end to the struggle. Late in life he was induced to speculate in Western lands, and some of his investments turned out badly. He left quite a large estate, his holdings in Bloomington, Ill., being given by his will to his son.

John Ashley settled in his birthplace, Ashley Falls in the town of Sheffield, where he passed his life as a gentleman farmer.

He held several offices in the town, such as surveyor of highways, constable, school committeeman, etc. He was also a colonel in the Massachusetts militia. He was a great sufferer from gout and had to be lifted in his chair in and out of his carriage when he wished to drive around his farm. He died in the prime of life.*

Colonel Ashley was buried in the old cemetery in Sheffield. His gravestone is inscribed :

William Ashley was graduated at Harvard College in 1793. He settled in his birthplace, Ashley Falls in the town of Sheffield, Mass., and by his liberality and patriotic spirit he contributed largely to build up and sustain that flourishing village. His house in Ashley Falls is still standing and is just south of the present post office. It was sold in 1890 to Mr. Alonzo R. Hurlburt.

He held large estates in ancestral lands in Sheffield and his life was mainly that of a gentleman farmer, but he was also interested in milling and manufacturing, and his many operatives and dependants shared largely in his extensive means and felt the cheering influence of his sound practical judgment. In all of his various and extended concerns he sustained a character of irreproachable integrity and uprightness. He was a justice of the peace for many years and a major in the militia.*

The following inscription to his memory is on the Ashley monument in Ashley Falls :

Eli Ashley was engaged in farming in Westfield, Mass., his native place. His house stood on Elm Street and was built by Calvin Noble about one hundred years ago.* After Mr. Ashley's death the family continued to reside there, and his youngest son inherited it and began housekeeping there. The old house was torn down five years ago.

Mrs. Ashley united with the First Congregational Church of West Springfield in 1799, and was received into the First Congregational Church of Westfield by letter on May 8, 1803.‡

He married, 2d, in December 1836 in Lyons, ABIGAIL BARRETT, daughter of Samuel Barrett, born 13 March 1809 in Deerfield, N. Y. ; died 20 April 1869 in Lyons.

Robert Williams Ashley adopted his father's profession, that of a physician. Removing in 1804 from Deerfield, his native place, he settled first in Manchester, then the village of Burt in the town of Farmington, Ontario County, N. Y. He made the journey on horseback. In 1808, soon after his marriage, he removed to what is now the village of Lyons, Wayne County, N. Y., but was then almost a wilderness in the south end of the town of Sodus. He settled in the extreme southern part of the town, where he built the second frame house in the village, and lived to see Lyons a flourishing place.

Doctor Ashley enjoyed a large practice in Lyons and the surrounding country, and was honored and respected by all. He figured prominently in town affairs, and was Supervisor of the town and held other offices. He was well educated and had a large fund of general information. He was a moral man, and temperate in all things, always living according to Solomon Willard Ashley settled in Lemington, Vt., where he took the oath of allegiance, probably at the time of the first town meeting, in 1796. He was chosen selectman and lister there on March 26, 1806. Returning to Claremont, N. H., he settled on the top of Green Mountain, in what was known as the "Cat Hole" district, then a flourishing part of the town, quite compact with dwellings and containing a school of about forty scholars. The first school was taught in the house of Peter Wakefield, the next in Mr. Ashley's house, and then a schoolhouse was erected on the line between Claremont and Newport. Mr. Ashley practiced law in his younger days, but his later years were passed on his farm in Claremont.

Y.; died 7 September 1875 at the residence of her youngest son in Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Henry Ashley came from New Hampshire to Catskill, N. Y., and engaged in the leather business in partnership with his brother Oliver, under the firm name of H. & O. P. Ashley. They owned and conducted a tannery and leather store in Catskill for many years.

Mr. Ashley was held always in high esteem for his intelligence, honesty, and spotless character. He was elected a Member of Congress from the district embracing Delaware and Greene counties in 1825, 1826 and 1827, and Judge of Greene County in 1826.

H., HETTY COOPER, daughter of Nathaniel and Mehitable (Drury) Cooper, born 8 March 1780 in Alstead; died 1 January 1849 in Fox Lake.

Daniel Ashley left his native State soon after his marriage and settled on a farm near the village of Whitesborough, Oneida County, N. Y. In 1817 he removed to Ontario County and settled in what is now the town of West Bloomfield, where he built a cotton mill and lived ten years, then moving to Nunda, Alleghany County. In the autumn of 1844 he made a journey to Michigan, with the intention of buying a tract of land near Grand Rapids. A friend of his, a Mr. Barron, then living in Wisconsin, wrote to him to come and look at that part of the country. Mr. Ashley did so that winter, and, liking it so well, bought 700 acres in the town of Fox Lake, and settled there. In the spring of 1845 he was joined by his sons Daniel and Henry, and in June by his wife, youngest daughter and son Oliver. He continued to reside in Fox Lake the remainder of his life, being engaged in farming and tanning.

While a resident of Ontario County, N. Y., Mr. Ashley held the office of Side Judge, and was elected to the Assembly on the Anti-Mason ticket in 1824. He was elected to the Assembly from Alleghany County in 1830 and 1831. He was appointed postmaster at Nunda in 1841, and held that office two years.

82. Capt. WILLIAM ASHLEY (William S.,<sup>49</sup> Martin,<sup>26</sup> Daniel,<sup>2</sup> Samuel,<sup>3</sup> David,<sup>2</sup> Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 19 September 1789 in Hartland, Vt.; died 30 March 1879 in South Royalton, Vt.; married 5 November 1815 in Hartland, LUCINDA LISCOMB, daughter of Darius and Olive (Slader) Liscomb, born 19 September 1792 in Hartland; died 20 June 1882 at the home of her oldest daughter in Sharon, Vt.

William Ashley settled in Hartland, Vt., his native town. When Western New York and Ohio were still called "out West," he sold his farm, intending to go West, but his father told him, if he would not go, he would give him $5,000 to buy another farm in Vermont. He took it, and bought a farm on the bank of the Connecticut River in Hartford, where he lived until the railroad from Windsor to White River Junction was run through his house. There was a large amount of timber on the farm, which the company wanted to use in the construction of the road, so he sold the farm to the railroad company, and on December 25, 1868, he bought a place in Tunbridge, Vt., and moved there about that time. A few years later he removed to South Royalton, Vt., where he resided at his death.

Captain Ashley was a veteran of the War of 1812. He was a farmer by occupation, and was well enough off to give each of his children a farm at the time of their marriage.*

† But not recorded there. The dates are from the family bible, now owned by his grandson Mr. Herbert E. Smith of Nashua, N. H.

John Ashley was brought in infancy by his father to Shrewsbury, Vt., and there learned the trade of a shoemaker at an early age. After his marriage he settled in Pawlet, Vt., where he worked at his trade until 1815. In the spring of that year he came to Fair Haven, Vt., and entered the employ of Mr. Joseph Sheldon as a farmer and lived in his neighborhood. He remained there until 1834, when he went to West Haven, and from there removed in a short time to Wallingford, Vt. He continued farming there until the death of his wife, in 1843, when he returned to his old home in Shrewsbury. A year or two later he removed to Albion, Mich., where he passed the remainder of his life.

Mr. Ashley was brought up in strict Congregational teachings and was a lifelong member of that church. His military career was a short one. Early in September, 1814, in response to Governor Chittenden's call, he and a number of his friends enlisted as recruits and started for Plattsburg. They had marched as far as Rutland, when news came that the battle was over. This ended his military service.*

William Ashley settled in his native place, the town of Richmond, N. Y., where he became a large land owner and prosperous farmer. He was a strong and faithful member of the Congregational church in Richmond. While he was a modest and retiring man, he was always ready to do what he thought was his duty. His life was characterized by simplicity and modesty in the community, and by gentleness and kindness in his family; and he was held in high esteem by his friends and neighbors for his absolute integrity and uprightness.

87. ALANSON SHELDON ASHLEY (William<sup>52</sup>, William<sup>2</sup>, Aaron<sup>11</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>11</sup>), born 30 October 1806 in Richmond, N. H.; died 15 May 1893 in Groton, S. Dak.

Alanson Sheldon Ashley was a farmer by occupation. After his marriage he settled in his native town, and lived there about ten years, then moving to Middlebury, Wyoming County, N. Y. In the spring of 1844 he went to Kent County, Michigan, and bought 640 acres of land in the southwest corner of Oakfield township, so named by him, bringing his family out there that fall. The country round-about was an unbroken wilderness, and his land was covered with a heavy growth of oak and hickory, which he cleared, and kept forty acres under cultivation. He lived there until 1857, when, giving this farm to his two oldest sons, he moved across the road, and as it happened the town line, into Grattan township. The place where he settled is now one of the finest farming districts in that part of Michigan. Here he made a new home, and lived for twenty-five years, until his removal to Dakota in 1881.

When the tide of emigration set from Michigan to Dakota, Mr. Ashley concluded to try his fortunes in that new Territory, intending, although seventy-five years of age, to help develop and build up the country, as he had done in Michigan. He was taken ill, however, soon after reaching Dakota, and died in April of the following year; his wish being granted, that his life should not end in a lingering sickness.

The leading characteristics of Mr. Ashley were a strong constitution, an indomitable will, and great kindness of heart. The poor always found in him a helping friend, as many now living can testify. He was converted at the age of twenty-five and united with the Baptist church in Richmond, N. Y., in October, 1831. He next belonged to the Baptist church in Middlebury, N. Y. After removing to Michigan, he united with the Baptist church in Otisco, five miles distant from his home. After a few years, a church was organized in his neighborhood, the First Baptist Church of Oakfield, of which he was considered the founder, and he contributed largely toward the erection of the church edifice in 1863. It was often called the Ashley Church in his honor, and now stands as a monument to his Christian zeal and love to mankind.

“Mr. Ashley was strongly attached to the ordinances of his church. Never seeming discouraged, he worked with untiring and fervent devotion for the Master’s cause, and his great, loving heart reached out to all his fellow beings, and he fain would have brought them all into the fold. His oft-repeated prayers, his timely words, his noble deeds are all written in the recording angel's book of life, and, although his lips are silent, he yet speaketh. He was successful in all the walks of life, and was a most affectionate husband, father, neighbor, and friend."

Y.; resides in Stemly, Ala.; married 1 November 1855 in Grand Rapids, Mich., MARY VIRGINIA SQUIER, daughter of John Wickliff and Mary (Lawrence) Squier, born 24 March 1835 in Penn Yan, N. Y.

William Ashley at the age of eighteen accompanied his father to Michigan. He is a lawyer by profession, having been admitted to the bar September 23, 1853. He began practice in Canandaigua, N. Y., but in 1855 returned to Michigan and located in Grand Rapids, where he continued in practice until 1882. He was entirely occupied with patent practice in the United States Courts for the thirteen years preceding 1880, and during that time had nearly four hundred cases in the districts of Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Colorado. The climate of Michigan did not agree with him, and in 1882 he ceased practice there and removed to the mountains of Alabama.

In October, 1895, Mr. Ashley became manager of the Tonawanda Tripoli Company, which had purchased 175 acres near Stemly, Talladega County, Ala. Under his management the mines have been successfully worked and the product forwarded to the company's extensive factory at Tonawanda, N. Y. Tripoli is used for polishing purposes, but is used mainly by the company in the manufacture of their "Rosetta Soap," a household article possessing great scouring and polishing properties. Mr. Ashley is constantly adding improvements at the mines, and so great confidence has the company in his judgment that he is trusted absolutely in all matters and is supplied each week with funds to meet all obligations. Mr. Ashley has built a residence near the mines and resides there at present.

91. HON. CHESTER ASHLEY (William<sup>63</sup>, Stephen<sup>30</sup>, Joseph<sup>12</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 1 June 1791* in Amherst, Mass., died 29 April 1848 in Washington, D. C.; married 4 July 1821 in Ste. Genevieve, Mo., MARY WORTHINGTON WATKINS ELLIOTT, daughter of Dr. Benjamin+ and Frances (Panea) Elliott, born in March 1798 just across the James River from Richmond, Va.; died 25 May 1865 in Little Rock, Ark.

Chester Ashley passed his boyhood at his father's home in Hudson, N. Y. He pursued a course of study there, and entered the Sophomore class in Williams College in 1810. He held a respectable position as a scholar, and had one of the first appointments at his graduation in 1813. The following year‡ he read law in the celebrated school of Judges Reeve and Gould in Litchfield, Conn., and then returned to Hudson, where he completed his legal studies in the office of Hon. Elisha Williams and was admitted to the bar.

§ "At the age of twenty-seven he went to the West to seek his fortune, and opened a law office in Edwardsville, Ill., where he remained about two years in the practice of his profession. In 1819 he changed his location to the territory of Missouri. Here he came in contact with the celebrated William Russell, the greatest land speculator in the western country, who recognized the abilities of the young lawyer, who argued and gained an important land suit for his adversary. Russell had very large landed interests in the Territory of Arkansas and elsewhere, and wanted those interests represented and protected by the best talent he could command. This led to the relation of client and attorney between him and Mr. Ashley, and to the latter's removal to Little Rock in 1820."

"Mr. Ashley was soon engaged in most of the important land litigation in the Territory, and was acknowledged by common consent to be the ablest lawyer in the jurisdiction, and this at a period when Arkansas was represented by an able bar."

* By his own family bible.

+ Of the Killingworth, Conn., family and a descendant of John Eliot, the celebrated apostle to the Indians.

‡ It must be that he was the Chester Ashley (residence not stated) who served in the War of 1812 as a private in Capt. Spencer Lyon's company from Aug. 9 to Aug. 23, 1814. [See "Record of Connecticut Men in the War of 1812."]

§ The compiler is indebted to "Biographical and Pictorial History of Arkansas."

“ Robert Crittenden, who had come in 1819 as secretary of the Territory by appointment from President Monroe, was a brilliant orator, and intensely ambitious; and mutual admiration and professional interests soon united him and Mr. Ashley in the business relation of law partners. This relation was destined to be of short duration, however. Crittenden soon became absorbed in the exciting politics of the day, and nursed his ambition for office with an idolatry that admitted of little restraint within the limits of perfect probity. Ashley had the same lofty ambition, but he held it in perfect subjection at this stage of his career. He was methodical, laborious and patient in the minutest detail of every undertaking. Necessity had taught him her inexorable laws, her imperious restraint; and prudence and wisdom had placed their seal on his nature and made him perfect master of his passions. In the beginning he subordinated his inclination for office, that his talents might be employed in the acquisition of pecuniary resources necessary to support the flight marked out by his ambition. Crittenden cared nothing for wealth and underestimated its efficiency as a factor in promoting his ambition. Talent leading to and expanding in such opposite directions was too frail a bond of union to continue this business relation long. Crittenden became an ardent, impulsive Whig; Ashley a cool, patient, wary, self-possessed Democrat. Crittenden was led by the fiery eloquence and impetuosity of his own dauntless nature; Ashley by the greater brain power and the cool precision of mathematical calculation from which nothing ever impelled him to deviate. The distinguishing traits in the character of the two men are powerful factors in their respective spheres, but the ends they promote are widely different; the one flashes like a meteoric apparition and is seen no more; the other leisurely ascends to the meridian and burns with the fixed steadiness of the sun.”

“ Colonel Ashley was a skillful gladiator in the forensic arena. Often when his adversary thought he had him crippled beyond recovery he would, with the greatest facility, seize on some unguarded point and drive him to dismay and defeat. His intellect was of massive and well balanced proportions, and it shone with equal splendor in the social circle, the council, the forum or the senate. There was no aristocratic hauteur about him, but there was a lofty bearing and dignity which commanded respect in every presence. When his mind was lighted up in discussion his countenance became radiant with conscious power, and his auditory was carried along with the genius of his inspiration."

"Colonel Ashley was the acknowledged head of the bar as long as he remained in active practice. He was always an active Democratic politician, but he never left the ranks to seek or accept office until he had accomplished all his professional ambition had marked out in early life, and then he sprang from the ranks into the Senate of the United States, without filling any intermediate station. Few men have ever so long held the reins of party in hand whilst serving in the ranks. None but a great genius can do it. The active opposition always held him responsible for the acts of the Democratic party. He was the power behind the throne that directed all of its movements. In the twenty-five years preceding the close of his professional career, in 1844, he had achieved fortune and fame. His fame crossed the boundaries of his adopted State and echoed, not only throughout his native New England, where his name with that of many other of her pilgrim sons is blessed, but it compassed the United States."

"To the great political contest of 1844 he devoted his masterly energies in the field as a Democratic elector for the State at large and canvassed the entire State. The Whig party matched him with Alfred W. Arrington, who was not inferior as an orator to any man known to our history. But Arrington did not follow him long. He quit the canvass and left the State, assigning as a reason for it that Colonel Ashley's masterly discussion and unanswerable argument on the tariff issue convinced him that the Whig party was wrong. This was the tribute of genius to transcendent talent under very extraordinary circumstances. And it was not the only compliment paid to his abilities by great opponents under similar circumstances. After Arrington abandoned the contest the Whig party was sorely pressed for men to meet him on the stump."

"The amiable and estimable Fulton died in August, 1844, leaving two years of his senatorial term unexpired. All eyes were turned to Colonel Ashley as his successor, and when the legislature met in November of that year he was elected without organized opposition, and almost unanimously. He took his seat in March, 1845, with the incoming administration of President Polk. That able lawyer and accomplished scholar, George W. Dallas, Vice-President of the United States, in organizing the committees of the senate, placed the new Senator from Arkansas at the head of the Judiciary Committee. No higher position could have been assigned him."

"The new senator first addressed the Senate on the bill for the annexation of Texas. Colonel Ashley's embarrassment wore away as he advanced with his great subject, and his face lighted up with a halo which nothing can inspire and sustain but mental power. A greater theme than the annexation of a kindred empire could scarcely engage the attention of a statesman. The matchless reasoning of the profound lawyer was then tributary and subsidiary to the higher compass of the statesman's comprehensive grasp."

"In 1846 there was strongly organized opposition to his reelection to the Senate, which involved a protracted and exciting contest. For his success in that instance he was not less indebted to his own strong will, his habits of industry, his energy and admitted ability, than to the ardent devotion of friends."

"Colonel Ashley continued chairman of the Judiciary Committee until his death, which occurred after an illness of six days, at his apartments in the National Hotel in Washington, his wife, daughter and youngest son being at his side. Mr. White of New York and Robert W. Johnson of Arkansas pronounced eloquent funeral orations in the House, and Solon Borland, the successor of Sevier, and Sidney Breese of Illinois performed the same office in the Senate."*

"Knowing him as I did, Mr. President, I may be permitted to say that to every task to which he was called, he brought to its accomplishment untiring industry, great research, and an unflagging zeal seldom surpassed. His talents were of no common order, and he was never found unprepared upon any subject committed to his charge: and with six years service still before him, who knows to what high honors he might have attained? The character of his mind was investigating; and, aided by a pleasing manner, always courteous and sometimes energetic, he was enabled to make his views well understood by the Senate and to produce a marked effect upon its deliberations. As a public man, sir, he was valuable, and gave certain promise of great usefulness and high distinction.

In his disposition, the deceased was eminently social, his suavity of manner—his unruffled temper—his freedom from irritation by all those little annoyances that disturb the pathway of our lives, was a subject of common remark to those who were intimately associated with him. But it was in the family circle he shone most conspicuous, as a husband—as a father—as one connected with those delicate relations of life in which humanity is exhibited in its most captivating form. In all of these, sir, he was a model and an example, lavishing all the tenderness of his nature upon those dear objects of his love, who returned it with the most sincere and devoted affection, and to whom it was permitted to receive his last sigh at that dread moment which must come upon us all. How terrible is this blow to them, who but a few days ago were all joy and gladness, now sobbing in anguish over his inanimate remains, conscious—painfully conscious—they are never more to feel the pulsations of that heart which beat alone in love for them; and as they take their lonely way back to their home, how agonizing will be the thought that they have parted forever with the idol of their hearts—their protector—their father—their dearest friend—and that his place at their once happy board is to be vacant forever!"*

"He was no common man. The god of nature lavished on him a profusion of gifts. To a personal appearance peculiarly dignified and commanding was superadded an intellect of the very highest order, capable of vast comprehensions, and the most minute and accurate analysis, trained by a thorough course of classical and legal study, to which may be added manners the most gentle, and conversational powers the most fascinating. It was not left optional with such a man as to whether he would become a popular leader or not. It could not be otherwise. During the long period of our intimate acquaintance I never heard from him a harsh word, or saw him with ruffled temper. If one great trait was more conspicuous in his nature than all others it was found in the hallowed endearments of the domestic relations, where it shone with a devotion rarely equaled, never surpassed."†

"Woodruff and Ashley sustained and ennobled the relation of Damon and Pythias for twenty-eight years. During that long transition period when Arkansas was struggling and gradually rising up out of the baneful influences which shadowed her early history and wrote many of its pages in blood, these two men, with many other noble coadjutors, struggled with Spartan firmness to advance the highest interests of the people. In that great labor they became historic characters, and their fame is the State's heritage. Will the generous and noble Arkansas of to-day, who owes so much to these, her sons, build a monument to them worthy of their achievements for her civilization and fame? Their names ought to be written on the dome of her Pantheon. Poor indeed must be the State which, to save a few dollars, will deny an appropriation to honor the sons who made her great. It would cost but little to place a statue of each of these men in the capitol grounds."*

"My grandfather was a man of tall, commanding appearance, with a fine large head, and magnificent presence. When he was a member of the Senate, N. P. Willis said of him, 'that he was the handsomest man in the Senate, perhaps in the world.' A great deal of that effect was produced by his tout ensemble, height, bearing and manners. He was quite near-sighted, and the light necessary to taking a picture in those days gave his eyes an unnaturally contracted appearance, consequently there is no portrait which gives a correct idea of him."†

"On the south side of Markham Street, and standing back some distance from the street, was a very large two-story brick mansion, built after the colonial style of architecture, with high brick columns supporting the long portico which extended the full length of the building from east to west. This splendid residence, with its trimly kept gardens, its conservatories and hot-houses; its servants quarters, stables, carriage-houses and other buildings, which occupied the entire block between Markham and Cherry (2nd) Streets, and Scott and Cumberland Streets, at once marked its owner, Col. Chester Ashley, as a man of wealth and elegance. This old time seat of refinement and hospitality has witnessed the evolution from village to town, and from town to city. During the occupation of the town by the Federal forces in 1863, it became the headquarters of the commanding general, and was in turn used for real estate offices, telegraph offices and various other purposes. During Territorial times, and the early days of the States, this old manor house was the political mecca of pilgrims of the Democratic faith, who sought wisdom and guidance at the feet of the owner of the house."

Y., aged 49 years. He married, 2d, 8 September 1850 in Plainfield, Ill., Mrs. PHEBE (PRATT) SNYDER, widow of William Snyder, and daughter of Amos and Diantha (Rockwell) Pratt, born 3 October 1809 in Cornwall, Vt.; died 20 December 1856 in Plainfield.

Otis Ashley was brought about the age of six years by his father to Martinsburgh, N. Y. When quite a young man, he went to live with his sister in Mendon, in what was then called the Genesee Country. While there, he was drafted for the army in the War of 1812 and sent to Canada. Peace was declared soon after, and he returned to Mendon, but an attack of fever and ague caused him to go home to Martinsburgh.

After his marriage he settled on a piece of new land, built a log house and began clearing his farm. He was a man of great energy and will, and after fifteen years of hard work was able to pay for his land. During that time, he was commissioned Major of the local militia regiment. He also served one term as supervisor of the town.

In 1839 Mr. Ashley sold his farm and emigrated to Illinois, and bought a farm in the town of Plainfield, Will County. He lived there one year and nine months, then sold it and returned to New York, settling in Rutland, Jefferson County, in the spring of 1841. After the death of his wife, in 1845, he went back to Plainfield, where he married again and lived until the spring of 1871. At that time he went out to California and lived a year with his son. He returned to Pontiac, Ill., where he died the following fall.

105. CYRUS ASHLEY (Daniel<sup>37</sup>, Oliver<sup>32</sup>, David<sup>14</sup>, David<sup>8</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 22 December 1797 in Corinth, N. Y.; died 25 January 1875 in Plainfield.

Cyrus Ashley came in childhood with his father to Martinsburgh, N. Y., and after his marriage settled on a farm in that town. He was an energetic farmer, and became a man of influence.

In the summer of 1835, leaving his family in Martinsburgh, he made a tour through Northern Ohio, for the purpose of choosing a Western home. The following summer he set out to visit Illinois, going by sail boat from Sackett's Harbor, and arriving at Chicago after a twenty-one days' sail. He then went by stage to Plainfield, on the Dupage River. This place he ever felt was the greenest spot, the deepest soil, and the home of his choice. He selected farm land and village property there, placing his claim in the land office in Chicago, though the land was not yet in the market. He returned to New York, filled with Western enthusiasm. Influenced by what he said of Illinois, his brother Riley and others decided to go West with him. The company left Martinsburgh May 9, 1837, in five well equipped emigrant wagons, and, going through Western New York, Canada, Michigan, over the old "Indian Trail" through Indiana, arrived in Plainfield June 9th, having made the journey in four weeks.

In 1855 Mr. Ashley's pioneer spirit was again aroused, and that fall he crossed the Mississippi River, determined to learn the merits of the State of Iowa. He was delighted with Cedar Falls, a new town on the beautiful Cedar River, one hundred miles west of Dubuque. He purchased a large and fine tract of land adjacent to the young but enterprising village. In February, 1857, he brought a load of goods there by sleigh, crossing the Mississippi on the ice; returning a distance of two hundred and fifty miles on horseback, riding one horse and leading the other. Three weeks later he moved his family to Cedar Falls, arriving there March 11th, two years in advance of the railroad. The above hard winter's work was accomplished in his sixtieth year.

In Cedar Falls Mr. Ashley was a leading spirit. He organized a Baptist church and secured a minister. He lived there twelve years, when he returned with his wife and eldest daughter to Plainfield. For four weeks, the winter that he was eighty years of age, he harnessed his horse and drove the minister to revival meetings at the schoolhouses in the country round-about. Later, he was enfeebled by asthma, but, three days before his death, he attended the communion services and addressed the congregation with the words, "My work is done, but I love every one of you."

"Cyrus Ashley has served as deacon of the Baptist Church sixty years and he has been regarded on all hands as preëminently a model deacon. Indeed in every way he was a man of rare excellence. His judgment was the very best, his life thoroughly upright, his piety deep, and his power in prayer mighty. While he was unswerving in his adherence to the right, his spirit was kind, and he excelled as a peacemaker."*

Riley Boardman Ashley was brought in infancy by his father to Martinsburgh, N. Y. He settled there after his marriage, was made pastor of the Baptist church there, and became quite a widely known preacher throughout Northern New York. In May, 1837, he emigrated with his brother Cyrus and others to Plainfield, Will County, Ill., and became pastor of the Baptist church in that place. He traveled extensively through the northern part of Illinois and also in Wisconsin, organizing Baptist churches in many places. He has been known to travel twenty miles through floods to preach to one church he organized. He was one of the first preachers in Chicago, and was well liked there. He received a salary of $400 a year, of which he contributed $100 towards the expenses of the church. Mr. Ashley was the owner of several farms, which he rented out. He died while still officiating as pastor in Plainfield.

107. ANSON ASHLEY (Oliver<sup>55</sup>, Oliver<sup>32</sup>, David<sup>14</sup>, David<sup>9</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>4</sup>), born 27 March 1795 in Sheffield, Mass. ; died 5 July 1870 in Tallmadge, Ohio ; married 10 March 1820 in Tallmadge, MIRANDA FENN, daughter of Peck and Urania (Durand) Fenn, born 1 January 1798 in Orange, Conn. ; died 27 August 1889 in Tallmadge.

Anson Ashley left home when a boy of ten, and from that time took care of himself. Emigrating to Ohio, he settled in the town of Tallmadge, where he made his home the rest of his life. After his marriage he bought a house, and sent for his parents and invalid sister to come out there and live with him. They did so, and were cared for and dependent on him as long as they lived.

Mr. Ashley was a man of great energy. He was a thorough business man, and so exact in his accounts that at the annual settlement the merchants would take his figures instead of going over the itemized bills. He had few educational advantages in his youth, but he had a good mind and was fond of reading. He especially enjoyed reading history and biography, and kept himself well informed on all important questions and events of the day. He was a Whig until the birth of the Republican party, which he joined and heartily supported. During the Civil War, he kept an atlas on his desk, and, so far as was possible, followed the course of the different battles, and rejoiced in the success of the Union arms.

Mr. Ashley held at different times offices of trust, such as justice of the peace, treasurer of benevolent societies, etc.

Y., MARY VAN PELT, daughter of John and Sarah (Pratt) Van Pelt of Penn Yan, who died 8 January 1883 at the home of her daughter in Dysart, Iowa, aged 94 years.

Andrus Ashley learned the trade of a blacksmith in an edge tool factory in Ballston Spa, N. Y. After his marriage he settled in Penn Yan, N. Y., and lived on Van Pelt Hill for about four years. He then moved to Sulphur Springs, near Canandaigua, N. Y., returning to Penn Yan early in 1827. About 1842 he removed to West Middlesex, Pa., where he bought a farm of one hundred acres, well situated and abounding in fruit trees. While there, he was occupied mostly with his trade, although for a short time he was engineer of a glass furnace. The town becoming cut up by mines, he became dissatisfied, sold his farm, and in 1856 emigrated to Mount Carroll, Ill. ; from which place he removed the following year to Plum River, Ill. He bought eighty acres of land in Plum River and lived there the rest of his life. He was elected president of the village the fall preceding his death.

J. ; died 28 September 1879 in Port Republic.

Ralph Ashley was brought in infancy by his father to Hampton, N. Y., and spent his early youth on the farm there. At the age of twenty-five he went to Port Republic (then Blackman's Mills), N. J., and entered the general store of his uncle David Noble. The firm became Noble & Ashley, and Mr. Ashley succeeded to the business at his uncle's death. He and his brother Rollin formed a partnership under the firm name of R. & R. T. Ashley and conducted a store for a number of years, and, after the firm was dissolved, about 1833, Mr. Ashley continued the business until about 1848. He was also interested in ship building, the marketing of wood and charcoal to New York City, and farming.

Rollin Taylor Ashley was born in Hampton, N. Y., on a farm on the west bank of the Poultney River, and nearly opposite the village of Fairhaven, Vt. Removing to Atlantic (then Gloucester) County, N. J., he taught school in the winter of 1826-27 at Bass River, in Burlington County. He then formed a copartnership with his brother Ralph in the mercantile business at Blackman's Mills, now Port Republic, Atlantic County. In the spring of 1831 he removed to Brooklyn, Susquehanna County, Pa., where he succeeded his uncle James Noble in the mercantile business, his partnership with his brother Ralph still continuing for two or three years after his location in Brooklyn. He continued in trade for more than fifty years, occasionally engaging in the purchase of live stock for Eastern markets, in connection with his mercantile business.

Mr. Ashley was widely known as an active and influential * Joseph Ralph Ashley removed in August, 1854, to Louisville, Scott Co., Minn., where he was associated with his eldest brother in farming and mercantile business until the panic of 1858. He was appointed a justice of the peace in 1856, and held that office until November, 1860, when he was elected county auditor. In August, 1862, in connection with the late Hon. H. B. Strait, he raised Company I, Ninth Regiment Minnesota Infantry, Mr. Strait being chosen captain and Mr. Ashley first-lieutenant of the company. He served with this regiment, first against the Indians on the Minnesota frontier, and afterwards in Missouri, Tennessee and Mississippi, until, his health having failed, he was discharged on a surgeon's certificate of disability at the close of the year 1864. After the war, he was for a time connected with the quartermaster's service at Harrisburg, Pa., but, after a few months, he received an appointment in the office of the Third Auditor of the Treasury, where, as the head of a section, he was employed at the time of his death.

† George Kennard Ashley, beginning in 1861, was for many years employed in the United States Railway Postal Service. Subsequently, he was engaged in collating for publication portions of the statistics collected under the Tenth Census. In 1890 he was appointed Supervisor of Census for the Fifth Census District of the State of Pennsylvania, a district in which the labors of the supervisor were rendered extremely difficult and arduous by reason of the heterogeneous character of the population. He is unmarried, and resides in Washington, D. C.

Pa., DEBORAH HICKOCK, daughter of Stephen and Phebe (Rich) Hickock, born 3 November 1801 in Pittsford, Vt.; died 13 January 1876 in Sullivan.

Forest Ashley, when quite a small boy, came with his parents to the vicinity of Troy, Bradford County, Pa. At the age of fourteen he went from home to work and engaged with a Mr. Pierson residing near the present village of Nanvoo, Tioga County, Pa. While there, the wife of his employer, later known as "Lydia Jane Pierson," the writer and poetess, befriended him, and in after years dedicated to him two volumes of poems, entitled "Forest Leaves" and "Forest Minstrels."

In the year 1827 he married, and soon after began the work of clearing a farm in the woods near the present borough of Mainesburgh, Sullivan township, Pa. To make this new home required many years of hard toil and privation. There were few roads, little or no money to be had; the nearest gristmill was twelve miles distant, and accessible only on foot or on horseback; and in case of sickness a physician was beyond reach. The wool carding and weaving were done by hand; all the lumber for building purposes was hewed out, and the necessary household furniture was generally made on the spot. The destruction of cattle by wild beasts was of frequent occurrence, and the people were obliged to be in doors at night. On the other hand, game was abundant, and fresh meat and fish were always obtainable.

Mrs. Ashley used to relate that one day a beautiful deer, closely pursued by dogs, ran into the house and at once cuddled down in the corner near her, where it remained perfectly content until all danger had passed, when she let it out. A different experience came, however, when once she and two small children were left alone while Mr. Ashley was absent two days, procuring a door and window for the house. A quilt answered for a door, and during the night the wolves came and looked under the quilt, but were frightened away by the big fire within, where Mrs. Ashley stood sentinel all night long with a supply of burning fagots. The orchards, however, grew slowly, and it was a long time before these pioneers could enjoy the luxury of having fruit.

The coming of the post office, the construction of a State road past his door, and, later, the railroad up the Tioga Valley, in the 'thirties, and the opening of coal mines at Blossburgh ten miles distant, were events of the utmost importance and soon placed them in the midst of excellent markets. At this time there came many people from New England, and the forests were soon replaced by beautiful farms.

Mr. Ashley was a man of vigorous make up and carried through an undertaking with great energy. In later years he engaged in lumbering farther west in the same State. His word was as good as his note, and, although not a professing Christian until late in life, he held Christians in high esteem and always manifested a deep reverence for the house of worship. Once, he engaged a neighbor to supply him with an ox-yoke, and when it was delivered it contained a knot hole. On being told it would not answer, the man remarked that it was not his fault, as God had made the tree. His stern reply was, "Mr. ———, God never made an ox-yoke with a knot-hole in it."

Mr. Ashley was buried near Mainesburgh. He and his wife were members of the Freewill Baptist Church. His youngest son now owns and occupies his homestead and farm one and one-half miles from the village of Mainesburgh.*

117. SIMEON ASHLEY (Thomas<sup>62</sup>, Simeon<sup>34</sup>, David<sup>14</sup>, David<sup>4</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born ———— 1786 in ————, ————; died 8 October 1871, aged 85 years, in Rochester, N. Y.; married about 1826, DIADAMIA PEET, daughter of ? Lucius Peet, born ———— 1803 near Middlebury, Vt.; died ———— 1831 in Rochester.

Simeon Ashley left his father's home in Conesus, N. Y., soon after his marriage, and settled in Chili, a small village near Rochester, N. Y. He had studied law in the office of a lawyer in Canandaigua, N. Y., and previously, about 1821, had been for a time a student in the same office as Millard Fillmore. Mr. Ashley's purpose was to continue in practice in Chili, but his health failed, and he gave up his profession. He next studied medicine, and for many years was the only physician called by any of his family and by many others, but he never received fees or pretended to be in practice.

Mr. Ashley and his brother Isaac moved to Rochester about 1828, and together kept a hotel there until 1849, although the former had other business interests during that time. He gave up business in 1849, and from that time until his death, with the exception of a year spent with his son Seymour in New York City, lived with his brother Isaac at the Clinton House in Rochester.

Isaac Ashley came to Rochester, N. Y., about 1828, and in company with his brother Simeon kept a hotel there until 1849, when Simeon retired. Mr. Ashley continued in the hotel business and conducted the Clinton House in that city for many years. After his retirement from business, he bought a house on Alexander Street, where he passed the rest of his life.

1873 in Brushy Prairie, Ind.; married, 1st, 3 October 1839 in ? Canaan, N. Y., HELEN ELIZABETH JEFFERDS, born 12 March 1819 in Canaan, Conn.; died 3 January 1854 in Brushy Prairie. He married, 2d, 2 June 1854, Mrs. MARY (DOUGLAS) LONG, who resides with a daughter by her former marriage in Lansing, Mich.*

Robert Ashley emigrated from his birthplace with other Sheffield people to Kalamazoo, Mich., and was one of its first settlers. He went from there to White Pigeon, and then returned to Sheffield. In October, 1833, he went to Indiana and spent the following winter with his cousin John B. Clark, who was the first settler in Springfield township, La Grange County. He came there again in the winter of 1836-37, and purchased of the Government the eighty acres of land on which he settled twelve years later. Immediately after his marriage he and his wife started for this farm, but, stopping on their way to Indiana to visit his nephew Edmond Ashley at East Bloomfield, N. Y., they were persuaded by the latter to settle in the village of Honeoye in that county. He there engaged in the foundry and tinning business, having formerly worked at the latter trade, and continued in it until the spring of 1849, when he sold out and removed to his farm in Brushy Prairie, Springfield township, Ind. He was there engaged in farming until his death, his farm now being carried on by his two sons.

Mr. Ashley was a man of sterling integrity. He was an independent thinker and quite a mechanical genius. Although of industrious and economical habits, he had no desire to accumulate property for the sake of hoarding it; and his chief amusement was hunting with a dog and gun, at which he was fairly successful. He was a lover of fine fruit and made horticulture a study, having the best collection of fruit trees of any orchard in the county. He was the pioneer grape culturist of the county, and for several years took first premiums. In public and social life Mr. Ashley displayed a retiring nature. In politics he was not a partisan, but, true to his convictions, voted the Republican ticket.

S. service as a private of Company A, First Regiment Heavy Artillery (Twenty-first Indiana Veteran Volunteers), at Indianapolis, Ind., March 12, 1864. His regiment was on garrison duty, and had no opportunity for more active service. He was present for all duty required of his company from April 18, 1864, until his honorable discharge at Baton Rouge, La., April 15, 1866.

Since the war, Mr. Ashley's occupation has been school teaching, book canvassing, and, principally, farming. The latter is his present occupation, and he lives with his brother on their father's homestead. He has held the office of justice of the peace of Springfield township three terms of four years each, receiving his last two elections by the unanimous vote of the township, although he had always been an independent and outspoken Republican. He served as Census enumerator of his township for the last Census. He is also usually chosen a trustee or secretary of all business, literary, and public exercises and entertainments in his neighborhood. He is a free and liberal thinker on questions of religion, and is not connected with any church. In April, 1884, he became a member of J. H. Dansuer Post, No. 104, Department of Indiana, G. A. R. He visited the Centennial at Philadelphia and was present at Independence Square on July 4, 1876. He also attended the 27th National Encampment of the G. A. R. at Indianapolis Sept. 4 to 7, 1893, and took part in the various exercises on that occasion. Mr. Ashley resides in Brushy Prairie, Ind., and is unmarried.

ASHLEY HOMESTEAD, FORT ANN, N. Y.

died 31 October 1859 in Fort Ann; married, 1st, 8 July 1817 in Fort Ann, MELINDA MASON, daughter of Shubael and Anna (———) Mason, who died 1 March 1819 in Fort Ann, aged 22 years. He married, 2d, 21 June 1821 in Fort Ann, NANCY NIMS, daughter of Rufus and Lueretia (Cook) Nims, born 29 November 1802 in Fort Ann; died 31 March 1871 in Fort Ann.

James Ashley settled in Fort Ann, Washington County, N. Y., his native place. He inherited his father's homestead farm there and on it built the house, a picture of which is on the opposite page, in which he passed his life. The homestead was burned in January, 1896.

Mr. Ashley's life was a quiet yet busy one. He was engaged in farming in Fort Ann, and owned timber lands in different parts of the State. The transportation of the timber was done by hired men under his supervision and, later, that of his oldest son. He was an enterprising man and accumulated a competency for those times. He died respected and lamented by his fellow townsmen as a just and upright man.

Joseph Ashley was engaged in farming all his life. He left Fort Ann, his native town, in 1838, and went to North-east, Chautauqua County, N. Y. He lived there a year or two, and moved to Harbor Creek, Pa., and a few years later to Wesleyville, Pa. He lived there about five years, going in 1852 to Erie, Pa. In 1857 he removed to Kingsville, Ashtabula County, Ohio, where he remained until the death of his wife, in July, 1863. The rest of his life was passed in the homes of his children, and he died at that of his son Jerome in Battle Creek, Mich. Mr. Ashley had always retained the ownership of his homestead in Kingsville, Ohio, and his remains were taken there and interred beside his wife.

Denison Ashley used to tell of carrying milk, when he was a boy, to the soldiers encamped near his home in Fort Ann, during the War of 1812. He settled on a farm in his native town, and lived there the first six years after his marriage. Early in the summer of 1832 he removed to Freedom, Cattaraugus County, N. Y. The country was sparsely settled and there was only a log house on his farm. Here he resided the remainder of his life, chiefly occupied in the development of his farm, which, before his death, he had brought to a high state of cultivation.

Mr. Ashley was a leading citizen of the town and a justice of the peace for many years. He was colonel of the militia regiment in his county, and his appearance on the annual training day is described as follows: "My father was as straight and had as square shoulders as if he had been drilled in a military school. Dressed in his blue coat with gilt buttons and gold fringed epaulets, his red sash, and his sword at his side, he made a fine-looking soldier."* He and his wife were among the most earnest supporters of the Baptist church in the neighboring village of Sandusky, and he was one of its most efficient deacons.

Josiah Dwight Ashley settled in his native place. He contracted for and built a section of the New Haven and Northampton Railroad near Westfield. He was not engaged actively in any business, however. His wife was a woman of means, which, with his own property, enabled him to live leisurely. He sold the place which had been his father's, and bought a brick house on Franklin Street, where he carried on farming on a small scale and passed the remainder of his life.

131. JONATHAN ASHLEY (Thomas W.<sup>72</sup>, Elihu<sup>43</sup>, Jonathan<sup>21</sup>, Jonathan<sup>7</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 7 May 1816 in Deerfield, Mass.; died 8 September 1895 in Deerfield; married 9 October 1844 in Whately, Mass.,* MARY SMITH, daughter of Asa and Judith (Graves) Smith, and sister of Eliza Smith who married his brother Joshua C. Ashley, born 20 December 1817 in Whately; resides in Deerfield with her nephew Charles H. Ashley.

Jonathan Ashley received his education at the public schools and academy in his native town. With the exception of two years spent in the West, his whole life was passed on the old homestead of his great-grandfather Rev. Jonathan Ashley. After the death of his father, he and his brother Thomas redeemed the farm from debt, in the face of seemingly insurmountable difficulties. Shortly afterward he bought his brothers' interests, and, by hard work and frugality, held all the old land and made important additions to it. He built a new and more convenient house, using the old original one, still in a good state of preservation, as a tobacco warehouse.

Jonathan Ashley

In February, 1881, his nephew Charles H. Ashley (234), who had lived with him since he was fifteen, became associated with him in farming, and their united efforts made the farm one of the largest in the town.

Mr. Ashley in his prime was one of the "river gods" in influence, and was characterized by that sturdy frugality which marked the early settlers. He was an orthodox farmer in every sense of the word, and was held in the highest respect in the town and community. Of a retiring nature, he avoided all public positions, but was prevailed upon in 1879 to act as a selectman of the town for two years, positively refusing a third nomination. Ever wishing to help the poor and needy, he lost thousands of dollars through his readiness to assist others when in trouble. It could truthfully be said of him that his word was as good as his bond. He spent the last four years of his life in retirement from active business, and at his death his nephew Charles H. Ashley inherited all his property.

He married, 2d, 15 August 1849 in Chicopee, Mass., ELIZA SMITH, daughter of Asa and Judith (Graves) Smith, and sister of Mary Smith who married his brother Jonathan Ashley, born 12 January 1814 in Brookfield, Vt.

Joshua Crosby Ashley settled on a farm in his native place and lived there until 1854. That year he, with his brother Thomas and other Deerfield people, emigrated to Chicaw County, Iowa, and settled in a township which they named Deerfield in memory of their old Massachusetts home. He at present resides on his farm in that place.

133. THOMAS WILLIAMS ASHLEY (Thomas W.<sup>72</sup>, Elihu<sup>43</sup>, Jonathan<sup>21</sup>, Jonathan<sup>7</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 18 January 1822 in Deerfield, Mass. ; died 28 January 1888 in Deerfield, Iowa ; married, 1st, 9 October 1844 in Bernardstown, Mass., MARIETTA HOYT, daughter of Theodore Barnard and Sophia (Whipple) Hoyt, born 4 September 1824 in Bernardstown ; died 18 August 1849 in Deerfield, Mass. He married, 2d, 13 November 1851 in Greenfield, Mass., LUCINDA HINSDALE LARRABEE, daughter of Hart and Fannie (Hinsdale) Larrabee, born 7 June 1822 in Greenfield ; died 17 February 1870 in Deerfield, Iowa.

Thomas Williams Ashley received his education in the schools of his native town and at Power's Institute in Bernardstown, Mass. He resided in Deerfield until 1854, when, with other Deerfield people, he removed to Iowa and settled in a township in Chickasaw County which they named Deerfield in honor of their Massachusetts home.

The country being new, and land cheap, Mr. Ashley made the mistake, like so many others of the early settlers, of buying all the land he could. Consequently, the cheapness of grain and the distance from market (80 miles) made it uphill work farming ; and, after a few severe winters and a crop famine, he found himself with land enough for a small colony, for which there was no sale, or profit in tilling. He continued farming there, however, and lived there the rest of his life, only once, in 1875, revisiting his birthplace.

Y.; resides in Lyons.

William Frederick Ashley settled in his native town and lived there all his life. After his marriage he went to live in the home in which he died, on William Street immediately north of the schoolhouse. He held several responsible positions, including postmaster, canal superintendent, and offices given to him by the citizens of the town and village. He was one of the best liked, best known, and most exemplary citizens of the village. He was a man unostentatious in manner and kind in heart, who bore no ill will towards his fellow men, and cared more for peace and comfort than for any of the pleasures obtained by strife and bickering. The sincerity of his friendship was one of Mr. Ashley's strong characteristics, and he consulted his friends' wishes as he would his own.

In politics Mr. Ashley was a brave, cautious partisan, never deviating from the Democratic chart, nor neglecting his party's compass. His positions were thoughtfully taken and boldly defended. He was never surprised or deluded. For many years he was looked upon as the most intelligent political prophet in Wayne County.

Mr. Ashley's death was due to old age, but to the last he maintained his faculties and was a most intelligent conversationalist, especially upon subjects relating to the past history of Lyons.

James Rumsey Ashley entered a general store in East Bethany, N. Y., as a clerk in May, 1850. In October, 1854, he engaged in the dry goods business in Dixon, Ill., and remained there nearly five years, removing in September, 1859, to Morrison, Ill., where he continued in the same business until 1875. In 1876 he removed to Emerson, Iowa, where he accepted a position as bookkeeper in a general store. He came to Prescott, Ariz., his present residence, in October, 1883, since which time he has been connected with a general store there, having been accountant since September, 1888.

Mr. Ashley was a member of the city council while a resident in Morrison, Ill. He was baptized and joined the Baptist church in Bethany, N. Y., in June, 1843, at the age of fourteen. He has been Sunday-school superintendent and bible class teacher, and is at present a deacon in the Baptist church in Prescott, Ariz.

mont, N. H.; married 31 October 1822 in Newport, N. H., MARY TENNEY, daughter of Thomas and Susannah (Cheney) Tenney, born 3 December 1798 in Newport; died 29 January 1890 in Claremont.

James Goodwin Ashley was a farmer. After his marriage he took up his residence on the top of Green Mountain in the "Cat Hole" district of Claremont, N. H., then a flourishing part of the town. In 1840 he moved his family to "Slab City," where he lived one year, and then settled on the Capt. Nathan Story farm. He lived there until 1861, at which time he bought of George Wilson the neat double cottage on Main Street, Claremont Village, which was built in 1835 by Aaron Haven. There he resided the rest of his life. He was a member of the Methodist Church in Claremont.

Mrs. Ashley joined the Old South Church in Newport in 1817 and was admitted by letter to the Claremont church in 1824. She was a district school teacher for the two years before her marriage. Her charity was liberal and her piety was evinced in her daily labors, and day or night she never refused to attend at the bedside of affliction. She was celebrated for her rag carpets, having been taught the art of weaving linen, cotton and woolen cloths at the age of fourteen, and rag carpets that she turned off her loom found their way to many parts of the West, New England and Canada. On her eighty-eighth birthday she put a new carpet on her loom and that year wove three hundred yards, cutting the rags for seventy-three yards herself. Up to her death her mind was unclouded and she read common print without glasses. Her physical health and strength were remarkable, and the day before her death she instructed her successor, to whom she had lent her loom, in the art of carpet weaving.

William Drinker Ashley, at the age of seventeen, emigrated from Pennsylvania to Michigan and from there drove a team for a brother-in-law to a mill on Grant River in the wilds of Wisconsin Territory. Part of the way was over corduroy roads, but often he had to cut his way through the wilderness. Later, he moved to Iowa and built a mill on Turkey River on the Indian reservation. He owned land in St. Paul, Minn., when it was a small village, and followed rafting down the Mississippi until 1849.

When the gold fever broke out, he struck out for California, arriving there in 1850. Not meeting with luck in the mines, he took up blacksmithing in Stockton. He made money and bought a piece of land on the Calaveras River, San Joaquin County, having to buy the Spanish as well as the private title. He then returned to Wisconsin to be married, and recrossed the plains with his wife. He continued to add to his farm till he owned 460 acres with commodious outbuildings and a modern dwelling 42 feet front and 84 feet deep, with beautiful grounds and an orchard. He raised and sold many high-priced Morgan Black Hawk horses, and paid $3,000 for a half interest in the Hambletonian "David Hill." He was one of the first to import Spanish merino sheep from Vermont at high figures, but clover burrs were bad in the fleece, and the removal of the tariff on wool ruined the business.

* The first three born in Nesquehoning, Pa., the others in East Mauch Chunk, Pa.

Mr. Ashley was foremost in all public enterprises. He helped organize the San Joaquin Valley Agricultural Society, of which he was a life member and for many years a director. Strong in his convictions, he took a deep interest in the life of the government, and rejoiced that he lived to see the North and South reunited. In 1888, being weakened by nose bleed, he left the farm and bought a quarter of a block in Stockton, where he built a residence and lived until his death two years later.

Mr. Ashley was a typical pioneer. He was a man of fine personal appearance, and of sterling honesty and fixedness of purpose.

Y.; died 28 March 1896 in Cresco.

Carlos Cooper Ashley learned the trade of a currier and tanner in Catskill, N. Y., and worked at it in Palmyra, N. Y. He then went into business for himself in Gaines, N. Y., in 1829, removing three years later to Nunda, N. Y., where he continued in business until 1856. In 1857 he emigrated to Wisconsin and settled on a farm near Fox Lake. He was engaged in farming there until 1859, when he removed to Cresco, Howard County, Iowa, where he continued farming the remainder of his life. Mr. Ashley united with the Baptist church at Gaines, N. Y., in 1830. He held several offices in Iowa, being a county commissioner, township trustee, justice of the peace, and member of the school board.

Daniel Drury Ashley was a farmer. He settled in Nunda, N. Y., where he had come in boyhood with his parents. In the spring of 1845 he and his brother Henry went to Wisconsin.

sin to see the farm which their father had purchased in Fox Lake township. They returned to New York in the autumn, and in the summer of 1846 he removed with his family to Fox Lake and settled on a farm of 108 acres on July 10th. He continued to reside there, engaged in farming, the rest of his life, a period of nearly fifty years.

West Bloomfield, N. Y.; resides in Madelia, Minn.; married 1 August 1866 in Randolph, Wis., MARY HARRIS, daughter of Henry and Ann (Scoville) Harris, born 8 January 1850 in Vestal, N. Y.

Oliver Ashley worked on his father's farm in Nunda, N. Y., till he was fifteen, and then entered the store of Barron & Britton in Nunda, N. Y., where he continued about ten years. In June, 1845, he and his mother and sister followed the rest of the family to Fox Lake, Dodge County, Wis. He soon returned to New York, but in 1847 went back to Fox Lake. He built a shanty and worked in the woods two years among the Indians. During the Civil War he was enrolling officer and agent for the town, went to Milwaukee, and paid $9,000 to thirty men to complete the draft. The town lost fifteen men in the army, seven of them young men who had worked for him. He was elected chairman of the town board, and in 1863 and 1865 was a member of the Legislature. His land tax was $600. In 1868 he went to Beaver Dam, ten miles off. He there lent money to A. P. Lawrence to build a store adjoining the one he then ran, with the idea of doing all the business in town. The office connected with both stores, and the business was so large that ten clerks were employed, and Mr. Ashley, who was bookkeeper and cashier, stood at his desk from twelve to fourteen hours a day. He was thus engaged for six years, when, finding such close work was affecting his eyes, he left the store. In 1875 he went to Texas, but finding the drought there worse than the Wisconsin winter, he came in 1876 to Ceresco, Blue Earth County, Minn., and bought a section of prairie and 2,500 acres of timber five miles off on the Watonwan River. He improved 400 acres and planted 100,000 young trees, 500 evergreens now ten feet high. The farm is considered an exceptionally fine one, and the live stock includes twenty-two horses and sixty cattle, mostly of the Angus hornless Scotch breed. Mr. Ashley has been chairman of the Ceresco town board, overseer of roads almost constantly, and treasurer of the school board twelve years. He at present resides in the village of Madelia, just over the line of Watonwan County, Minn.

155. YATES ASHLEY (Daniel<sup>79</sup>, Daniel<sup>77</sup>, Samuel<sup>25</sup>, Daniel<sup>9</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 10 September 1824 in West Bloomfield, N. Y.; resides in Pardeeville, Wis.; married 4 October 1855 in Wadsworth, Ohio, VIRGINIA MARIA PARDEE, daughter of John and Eunice (Chamberlin) Pardee, born 25 January 1835 in Wadsworth.

Yates Ashley was brought in infancy, in 1827, by his parents to the town of Nunda, N. Y., and there passed his boyhood and youth, attending the district school and afterwards the Nunda Literary Institute in Nunda village. In the spring of 1839 he commenced his business education as a clerk in the store of W. W. Whitcomb & Co., where he remained one year. He then accepted a position in the store of Herman L. Page of the same place, where he remained several years. In the month of April, 1844, he removed to Madison, Ind., and was in the employ of I. B. Whipple & Co. of that city until November of that year.

At that time the desire to visit the South became so strong, that he gave up his situation and spent some time in New Orleans and other Southern towns, but not finding anything to suit him, he concluded to return to the North. His former employer, Mr. Page, had removed to Milwaukee, Wis., and written him, asking him to go again into his store. At midnight, on a cold night in December, he landed from the Steamer "New England" at Evansville, Ind., and staged it up the Wabash River, through Lafayette, Logansport, Michigan City and Chicago, to Milwaukee, Wis., where he arrived early in January, 1845. Having learned that his father was in the West, looking up a location, he engaged to meet him at Fox Lake, Wis., where he found a location every way desirable, and where they entered six hundred acres of land. The last of March Mr. Ashley returned to Milwaukee and entered the store of Mr. Page, where he remained until the spring of 1849. John S. Pardee, a brother of the lady whom he subsequently married, engaged him to come out to Pardeeville, Wis., and take charge of his business, he having commenced the erection of a grist mill and opened a small store.

Early in April, 1849, Mr. Ashley arrived in Pardeeville, which has been his home nearly all of the time since that year. In the fall of 1852, Mr. Pardee having failed in business, he went into the employ of S. Marsh & Co. at Whitewater, Wis., remaining with them a year, and then went to work for the La-Crosse R. R. Co., in the engineer corps, then engaged in locating the track between Milwaukee and La Crosse. He remained with the party until April, 1855, when he bought an interest in the water power in Pardeeville and commenced the completion of the mill, getting it in operation in November, 1856, since which time he has retained an interest in the business. In 1875 he acquired the interest of his late partner, John Pardee, in the property.

On March 3, 1869, Mr. Ashley was appointed a postal clerk between Milwaukee and La Crosse, and transferred to the Chicago and La Crosse line as head clerk. On November 21, 1879, he was transferred to the Oshkosh & Milwaukee route, and February 13, 1883, to the Green Bay and Milwaukee line. On April 23, 1885, he was relieved from service by Postmaster General Vilas on political grounds, being the first postal clerk in Wisconsin removed for that cause by the Cleveland administration.

Mr Ashley was elected a member of the Assembly for the third district of Columbia County, Wis., in November, 1862, for the session of the winter of 1863, being reelected and serving as a member the following year.

He was appointed a trustee of the Wisconsin State Hospital for the Insane by Gov. James T. Lewis April 5, 1865, for the term of three years, and was reappointed by Gov. Lucius Fairchild March 13, 1868, and served as trustee until the system was changed by the passage of the bill creating the Board of Charities and Reform. Mr. Ashley has now retired from all active service in the political affairs of the county and State, but is still as strong a Republican as he was in war times, and is an advocate of a sound money system. He has expressed much interest in the preparation of this Genealogy and has been of great assistance to the compiler in collecting the records of his father's descendants.

156. OSSIAN DOOLITTLE ASHLEY (Seraph<sup>so</sup>, Daniel<sup>11</sup>, Samuel<sup>26</sup>, Daniel<sup>8</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 9 April 1821 in Townshend, Vt.; resides in New York City; married 30 April 1845 in Boston, Mass., HARRIET AMELIA NASH, daughter of Joseph and Harriet (Pierce) Nash, born 11 June 1823 in Dorchester, Mass.

Ossian Doolittle Ashley is President of the Wabash Railroad and resides in New York City. His ancestors, paternal and maternal, were of Puritan stock, and the early settlers of Westfield and Northfield, Mass., and of Claremont and Winchester, N. H., dating from 1640, running up the Connecticut Valley from New Haven. His great-grandfather fought at the battle of Bennington under General Stark, and his grandfather, Benjamin Doolittle, served under Washington, and was at West Point when Major Andre was taken. In 1824 his father's family moved to Boston, where the young man was educated with the intention of going through college; but his father having met with reverses in the timberland speculations of 1834 and 1835, the lad was obliged to leave his studies for a business life. He went into a wholesale drygoods house in 1835, and after eleven years' experience in that line became a member of the Boston Stock Exchange, and remained an active member until 1857, and its president during the last two years, 1856 and 1857. He then moved to New York City, becoming a member of the New York Stock Exchange, in the active business of which he continued until 1875, when his attention was directed to the re-organization of the Toledo, Wabash and Western Railroad Company, in which many of his friends were stockholders. He succeeded in saving the stockholders from extinction by the threatened foreclosure of its blanket mortgage, and in effecting a re-organization, which was completed in 1878-79. The Company came to grief again in 1884, and again Mr. Ashley was active in effecting the re-organization under which the Wabash Railroad is now being successfully operated. In 1889 he was elected President of the Wabash Western, a part of the system, and in 1889 upon the reintegration of the original lines, he was made president of the new company, in which capacity he has since served. The litigation connected with this last re-organization was especially complicated and vexatious, involving as it did many mortgages and contracts of lease; some of which were hostile to the plans of the committee in charge of the proposed re-organization.

During this experience in the banking business in State and Wall streets, Mr. Ashley made an especial study of economical science, and was connected with the Boston Journal as its financial editor for a number of years. He was later a contributor to the New York Tribune in connection with the late Mr. Snow, and to the editorial columns of the Boston Traveler and the Railway World of Philadelphia. Since his connection with the Wabash Railroad, he has been a prolific writer on railway and business topics, as well as the silver question. A series of articles written by Mr. Ashley for the Railway Age of Chicago has been printed recently in book form, entitled "Railway Companies and their Employees."

During his residence in Boston, Mr. Ashley became Captain of the somewhat famous military corps called the Boston Light Infantry (Tigers), a relic of the last century in organization, its charter being dated in 1798. This military experience led Mr. Ashley to take a warm interest in the war preparations of 1861, and a few months later he joined an association called "The New York Rifles," organized for the purpose of training and preparing men for active service in the field. Of this Association, H. Alden, a retired West Point graduate, was elected Colonel, Mr. John Jacob Astor Lieutenant Colonel, and Mr. Ashley Major. This Corps numbered four hundred men, and was thoroughly drilled for nearly a year in the manual of arms and school of the company. Most of this instruction devolved upon Major Ashley. From this Corps, thirty-eight of the members joined the army from time to time for active service as officers, among them being Generals Potter and de Trobriand. In 1862, having been elected Lieutenant-Colonel of the 37th Regiment New York National Guard, he accompanied that regiment to Baltimore, having been mustered into the United States service for three months. The same regiment was afterwards (1863) ordered to Pennsylvania with the Seventh and other New York regiments, to resist the Ewell invasion, shortly before the battle of Gettysburg; and in 1864 Mr. Ashley, having been elected Colonel, the regiment occupied the fortress on Staten Island, then called "Fort Richmond," relieving officers of the Volunteer Army, who were ordered to the front to take part in the final great movement under Generals Grant and Sherman, which was to be the closing feature in this great episode of national life.

Lucius Doolittle Ashley was a broker in Boston, Mass. He was for many years a member of the Boston Light Infantry, and was a great favorite with his comrades. Mr. Ashley lost his life by a most distressing accident. He resided in Waltham, and was in the habit of buying his papers at the Fitchburgh station on his way home from business. That afternoon he was a little late, and on coming out of the station found his train was moving. He ran after it and jumped on one of the platforms, but lost his balance and fell under the wheels; he was taken to the hospital, but died before morning.

159. ZERA WRIGHT ASHLEY (John<sup>53</sup>, Martin<sup>50</sup>, Martin<sup>26</sup>, Daniel<sup>9</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 25 April 1817 in Fair Haven, Vt. ; died 29 May 1891 in Hammond, Ind. ; married 16 May 1841 in Pokagon, Mich., ABIGAIL SIMPSON, daughter of James and Annie (Stevens) Simpson, born 19 April 1814 in Pembroke, N. H. ; resides in Dowagiac, Mich., being the last of the seventy-odd settlers of Pokagon.

Zera Wright Ashley on May 11, 1840, bought of his brother-in-law James Simpson 80 acres of land one and a half miles east of Pokagon, Cass County, Mich., where he settled with his wife and commenced farming. During the gold excitement in 1849, he left his family on the farm and went overland to California. He remained in Sacramento two years, experienced some hardships and secured some gold. Returning to his farm in Pokagon, he lived there until 1858, when he sold it and moved to the neighboring town of Dowagiac, Mich. He there formed a partnership, built a steam mill, and engaged in the sash, door and blind business. In about eight months the mill with all its contents was burned, with no insurance, but another one was built to run by water. He continued in that business for eight years, then sold out and engaged in mercantile business with Thoder Witherell at Pokagon. A year later he sold out and bought a farm near his old home in Pokagon. He lived there several years, then sold it and bought a farm in Albion, Calhoun County, Mich., where he remained eight years. He then emigrated to Dakota and located on 160 acres of government land near Jamestown, remaining there seven years, when a stroke of paralysis compelled him to give up work, and he sold his farm and moved back to Dowagiac. He resided there until a year before his death, which occurred in Hammond, Ind.

Mr. Ashley was an industrious, hard-working man all his life, and had no dissipations of any kind. He was a life long Republican, a Free Mason, and a member of the Baptist Church.

* Horace Lenzy Ashley enlisted December 31, 1861, at Niles, Mich., in Company C, Twelfth Michigan Volunteers, and was at the battle of Shiloh; but, on account of disease of the lungs, brought on by lung fever, was discharged July 19, 1862. After leaving the army, he was engaged as a clerk in stores, or in any such light duties he was strong enough to perform, until August, 1868. He then commenced selling sewing machines in Cass County, Mich., where he spent a year, and then went to Chicago, Ill., and entered the employ of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company. He was there five years, and then five years in Minneapolis, Minn., with the same company. He next went to Jamestown, Dak., located some government land, and opened up a farm, remaining on it seven years. He then sold it, and since then has not been engaged in any occupation. From the day he left the army until the present time Mr. Ashley has been unable to do any laborious work, on account of lung disease contracted in the army. He lived in Denver, Col., for a time, but in the fall of 1890 he went to California for his health, and has lived there most of the time since then.

160. LUCIUS FOSTER ASHLEY (John<sup>53</sup>, Martin<sup>50</sup>, Martin<sup>26</sup>, Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 6 September 1824 in Fair Haven, Vt.; resides in Sacramento, Cal.; married 20 June 1850 in Pittsford, Vt., LOUISE CATHERINE HAYWARD, daughter of Samuel Berge and Abigail (Kellum) Hayward, born 30 May 1828 in Clarendon, Vt.

Lucius Foster Ashley at the age of sixteen was indentured to Harvey Dickerman, a farmer in Mt. Holly, Vt., until he should be twenty-one; and, according to the custom in those days, was to have three months schooling each year, and at the end of his minority receive $100 in money and two suits of clothes; three months schooling being considered very liberal. On reaching his majority, he found himself a practical farmer, and was engaged in farming the next four years. In 1849 he entered the quarries at Rutland, Vt., to learn the trade of a marble cutter. He left there in 1852 and went to Albion, Mich., where in 1854 he engaged in business for himself. In April, 1858, he was elected township clerk and the next year township treasurer.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, he enlisted August 27, 1861, in the 1st Regiment Michigan Engineers, and was appointed first-sergeant of Company A. He was promoted first-lieutenant July 17, 1862, and in April, 1864, regimental quartermaster and commissary. This was a working regiment, and Mr. Ashley participated in only one battle, Perryville, Ky., October 8, 1862. He was mustered out at Atlanta, at the expiration of his term of enlistment, October 31, 1864. In 1870 he took the Ninth U. S. Census in Calhoun County, Mich. For the next twelve years he was in the sewing machine business. In 1882 he left Albion and removed with his family to North Dakota, where he took up a quarter section in the town of Albion and settled on it as a homestead. In the fall of 1893 he removed to Sacramento, Cal., where he at present resides.

Mr. Ashley has been for over forty years a member of the Presbyterian Church and for over thirty years one of its ordained deacons. He was for several years one of the trustees of the church in Albion, its chorister for eighteen years, and superintendent of its Sabbath school. He is a member of the Royal Templars of Temperance. For the past three years he has been in no active business.

John Tyler Ashley passed his boyhood on his father's farm in Vermont. After completing a course at the Black River Academy, preparatory to the study of medicine, he taught school two years. In 1850 he went to Albion, Mich., where he engaged in farming and school teaching. He caught the gold fever and emigrated to California, arriving in Damascus, Placer County, August 14, 1853. Here he experienced the varied fortunes of all young miners of the pioneer days. In 1875 he was elected Recorder and Auditor of Placer County on the Republican ticket, at an election in which the Independents carried nearly all the county offices. He was reelected for a second term, after which he held the office of deputy-sheriff two terms and was also a justice of the peace. His health giving way under office work, he bought an interest in a general merchandise store in Milpitas, Cal., to which place he removed in August, 1883, and resided there until his death.

162. WILLARD HUDSON ASHLEY (John<sup>83</sup>, Martin<sup>50</sup>, Martin<sup>26</sup>, Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup> David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 7 June 1834 in West Haven, Vt.; resides in Muskegon, Mich.; married 11 November 1863 in Albion, Mich., ANN OLEVIA GROFF, daughter of Lorenzo Dorr and Peninah (White) Groff, born 11 June 1841 in Hackettstown, N. J.

Willard Hudson Ashley was engaged in farming in his native State during his minority. He attended the academy in West Rutland and the seminary in Castleton. On his twenty-first birthday he went West, and settled in Albion, Calhoun County, Mich., where he was engaged in the wagon and carriage business until 1860. During this time, he was elected constable and held the office of deputy-sheriff for two years.

On September 5, 1861, he enlisted at Detroit as a musician in the First Michigan Cavalry. He took part in the Shenandoah campaign at Carnstown, New Market, Mt. Jackson, Christiansburg, Columbia Ridge, Cross Keyes, Strasburg, Middletown and Winchester. His regiment then joined the Army of the Potomac and participated in the battles of Culpepper Court House, Cedar Mountain, Warrenton, Mitchell's Station, Orange Court House and the 2d Bull Run. Receiving his discharge September 4, 1862, he returned to Albion, Mich., and was occupied at his trade until August 9, 1863. He re-enlisted on that day as a private in Co. A, Eleventh Michigan Cavalry, organized at Kalamazoo. In the next month he was promoted Orderly-sergeant, and on December 18th left with his regiment for Lexington, Ky., where he passed the winter. He was promoted First-Lieutenant March 21, 1864. During that year he participated in June in the battles of Cynthiana and Morehead, Ky., Saltville, Va., October 2d, and Big Sandy Mountain, October 4th; that day he was thrown from his horse at Piketon, Ky., and received injuries for which he draws a pension. He was at Saltville again in December, and at Marian, Clinch River and Abbyville, Va. The following winter was spent at Lexington, in scouting, and provost duty. In March, 1865, he was with his regiment in Stoneman's raid from east Tennessee into North Carolina and over the Blue Ridge into southwestern Virginia. In April he followed Stoneman again into North Carolina, and was with the main body when it entered Salisbury on the 12th. Lieutenant Ashley, commanding Co. A, charged the enemy and captured 14 pieces of artillery and about 60 prisoners. This was his last engagement, for he was ordered to the hospital at Knoxville about this time, on account of an attack of rheumatism. After remaining there about two months, he resigned from the army June 10, 1865, and went home to Michigan.

Mr. Ashley continued in the carriage business in Albion until the spring of 1868, when he removed to Muskegon, Mich., where he has followed the same business, and cabinet making, ever since.

Augustus Gilbert Ashley remained on his father's farm until he was of age, when he entered the drug business with his eldest brother in Nunda, N. Y. He continued there until 1864, when he engaged in the same business in Belvidere, Ill. The following year he removed to Sycamore, Ill., where he was also in the drug business for a year. He then removed to Chicago, Ill., where for twenty-one years he did a large commission business in hay, straw and grain, his firm being for most of that time Lake & Ashley.

Mr. Ashley was an active member of the Chicago Board of Trade, and made many friends there, who said at the time of his death that "his word was as good as his bond." He was liberal in his views of things in general, and was a large-hearted man, ever willing to lend a helping hand to those in sorrow or trouble. He was an earnest Christian, and was a member of the Third Presbyterian Church and always had a class in its Sabbath school.

WILLIAM ELLIOTT ASHLEY (Chester<sup>61</sup>, William<sup>63</sup>, Stephen<sup>30</sup>, Joseph<sup>12</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 6 August 1823 in Little Rock, Ark.; died 16 August 1868 in Little Rock; married 26 October 1846 in Little Rock, his third consin, FRANCES ELIZA GRAFTON, daughter of Joseph Dana and Mary Lewis (Elliott) Grafton, born 5 February 1828 in Ste. Genevieve, Mo.; resides in Little Rock.

William Elliott Ashley received a liberal education in New York City, where he studied for seven years under Dr. Muhlenberg. Returning to his home, he became a cotton planter. At his father's death, he took charge of his large estate, and the bountiful hospitality of the Ashley mansion during the lifetime of the father was kept up by the son.

He had ever avoided political life, but in 1852 he was induced to become a candidate and was elected by a large majority to the General Assembly as representative from Pulaski County. He also served several terms as mayor of the city. A natural distaste for political strife, however, and the care of a large family, which devolved upon him at the death of his father, prevented him from participating in the party contests of his day.

His reputation throughout Arkansas was that of a free handed, generous gentleman and a liberal, public spirited and useful citizen. It could be truly said that he did not have an enemy. The cruel results of the Civil War left him, like many others, a man of broken fortunes. His proud spirit, chafing under these reverses, preyed upon itself and hastened him to a premature death, which followed a lingering illness of several months duration.

"My father was accounted handsome, although of an entirely different type than his father. He was much like him in manners, but not at all so in appearance: being smaller, having a large mouth, white teeth, a brilliant smile, ringing (but gentlemanly) laugh—and, as his mother expressed it, was her 'Sunshine.' He was genial, courteous, elegant; always kindly to inferior as well as equal. He was considered in Little Rock in the early days 'a prince among men.'"

"On yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, the remains of Little Rock's best beloved were followed to the grave by the largest funeral cortege ever witnessed in our city at the burial of a private citizen. The Masonic fraternity,† the fire department, and a large concourse of citizens were in attendance. Among those who followed him to his last resting place were a large number of colored people. And well might they join their white neighbors in paying tribute to the memory of General Ashley; for never, at any time or under any circumstances, did they have a better, truer friend. In accordance with the suggestion made through the city papers yesterday, business generally was suspended. The solemn gloom that pervaded the entire community was a touching and eloquent tribute to the memory of a good and virtuous man, an attestation of the high esteem in which he was held by all classes and conditions of his fellow men. No man ever enjoyed a more honorable distinction, or left behind him a name more worthy to be embalmed in the memory of those who knew him. He was one of nature's noblemen, whom riches could not exalt, nor poverty debase. A man true to all the public and private relations of life, and in whom there was no guile. He was always a friend to the poor and needy, and long will they strew flowers upon his grave and moisten them with their tears—the purest tribute that ever yet was paid to human worth." CHILDREN BORN IN LITTLE ROCK, ARK. :

- i. CHESTER GRAFTON, b. 13 Aug. 1847; d. 29 Sept. 1876 in Houston, Tex., unmarried. He was at the Virginia Military Institute in 1863, when it was burned, and he was sent to Chapel Hill, Raleigh, N. C. At the close of the war, he went to Geneva, Switzerland, to complete his education. After the death of his father, he engaged in railroad business and was thus occupied at his death, which occurred after a four days illness from congestive fever. "In the relations of life he was exemplary. He was a dutiful son, an affectionate brother and a steadfast friend. His generous impulses, sterling integrity and high sense of honor made him admired and beloved by all his friends." [Houston paper.]

* Correcting Chester in Princeton College Triennial Catalogue.

Henry Charles Ashley was graduated at Princeton College in 1852, and settled in his native place, where he became a cotton planter, his estates lying in or near Pulaski County. In 1862 and 1863 he acted in the commissary department for the army in Little Rock and Washington, Ark.

"Captain Ashley's remains were attended to their final resting place by a large concourse of his friends and acquaintances. The Masonic fraternity showed their respect to the deceased by turning out in a body, and following his remains to the grave. The city fire department testified their respect by attending, and the city band furnished music appropriate to the solemn occasion."

Captain Ashley always took great interest in all affairs of his city and State, and was one of Little Rock's most prominent citizens. He was a strict attendant of the Episcopal church, although not a member of it. In those days Little Rock had only a volunteer fire department, and Mr. Ashley was its chief at the time of his death. He possessed a kind disposition, and was greatly beloved by all who knew him for his manly and upright character. He was a Mason in good standing in Magnolia Lodge, No. 60, of Little Rock.

"Resolved, That in the death of Brother Ashley, this Lodge, and the fraternity, have sustained the loss of a good, and well beloved brother. His friends and the community in which he lived are bereft of a faithful friend, an honest, generous, and useful citizen; and his family a kind-hearted protector; of a man whose friends were without number, but whose enemies might have been quickly counted; of one, perhaps, as free from selfishness as mortals ever get to be.

Those who knew him—and they were legion—from the humblest to the highest, will long remember his kindly face and gentle manner, his charity and his courtesy. It needs no extended lines of praise to preserve his name among his many friends. Henry Ashley's memory will always be green."

Henry Evander Ashley passed his boyhood on his father's farm. He enlisted in the Union Army at the outbreak of the Civil War, but was rejected on account of his youth. On May 2, 1863, he enlisted in Company B, 144th Regiment Ohio Volunteers. He was in three engagements—Winchester, Monoxv Junction and Chambersburg—and was discharged on September 9, 1864.

After his marriage, Mr. Ashley was engaged in farming and contracting, moving his residence to accommodate his work as contractor. In November, 1883, he went to Nebraska, and lived there until the spring of 1893, when he sold his farm in Bromfield, Hamilton County, and moved to Sherman County, Kansas, where he is engaged in extensive farming operations. His post office address is Goodland.

185. JAMES MORGAN ASHLEY (Stephen N.,<sup>101</sup> Stephen<sup>66</sup>, Oli-ver<sup>32</sup>, David<sup>14</sup>, David<sup>1</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 3 January 1809 in Sandy Hill, N. Y.; died 21 August 1849 in Brooklyn, N. Y.; married 3 November 1840 in New York City, by his brother Rev. William B. Ashley, EMMA ELMIRA BALDWIN, daughter of Enos and Hannah (Dunnell) Baldwin, and sister of the second wife of his brother William, who died 19 August 1849 in Brooklyn.

James Morgan Ashley was a man of business attainments. He located in New York City some time in the early 'thirties, and, while he was essentially a dry goods merchant, his posthumous letters show that at one time he was a stock broker in Wall Street and at another he was traveling in the South and West for some commercial firm. For some time prior to 1845 he was with a Mr. Bridges in the dry goods or straw goods line, and that he was an important factor in that house is evinced by the fact that Mr. Bridges went out of business soon after Mr. Ashley left him. He realized his value to that gentleman, for in one of his numerous letters to his mother he says, "I have left Bridges. . . . I made him what he is, and he did not do right by me."

On July 1, 1845, Mr. Ashley accepted a position with the firm of Smith & Henderson, in the same line of trade, taking full charge of the straw goods department. In 1846, Mr. Smith retiring from the business, he formed a partnership with Mr. Henderson, the firm being Henderson & Ashley, in which business he was still engaged at the time of his death. In another of his letters (dated June 26, 1847), he says, "We are having a large new store built for us on the ground of the old one (No. 176 Pearl Street), which is to be the best and largest store for dry goods in New York, except Stewart's. The inside arrangement, style of fitting up, etc., etc., is to be done according to my notions."

While as a business man he was eminently successful in his latter years, he had had reverses earlier that only his persistence and fortitude could overcome. But it is as the husband and father, within the inner circle of the man's life, that we find his true character. He was a most honorable and kindly man, and greatly beloved by family and friends. These letters to his mother are touching and beautiful in their description of his home and family.

Mrs. Ashley was also a most lovely character, with a sweet, childlike face that has been preserved in pigment as the Madonna in William Page's "The Flight into Egypt," now the priceless property of the Boston Atheneum; Mrs. Ashley being a niece of that celebrated painter whose "Venus" is world-renowned.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley died of cholera within two days of each other. After their death the children were scattered, being taken by different members of the family.*

in Detroit, Mich. He married, 2d, 9 May 1850 in New York City, Mrs. ANNE DUNNELL (BALDWIN) RACKETT, widow of Charles Rackett of New York City, daughter of Enos and Hannah (Dunnell) Baldwin, and sister of the wife of his brother James, born 28 October 1819 in Albany, N. Y.; resides in Milwaukee, Wis.

William Bliss Ashley was graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., in 1834, and entered the General Theological Seminary, New York City, at which he received his degree in 1838. He was ordained deacon the same year, and advanced to the priesthood by Bishop Brownell in 1839. From 1838 to 1842 he was rector of St. Luke's Church, Glastonbury, Conn., and from 1842 to 1848 of St. James' Church, Birmingham, Conn. From 1848 to 1857 he was rector of St. Paul's Church, Syracuse, N. Y., and from 1857 to 1860 of St. John's Church, Buffalo, N. Y. In Western New York he rendered important service on the Standing Committee, and in the interests of Hobart College and the DeLancey Divinity School, both of which owe early and valuable endowments to his efforts. Hobart College gave him the degree of M. A. ad eundem in 1857 and that of Doctor of Divinity in 1859.

His removal from Syracuse to Buffalo was made at the urgent request of Bishop DeLancey, who considered Dr. Ashley peculiarly qualified for the work at that particular time of harmonizing certain disturbing elements. During his rectorship of St. John's, Buffalo, Dr. Ashley was called to several important parishes. The first was to Trinity Church, Boston, Mass., the next to a parish in Louisiana, the next to St. Peter's, Auburn, N. Y. He was also selected by William Douglas to take the chaplaincy of Hobart College, for which institution a beautiful chapel had been built and endowed. By the advice and urgent request of bishops and other prominent friends, Dr. Ashley declined all these offers and continued his good work at Buffalo.

In March, 1860, Dr. Ashley was induced to accept a call to St. Paul's Church, Milwaukee, the mother church of the city and diocese. For several years he was Dean of the Milwaukee Convocation. His rectorship of St. Paul's ended in July, 1876, and exceeded in length of time the combined rectorships of all his predecessors. For a year, beginning October, 1876, Dr. Ashley was curate of St. Mary's Church, Somerstown, London, England. On his return from abroad he was made Canon of All Saints Cathedral, Milwaukee, a position he held until his death, doing duty in the Cathedral and in vacant parishes as need required. Up to his last illness he was ever ready to fulfil his ministry, and during his notably active and laborious ministry of fifty-four years it is said that for hardly one Sunday had he been disabled from duty.

Dr. Ashley held the position of a trustee of the General Theological Seminary for about thirty years, and for an equal period was a trustee of Racine College. He represented the diocese of Western New York in the General Convention in 1856, and was a deputy from Wisconsin in 1862, 1865, 1871, 1874, 1883 and 1886. He was a member of the Standing Committee of these dioceses for thirty-seven years, and was president of the Wisconsin (now Milwaukee) Committee for twenty-five years.

Dr. Ashley died peacefully on Palm Sunday, surrounded by his wife, children and grandchildren. The funeral took place on the Wednesday before Easter, and its details were carried out according to the wishes of the deceased. There were three celebrations of the Holy Communion—at 7 a. m. for friends in general, at 8 a. m. for the family, and at 10.30, during the funeral services, at which Bishop Nicholson was the celebrant, choral. The remains were carried to the Cathedral before the 8 o'clock celebration, where they lay in state until taken to their final resting place in the beautiful cemetery at Forest Home. Certain clergymen, selected by Dr. Ashley, acted as honorary pall bearers; his sons and sons-in-law were the actual bearers. The funeral was largely attended by both clergy and laity, and the service, which was most orderly and dignified and impressive, was most comforting to both mourners and friends.

“By those who knew him here [Syracuse] in his prime Dr. Ashley will be especially remembered as a man of most winning and lovely personal qualities. One could not define, but could not help feeling, the charm of his presence, in expression of features, in voice of singular sweetness, and in quiet and courteous manner. These qualities helped also to make him attractive as a preacher. His reading of the service was notably excellent, and had the charm of perfect intonation. In his own home he was a lover of hospitality and a most cordial and charming host, and many a tired country clergyman could testify to the open door and restful atmosphere of St. Paul's Rectory." [Our Church Work, Buffalo, May 6, 1893.]

"All who knew Dr. Ashley will agree that he was a most loyal priest of the Church of God. He held firmly and unwaveringly the Catholic faith in its integrity and purity. He was a diligent student of God's Most Holy Word, and was ever ready to banish and drive away from the Church all erroneous and strange doctrines. At the same time he maintained and set forward peace and love among all Christian people, but especially those committed to his charge. Dr. Ashley was eminently a faithful dispenser of the Word of God and His Holy Sacraments, and as a pastor in times of joy and sorrow thousands are ready to testify to his whole-hearted devotion, as well as to his wonderful tenderness and sympathy.

Dr. Ashley was a devout man. He seemed in all his public ministrations to forget self, and to be deeply inspired with the feeling that he was a priest offering sacrifice to the Most High God. As a reader of the Holy Scriptures and the services of the Prayer Book, few equalled him in earnestness of tone and manner, and in the happy faculty of bringing out the true meaning. As an instance of his humility and devoutness, a few days before his end he desired to receive the blessed sacrament, but would not do so in any other attitude than on his knees, and so he was assisted out of bed, supported by two of his daughters, and his wish was gratified.

Another feature in Dr. Ashley's character was his scrupulous attention to the discharge of all claims upon his time and ability, aside from his public duties in the Sanctuary. In all his speeches and votings, the same conscientious principles governed him as in all other matters. No personal or private consideration would ever tempt him to swerve from the straight line of duty, as he understood it. Other features of his well-rounded character were his sound Gospel preaching, his loyalty to his Bishop, his social relations in his family and toward his friends, his genial hospitality, his readiness to give as God prospered him to the Church in her parochial and missionary work, his willingness to assist young men in preparing for Holy Orders, and many other points." Y. ; resides with her eldest son in Yorkville.

Almon Pitcher Ashley came in boyhood with his father to Kendall County, Illinois. After his marriage he preëmpted 160 acres of land near Yorkville in that county, and moved there when the country was very wild. "Well do I remember," writes his second daughter, "when he used to plow and set back-fires to prevent the prairie fires from burning our home. He used to haul wheat in an ox team to Chicago, when there was only one short street laid out there, and the mud so deep that it was with difficulty horses and cattle could be driven through it. Wheat was so cheap that he always carried his own food and the feed for his oxen, otherwise it would have taken the price of the load to feed them. He usually brought back a load of lumber."

"Kendall County now is one of the wealthiest counties in Illinois. At the time of his death, Mr. Ashley, through industry and frugality, had made a beautiful and valuable home. About the time of the Civil War he set out a large grove of evergreens, which are now the pride of the county. He was not a soldier, because he was lame, the result of a broken leg when he was a child. He was a strictly temperate and hard-working man, and had the respect of all who knew him."

H.; resides with her eldest daughter in Belvue, Kan.

Orson Ashley was brought to Illinois, when a boy of about fourteen, by his father. He settled after his marriage on part of his father's farm near Oswego, Kendall County, where he lived and prospered twenty-four years. Becoming tired of farm life, he moved his family into the small town of Oswego, and worked at the carpenter's trade until the spring of 1883. His health being poor, he then visited his son in Kansas, and liked the climate so much that he purchased a home in Wanego, Pottawatomie County, where he passed the remaining year of his life.

Mr. Ashley was an exemplary man among his neighbors, a kind husband, an affectionate father, and beloved by all who knew him. In politics he was a Republican. He was a member of the Baptist church in Oswego for a number of years, but in later life became a believer in Spiritualism, and his funeral services were conducted in accordance with that belief by Mr. Allen of Topeka.

"Mr. Ashley had ever lived an exemplary life. Kind and affectionate in his family; always ready to assist and comfort the sorrowing; believing the record of our life on earth will consummate our destiny in the next sphere of our existence. He was a firm believer in spirit communion, and for months past thought it would not be long before he should meet with loved ones gone before; and he was ready for the change."

Otis Ashley at the age of thirteen joined a military company in his native place and served six years as a musician. At the age of nineteen he removed with his father to Plainfield, Ill., and returned with him the following year to Rutland, N. Y. On reaching his majority, two months later, he went back to Plainfield, married, and lived there until the spring of 1846. Then an opening presented itself for him to go to California, and, as the death of his mother and sister had broken up his father's home, he eagerly availed himself of it. He started with his wife on April 9th, going to Peru on the Illinois River, then by water to St. Louis, and thence up the Missouri River to Weston. From there they made the six months journey in an ox team. They crossed the river May 7th, and next day with about forty other wagons struck out into the Indian country, the Indians stealing one yoke of oxen the first night. They struck the Platte River first below the grand Pawnee village, their route being up the Platte to Fort Laramie, a distance of 500 miles. For 150 miles they had nothing to burn but buffalo chips, and buffalo were seen by thousands. They arrived at the fort July 1st, and found only a few Indians and three or four half-breeds, the Sioux being on a hunt. The next place they came to was Fort Bridger, 500 miles away in the Rocky Mountains, having crossed the north fork of the Platte, traveled up the Sweetwater to its head, and over the divide and across the Green River, which is the head waters of the Colorado. From Bridger they traveled south of Salt Lake, crossed a desert of seventy miles without water, another of thirty, and then struck the road running from Fort Hall to California, at the head of Mary's River. From there they went down the river, crossed the Truckee and up that river to its source, and on October 30th arrived in California.

Mr. Ashley went to Santa Clara Mission, where he enlisted in the California Guards and served three months under Gen. Fremont. His company was detailed to guard the women and children, while Fremont was operating in Lower California, and the Mission was "forted up" for protection. During the battle of Santa Clara the garrison consisted of only thirty men and Mr. Ashley acted as lookout in the belfry, from which point of vantage he followed the course of the battle.

After his discharge from the army in the spring of 1847, he went over into Santa Cruz County and settled on the west side of the valley on a tract of Government land. This involved him in a law suit which lasted thirty years and was decided finally in his favor, he being awarded about 2000 acres. In October, 1847, he settled in San José, and lived there until June, 1856. He then returned to Santa Cruz County, where he at present resides, in Felton.

Mr. Ashley has always been engaged in lumbering and farming. He also built and ran a sawmill for twenty-five years, his son succeeding him. He is a member of the Sons of Temperance and the Santa Cruz Pioneers, and is an earnest Spiritualist.

Y. ; resides in Joliet, Ill. ; married 27 October 1850 in Plainfield, Ill., JULIA FRANKLIN TYLER, daughter of Daniel and Olive (Alger) Tyler, born 5 April 1825 in Bridgewater, Mass.

James Riley Ashley came at the age of twelve years with his father to Plainfield, Ill. On reaching manhood, he was given the sum of three hundred dollars by his father to set him up in business, a large sum for the times and locality. He settled in Plainfield, where he kept a general store for about twenty years. In March, 1874, he became connected with a firm in Joliet, Ill., for the manufacture of axle and railroad grease, and removed there on December 1st. In January, 1876, he and his brother with two others formed a partnership for the manufacture of barbed wire. Mr. Ashley soon bought out one partner, Mr. Watkins, and the three continued the business for a while, when, others wishing to join, a corporation was formed. Two years later Mr. Ashley and three others bought out the corporation and became a partnership firm again, and so continned until they sold out a few years later. Mr. Ashley then secured a contract for eight years for the labor of one hundred and twenty-five convicts in the Illinois State Penitentiary in Joliet and organized the Ashley Wire Company. In 1890 they built a mill outside the city, where they carry on business, employing citizen labor on account of a law passed prohibiting the contracting of convict labor.

Mr. Ashley never has been an office seeker, but has held some unsought. In 1850, when township organization was adopted in that part of Illinois, he was elected town clerk, and continued in that office fifteen years, when he refused to serve longer. During this time he was a justice of the peace eight years and a notary ten years, up to the time of his going to Joliet, December 1, 1874.

In the fall of 1862 he was induced by Collector of Internal Revenue Lewis Ellsworth, a special friend of his father, to add to the care of his other offices and his store the office of inspector of spirits for his Congressional district of six counties, in which were five distilleries, many wholesale houses, druggists, retailers, etc. This was a very responsible office, as Mr. Ashley had to stand between the Government and the manufacturers and dealers, collecting the tax, amounting sometimes in single cases to $25,000 at one time. He was kept very busy, of course, in looking after all his varied interests, but he has always brought out successfully everything with which he has been connected. He filled this office most creditably until the spring of 1870, since which time he has devoted himself exclusively to his private business.

daughter of Lemon and Fannie Alcimena (Kent) Watkins, born 8 December 1834 in Mount Morris, N. Y.; died 7 October 1885 in Joliet.

Cyrus Newton Ashley came in boyhood with his father to Plainfield, Ill. He was a quiet man, and, being somewhat diffident, was a man of few words. He had great confidence in his brother in matters of business, and worked for him during the twenty years he kept a store in Plainfield, and went with him to Joliet in December, 1874, where he became interested in the firm with which the latter had been connected since the previous March. This business, the manufacture of axle and railroad grease, was continued until January, 1876, when the brothers sold their interest and formed a partnership with two others for the manufacture of barbed wire. The business was changed to a corporation, in which Mr. Ashley owned stock, and two years later was reduced to a partnership again. At that time Mr. Ashley joined an old partner, Mr. Watkins, in business, which was carried on successfully for a number of years, when they sold out at a good price, and Mr. Ashley retired from business for a while. A few years later, when his brother's firm sold out, the latter secured a contract for convict labor in the State penitentiary and organized the Ashley Wire Company. Mr. Ashley took $20,000 of the stock and was made one of the directors, and he so continued until his death.

Y.

Andrus Fellows Ashley, after attending the Tallmadge Academy and the grammar school in Hudson, Ohio, studied medicine and was admitted to practice in 1855, and located in Newport, Sauk County, Wis. In 1858 he removed to Forest City, Holt County, Mo.

At the outbreak of the Civil War he entered the United States service as surgeon of Berry's Cavalry, attached to the Thirteenth Missouri Volunteers. The regiment was captured and paroled at Lexington, Mo., in September, 1861. The regiment was reorganized as the Twenty-fifth Missouri, but Berry's battalion, refusing to become a part thereof, was mustered out. After passing the required examination before the Army and Navy Medical Board at St. Louis, he was assigned as surgeon to the Fourteenth Regiment, Missouri Volunteer Cavalry. In October, 1862, he resigned by reason of ill health contracted in the service.

In 1863 Dr. Ashley located in La Prairie, Adams County, Ill., and was engaged in private practice seven years. In 1870 he was ordained a minister of the gospel by the Presbytery of Schuyler, Ill., in which capacity he has continued to serve until quite recently, acceptably filling pulpits in the Presbyteries of Schuyler and Bloomington, Ill., Lake Superior, Mich., Nebraska City and Fairmont, Neb.; and was in 1874 and 1883 a commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.

At no time in his ministerial work has Mr. Ashley been allowed to live free from demands on his medical and surgical skill, and much of the time has been obliged actively to practice the healing art. He will devote the remainder of his years to medicine, as he finds more and more that medicine makes the greatest demand on his time and strength. He resides at present in Fairmont, Fillmore County, Neb., but will probably seek a more congenial field for his labors.

196. ARLINGTON OLIVER ASHLEY (Anson<sup>107</sup>, Oliver<sup>58</sup>, Oliver<sup>52</sup>, David<sup>14</sup>, David<sup>4</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>41</sup>), born 11 November 1838 in Tallmadge, Ohio; resides in Toledo, Ohio; married 9 August 1870 in Weeping Water, Neb., JULIA ANN ASHMUN, daughter of William Bowen and Sarah (Fenn) Ashmun, born 19 June 1845 in Tallmadge.

Arlington Oliver Ashley in boyhood was apprenticed to learn the carriage painter's trade, and worked at it in Ashland and Dayton, Ohio. At the age of twenty he went to St. Louis, Mo., where he remained thirteen months, then going to Forest City, Mo. On August 15, 1860, he started with others on an overland journey for Denver, Col. During the trip, he was charged by a buffalo, which it took sixteen shots from his revolver to dispatch. He arrived in Denver after a thirty-five day journey, and worked at his trade there until the spring of 1861, when he became one of the party of about one hundred and twenty-five deluded persons who started on the San Juan road on the "Reeder expedition." On arriving near Fort Garland, Reeder, being fearful that he had no mines, gave the party the slip, but was brought back to camp, and barely escaped with his life. The party scattered in all directions, Mr. Ashley and four others going into California Gulch, where Leadville is now situated, where they remained until August, when, not having been successful, they gave up mining.

Returning to Denver, much broken financially, he secured the position of a policeman on the night force. The following month he enlisted in Company I, First Regiment Colorado Cavalry, then under marching orders for the Army of the Potomac. Soon after he was mustered, this order was countermanded, and the regiment served their term of enlistment in the Department of the Plains, being in the engagement at Apache Cañon, about fifteen miles from Sante Fé, March 28, 1862, and fighting guerrillas and Indians along the Rio Grande into Texas. The fall of 1863 found his company stationed at Conejos, Col., near the New Mexico line. That winter the Espinosa brothers with a band of Mexican cut-throats had got into the Salgre De Christoran pass, and were killing nearly everyone who tried to go through there, mail carriers included. Mr. Ashley's captain, being desirous of getting some dispatches through to Denver, gave him a chance to run the gauntlet. He got through safely, but for about eighteen miles through the pass he could not ride his horse much faster than a walk, and kept his revolver cocked ready for instant use, "being obliged at least twice to cover parties of three or four who were anxious to break one or more of the Commandments."

While waiting orders at Denver, he was detailed to serve on the provost guard, a position which promised more active service than being stationed at Conejos. While doing duty on the guard in Denver, he was employed by the city as detective and later made chief of police. He also held a commission as United States Deputy Marshal under Marshal Hunt. Mr. Ashley writes, "although we saw no heavy fighting, hand to hand engagements were almost daily occurrences; the pistol and club were freely used, and victims of these encounters were numerous." His name occurs in a story of those times entitled "Hands Up," by David Cook, ex-sheriff of Shoshone County, Idaho. The guard was kept in Denver for eighteen months, when they were relieved by troops from the States. The spring of 1865 found Mr. Ashley at Fort Collins, where he had command of the provost guard at the post, its duty being to look up Government property. From there he moved up on the Salt Lake road to guard the Overland Stage line, and was stationed with twelve men at Rock Creek until the Indians drove them out. Soon after, he was summoned to Denver as a witness in the military trial of a soldier named Squires who had assassinated Captain Soulie. His three years then being up, he received his discharge.

Returning to St. Louis in the fall of 1865, Mr. Ashley remained there until the winter of 1866, when he visited his old home in Ohio, after an absence of eight years. Settling down in Tallmadge, he married, and remained there, with the exception of about six months spent in Denver in 1867-68, until 1873. He then removed to Nebraska, and lived in Lincoln, Nebraska City and Weeping Water. While living in the latter place, he was appointed deputy-sheriff of Cass County, and removed to Plattsmouth, the county seat, where he lived four and a half years. He then returned to Weeping Water, where he ran on the Prohibition ticket for sheriff and mayor, but failed of an election, although running ahead of his ticket. He left Weeping Water in July, 1892, and after visiting Hariman, Tenn., and Lexington, Ky., came in August to Auburn-dale, in Toledo, Ohio, his present residence.

Mr. Ashley holds strong religious beliefs and in politics is a Prohibitionist, having allied himself with that party in the St. John campaign.

200. JAMES AYARS ASHLEY (Rollin T.<sup>110</sup>, Leonard<sup>60</sup>, David<sup>53</sup>, David<sup>14</sup>, David<sup>1</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 20 November 1830 in Port Republic, N. J.; resides in Washington, D. C.; married 28 September 1865 in Washington, ANNA SCRIVENER, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Ann (Weller) Scrivener, born 30 October 1844 in Washington.

James Ayars Ashley passed his boyhood at his father's home in Brooklyn, Pa., where he obtained his education in the common schools, mainly between the years 1835 and 1845. Beginning at the age of fifteen as a merchant's clerk in his father's store, he was then, in turn, an accountant in a seaside hotel; a pedagogue; an accountant in an iron manufacturing establishment in the East; a teacher of penmanship; and an accountant in a provision packing house in the West. In May, 1854, he settled in what is now Louisville township, Scott County, Minn. His brother Joseph joined him the following August, and they were associated in farming and mercantile business, until the financial revulsion of 1858 prostrated all business interests of the territory and compelled thousands of its people to seek a livelihood beyond its borders.

Mr. Ashley then became a newspaper correspondent, for various journals; a Head of Division in the U. S. Census Office; and a committee clerk for the U. S. House of Representatives. Since then, for a period of nearly twenty years, he has been an examiner in the U. S. Patent Office, and for many years a patent attorney. He has also held minor township and county offices. In all of these positions Mr. Ashley has performed a vast amount of useful, but generally unremunerative labor.

In 1864, while employed in the Census Office, a few weeks before Sherman's columns moved from Atlanta toward the sea, Mr. Ashley was called on to prepare a series of statistical maps for army use. Skeleton maps of the States of Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina were obtained from the General Post Office; and his task was to enter in ink, in imitation of printed characters, in each County in these States, the number of its inhabitants,—white, free colored and slave; the number of horses, mules, sheep, swine, and neat cattle; the number of bales of cotton; number of pounds of rice; number of bushels of wheat, rye, oats, corn, potatoes, etc., according to the Census of 1860. Upon the completion of the work, the maps were turned over to the War Department and, by the photographic process, were reproduced in sufficient number to enable General Sherman to supply a copy to each Division of his army.

Mr. Ashley writes, "I have before me a copy of a letter written by General Sherman, after the close of the campaign, in which he expresses his high appreciation of the practical value and importance, in a military point of view, of the information contained in these maps; and I have always regarded this work, including, as it did, much arduous labor, as my most valuable contribution to the success of the National arms."

Mr. Ashley resides in Washington, D. C. He has rendered great service to the compiler in collecting the records of many Ashleys in his branch of the family.

Floyd Ashley spent his youth and early manhood on the Ashley homestead near the village of Mainesburgh, Sullivan township, Tioga County, Pa.; assisting his father and older brothers on the farm in the summer, and either attending or teaching school in the winter months.

On September 9, 1861, in company with his younger brother Addison and others from the neighborhood, he enlisted in Company C, Fiftieth Regiment New York Volunteers (Engineers), for a term of three years. While in camp near Alexandria, Va., in March, 1862, he was badly injured in the foot and ankle, and sent to the Mansion House Hospital. During his convalescence, he became so useful as wardmaster of the surgical ward, that after his recovery, in April, he was retained there until the expiration of his term of service. While he was denied the privilege of gaining laurels at the front, his services were none the less valuable; and there are hundreds from the battle fields of Virginia, now scattered over the country, who count it their good fortune to have fallen into his hands, after the enemy had finished his work with cannon, musket and sabre. He meets them continually when he travels from home, even after the lapse of these years.

On his return home from the army, Mr. Ashley married, and was engaged in farming for a time, but later became a resident and merchant in Mainesburgh, Pa.

He married, 2d, 2 January 1875 in Sullivan, MARIETTE FLETCHER, daughter of J. David and Hannah (Kniffin) Fletcher, born 14 April 1850 in Smithfield, Pa.

Addison Sterne Ashley spent his childhood and youth on his father's farm in Sullivan township, near the village of Mainesburgh, Pa. He inherited the robust physique of his father, and when he had reached his majority his height was over six feet and he weighed nearly two hundred pounds. He enlisted in the Union Army on September 9, 1861, in Company C, Fiftieth New York Volunteers (Engineers), for a term of three years. He served in the Army of the Potomac and elsewhere. At the expiration of his term he reënlisted, and served as a non-commissioned officer until the close of the war. He received his discharge June 25, 1865, making over three years and nine months that he had been in the service of his country.

"At the battle of Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 12-3, 1862, when the attempt to land troops from pontoon boats had failed and the engineers had been driven from the work of constructing the pontoon bridge in front of the city, Mr. Ashley volunteered to try, and successfully landed a detachment of soldiers on the opposite bank of the river and maintained his position until reënforced, and the completion of the bridge opened the way for the advancement of General Burnside's army."

Since the close of the war Mr. Ashley has been engaged in farming. He resides on the Ashley homestead in Sullivan township, Tioga County, Pa., where his father settled, and gave very kind and devoted care to his parents during their declining years.

He takes a leading part in the educational and political affairs of the community, and his neighbors consider him reliable authority upon all the questions of the day. He is prominent in the Grangers and other organizations, and, being a ready debater, is expected to be present on all important occasions.

John Ashley attended the schools of his native place and was graduated from the Norfolk, Conn., Academy, having been educated for a teacher. He taught school for several terms in Canaan, Conn., and in 1857 removed to Cornwall, Henry County, Ill. He continued teaching in that place until the canvass of Lincoln and Douglass for the senatorship of Illinois, when he entered actively into politics. At the outbreak of the Civil War he tried to enlist in the Union Army, but was rejected on account of ill health. In the meantime he had held the offices of justice of the peace, town assessor and county supervisor.

In 1872 he went to Nebraska, where he lived three years, and in 1875 he returned to Sheffield. He was elected President of the Board of Education, and served in 1876 and 1877 as school visitor and examiner. In 1878 he removed to Bridgeport, Conn., his present residence, where he formed a partnership in the oil business with Mr. Emory P. Sanford, under the firm name of Ashley & Sanford, in which he is still engaged.

HENRY ASHLEY (John<sup>121</sup>, John<sup>66</sup>, John<sup>40</sup>, John<sup>1*</sup>, John<sup>5</sup>, David<sup>2</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 27 May 1832 in Sheffield, Mass.; died 15 July 1895 in Torrington, Conn.; married, 1st, 30 December 1858 in Sheffield, JULIA MARY TURNER, daughter of Isaac and Abigail (Smith) Turner, born 1 September 1839 in Sheffield; died 5 March 1861 in Sheffield. He married, 2d, 12 October 1864 in Sheffield, MARY LODENA RIDER, daughter of Samuel Smith and Nancy Caroline (Bullmar) Rider, born 8 February 1843 in Sheffield; resides in Torrington.

Henry Ashley, at the age of sixteen, began to work under his father to learn the trade of a carpenter and joiner, which he followed until he joined the army during the Civil War. He enlisted October 14, 1862, as a private in Company K, Forth-ninth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, in which he served until his discharge, September 1, 1863. In the last week of March, 1864, he came to Torrington, Conn., and began doing cabinet work on organ cases and furniture. On April 1st he went to work in the sash and blind factory of Hotchkiss & Sons, and was with that firm nineteen years, during which time he did all of their undertaking work. November 1, 1882, he bought out their undertaking business, but was obliged to sell it two years later on account of ill health. He then followed his old trade until 1893, when, cataracts forming on his eyes, he was compelled to give up work altogether.

Mr. Ashley joined the Methodist Church in 1857, and has been an active member ever since, holding all the offices which constitute the official board, such as class leader, Sabbath school superintendent seven years, trustee, and president of that board, an office he held at his death. He was a member of Seneca Lodge, No. 55, F. & A. M., and of L. W. Steele Post, No. 34, G. A. R.

William David Ashley lived with his father on the farm until he was eighteen, receiving such education as the district school afforded. In 1853 he became an apprentice to the machinist's trade in the Ames' machine shop in Springfield, and became a skilled tool maker. In 1867, failing in health, he emigrated to Nebraska and engaged in farming near Syracuse, Otoe County. He resided there until March, 1895, when he gave up farming and moved to Grandin, Mo., his present residence.

Mr. Ashley owned one of the most desirable and complete fruit and stock farms in the county, and was recognized as a thorough and successful farmer. Though cautious in his business relations, he has always been considered honest and truthful, and an accommodating neighbor. Exacting as a father, he felt pride in his farm and family, and provided well for them. He has never been active in politics, but usually has voted the Republican ticket. He never ran for office, but was appointed to the office of supervisor of roads for a number of years.

Charles Hart Ashley experienced the hardships and pleasures which come to a boy in a new and unsettled country. At the age of fifteen he went to live with his uncle Jonathan Ashley (131) in Deerfield, Mass. He attended the Deerfield Academy and Dickinson High School until his twenty-first birthday, when he associated himself with his uncle in the management of the old Ashley homestead, and their united efforts added to the possessions of the old farm, until now it contains 500 acres and is one of the largest in the town. At the death of his uncle in September, 1895, he inherited the whole of his estate, so that he now owns and occupies the old Ashley place in Deerfield, where his great-great-grandfather Rev. Jonathan Ashley settled in 1733. "The old bullet-proof house, erected that year, still stands, and is good for another century."

Believing that politics and business do not go well together, Mr. Ashley refuses all public offices, and devotes his whole time to practical farming. He became a member of Republic Lodge, F. and A. M., in 1896. He has taken great interest in this Genealogy, and has been indefatigable in collecting the records of his branch of the family.

Y.; died 11 November 1889 in Windom, Minn.; married 4 July 1869 in Cresco, Iowa, LUCY STILLMAN, daughter of Benjamin and Mary Rosettie (Adams) Stillman, born 15 May 1847 in Franklinville, N. Y. She married, 2d, 14 June 1891 in Windom, Job Darrow and resides in Cresco, Iowa.

Daniel Clarence Ashley lived with his father in Nunda, N. Y., until he was eighteen years of age, attending the village school. He then went to Fox Lake, Wis., where he was a clerk in a store and hotel for two years. Returning to New York, he went to work on a railroad, now part of the Erie system, running out of Buffalo. In 1853 he moved to Chicago, Ill., and worked about two years for a "Yankee notion" firm. He then was a clerk on a Mississippi River steamboat until 1857, when he returned to Fox Lake, where he worked on his father's farm until 1859, in which year the family removed to Cresco, Iowa. He continued farming there until the fall of 1862, when he entered the Union Army. He enlisted in Company E, Thirteenth U. S. Infantry, and was at the siege of Vicksburg and in the Chattanooga campaign, and was then stationed with his regiment, at Nashville, Tenn., until his discharge, having been in the service three years. After leaving the army he was in the livery business in Nashville until 1869, when he returned to Cresco, Iowa, where he married and was engaged in farming until 1878. He then removed to Windom, Minn., where he continued farming for a year or two; next conducted a hotel; and then, up to within a few months of his death, kept a store.

251. CHARLES BARRON ASHLEY (Carlos C.<sup>1st</sup>, Daniel<sup>o</sup>, Daniel<sup>47</sup>, Samuel<sup>25</sup>, Daniel<sup>o</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, David<sup>o</sup>, Robert<sup>4</sup>), born 18 July 1841 in Nunda, N. Y.; resides in Cresco, Iowa; married 17 March 1872 in Cresco, EMMOGENE BARBER, daughter of William and Eliza (Barnes) Barber, born 10 September 1849 in Canton, N. Y.

Charles Barron Ashley enlisted in the fall of 1861 in the Union Army as a member of Company I, Ninth Regiment, Iowa Volunteers. He was first located at Franklin, Mo., guarding the railroad, until the Pea Ridge campaign opened in the middle of January, 1862. After the battle of Pea Ridge, March 7-8, 1862, he accompanied his regiment through Arkansas to Helena on the Mississippi, and was with Sherman in the First Vicksburg campaign, which resulted in the battle of Chickasaw Bluffs on December 29, 1862, his regiment returning to Young's Point. He was in the Vicksburg campaign, and participated in the battles of Raymond and Jackson, and the siege, joining in the assaults of May 19th and 22d, and was present at the surrender on July 4th. That night his regiment started for Jackson, and followed Johnston in his retreat to Brandon, where they had a sharp fight. The other engagements in which Mr. Ashley took part were Cherokee Station, Fall Run, Tusculum, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, Ringgold Gap, Resaca, Dallas, Big Shanty, Kenesaw Mountain, Chattahoochee River, Atlanta (July 22d and 28th), Jonesboro', Griswoldville, Savannah, Salkelatchie Swamp, Columbia and Bentonville. He was promoted corporal July 1, 1862, sergeant May 24, 1863, first-lieutenant June 15, 1865, and was mustered out at Louisville, Ky., July 21, 1865, making a service of nearly four years.

Mr. Ashley is engaged in farming in Cresco, Iowa. He has held a number of local offices, among them those of town clerk, town trustee, justice of the peace, and a member of the school board.

dolph, Wis., JULIA E. THOMAS, daughter of Robert Bailey and Julia Eliza (Wells) Thomas, born 9 August 1849 in Elkhart, Ind.; resides in Spring Valley.

Lewis Messenger Ashley at the age of nine years went with his parents to Hamilton, Fillmore County, Minn., where he grew to manhood. He enlisted February 8, 1865, at Rochester, Minn., as sergeant of Company F, First Minnesota Heavy Artillery, and was discharged from the hospital in Nashville, Tenn., August 23, 1865, by order from the War Department, his age being seventeen years. In 1874 he came to Spring Valley in the same county, which was his home the remainder of his life. He was associated with Henry Cobb in the drug business and later with N. R. Cobb in the dry goods business. He was also successful with farm machinery. For several years he had been dealing actively in horses, and at the time of his death was engaged in stock breeding.

Mr. Ashley was a good business man and was successful in his ventures. His everyday life was like an open book, frank, fearless, honest and honorable; and no business man had more friends. During his life he was honored with many offices, and at the time of his death he was chairman of the town supervisors and county commissioner from the third district. He was mustered into Burdick Post, No. 3, G. A. R., December 30, 1882. He was a favorite in the post and always was made its marshal upon all occasions. His Masonic record was a good one; he was initiated October 24, 1871, and raised to the degree of Master Mason December 26, 1871. He was a member of Spring Valley Lodge, No. 58, of Le Roy Royal Arch Chapter, No. 24, and of St. Bernard Commandery, No. 13, of Austin, Minn.

Mr. Ashley's health had been steadily declining for a year before his death. He was conscious up to the last moment, and died peacefully. His funeral was conducted with Masonic rites, a special train from Austin bringing a large number of his brother Masons, while many other lodges in neighboring towns were also represented. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. S. A. Middleton in the Baptist church, of which Mr. Ashley at one time was a trustee, from the text: "What is man that Thou art mindful of him."

Y.

Clarence Degrand Ashley in 1858 removed with his father's family to New York City. He attended private schools there until he was fifteen years old, when he went to Phillips Academy at Andover, Mass., where he was prepared for college and graduated in 1869. In the fall of that year he entered Yale College, and was graduated with the degree of A. B. in 1873. Upon graduation he entered his father's banking office in New York and remained there until August, 1874, gaining business experience. During this period he gave private tuition in his leisure hours, successfully preparing several young men for college. In the fall of 1875 he went to Berlin, Germany, and for the next three years remained there studying German. While there, he matriculated at the Berlin University, taking courses in Roman Law and History. In 1878 he returned to New York and entered the Columbia College Law School, from which he was graduated with the degree of LL.B. in 1880.

He was admitted to the New York Bar in 1879, and at once entered active practice in partnership with William A. Keener, now Dean of the Columbia Law School, under the firm name of Ashley & Keener. This firm was dissolved in 1883, by the removal of Professor Keener to Cambridge, where he accepted a law professorship at Harvard. Mr. Ashley continued to practice alone until 1887, when he formed a new firm, under the style of Dixon, Williams & Ashley. Upon the death of Mr. Dixon in 1891 the firm became Williams & Ashley, and is still engaged in active practice.

In the spring of 1891 Mr. Ashley became associated with Abner C. Thomas of the New York Bar in the organization of the Metropolis Law School. In June, 1891, through their efforts a charter was granted to the school by the Board of Regents of the State of New York. Mr. Ashley was appointed a member of the board of trustees of the institution and also its secretary. The executive management of the school was vested in an executive committee composed of Mr. Thomas and himself, and he was also appointed a member of the faculty as a professor of law. The school was successful and gained a reputation for thorough sound work. In the spring of 1895 the school was consolidated with the Law Department of the University of the City of New York, as its Evening Department. Mr. Ashley was appointed Professor of the Law of Contracts in the University and Vice-Dean of the Law Faculty. He was placed in charge of the Evening Department, which position he still holds. In 1895 the University of the City of New York conferred upon him the honorary degree of LL.M.

Mr. Ashley is a member of the University, City and D. K. E. clubs, the New York City Bar Association, New England Society, Yale Alumni Association and other organizations.

J.; resides in Port Republic; married 17 October 1886 in Camden, N. J., ANNA JACOB BROWN, daughter of Jacob and Mary Anna (Chew) Brown, born 9 January 1869 in Cedar Lake, N. J.

Ralph Ashley received a common school education in his native place, taking a special interest in the study of natural philosophy. At the age of eighteen, being of an inventive and mechanical turn of mind, he went to Camden, N. J., and apprenticed himself to the firm of M. A. Furbush & Son, machine builders, in which he remained nine years. In 1890 he assumed charge of the repair department of the Camden and Atlantic Electric Railroad at Atlantic City, N. J., which position he held two seasons, resigning it to become foreman of the Kennedy-Groschwitz Electric Company's shops in Philadelphia, Pa.

About the time electricity began to come into prominence as a motive power, Mr. Ashley realized its importance and adaptability, and began the study of its principles, with the result that he has taken out patents on five improvements and inventions relating thereto, the last being known as the Series Storage Battery. He returned to Port Republic in February, 1895. He has recently erected a shop in which to conduct his experiments, and writes that he is about to take up the electric carriage problem, which he thinks can be solved in connection with his battery.

285. JONATHAN ASHLEY (Robert†), born 25 February 1645-6 in Springfield, Mass.; died early in February* 1704-5 in Hartford, Conn.; married 10 November 1669 in Springfield†, SARAH WADSWORTH, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Stone) Wadsworth, bapt. 17 March 1650 in Hartford; died ?

Jonathan Ashley settled on a farm in the northerly part of Springfield. He was chosen constable in 1670 and surveyor of highways in 1672. In 1671 William Hunter complained to the court that Jonathan Ashley and his wife Sarah were harboring his daughter Sarah Hunter in their house against his wish.‡ May 4, 1674, the town granted Jonathan Ashley ten acres of upland and swamp "on the brook at the head of the plain above 3 Corner Meadow." He took the oath of allegiance at Springfield January 1, 1678-9. At a court held there September 30, 1679, Jonathan and Joseph Ashley sued Isaac Morgan "for refusing or neglecting y<sup>e</sup> performance of a bargain for y<sup>e</sup> doing of a parcel of fence."§ March 28, 1682, Jonathan Ashley of Springfield is sued by Richard Lord of Hartford for a debt of £20. The case was settled out of court, the plaintiff paying the entry money and the defendant the costs, which amounted to fourteen shillings.||

Jonathan Ashley moved to Hartford, Conn., and was pronounced a freeman of Connecticut October 11, 1683, and was admitted May 8, 1684. He continued to reside in Hartford until his death. In 1692 he sold to Col. John Pyncheon of Springfield four acres of meadow upon Poor Brook, near "Skeepmuck" in that town, but the sale was not recorded until February 10, 1698-9.* On July 30, 1694, Jonathan Ashley and his wife Sarah deeded to Edward Stebbins of Springfield "seven acres of land situated in the upper meadows on the lower side of the causeway that leads towards Hadley."† On July 8, 1696, he sold his "home lot in the northerly part of Springfield" to Peletiah Glover, his wife Sarah joining in the deed.* He still owned land in Springfield, and was present at a meeting of the proprietors held there March 20, 1698-9.

Jonathan Ashley was a considerable land holder in Hartford, owned eighty acres of land in Plainfield, and was interested in a sawmill "in Greenfield in Windsor bounds." He was a member of the First Congregational Church both in Springfield and Hartford. He left an estate of £1,030.†

In April, 1717, he bought of John Fitch two hundred acres of land in the northeast part of Windham, Conn., on both sides of Little River, for which he paid £180. This homestead farm is in the North Bigelow district of the present town of Hampton, and was owned in the family until 1863.

Samuel Ashley was commissioned ensign of the Northeast Company in the town of Windham on October 8, 1730. He was a member of the First Congregational Church of Windham, and one of the original members of the church in Hampton. He was a man of substance, and evidently one of the leading men in the section of the town in which he lived. His youngest son inherited his homestead.*

of its term of service, December 10, 1775. He reënlisted in October, 1776, for three months, as a substitute, in Captain Allen's company, Col. Nathaniel Martin's regiment, and probably was in service near New York. He reënlisted in March, 1778, for twelve months, in Capt. Thomas Allen's company, Colonel Crary's regiment. His application for a pension states that he took part in "Sullivan's expedition." A body of militia under General Tyler served under General Sullivan and engaged in the attempt to dislodge the British at Newport, and was present at the battle of Rhode Island on August 29, 1778. He reënlisted in August, 1780, for two months, in Captain Tinker's company, and also served in this company at New London for a few days at the time of the burning of that town by the British, September 6, 1781.*

Abner Ashley settled in Hampton after his marriage, and lived there until 1809†, when he removed to Tolland, Conn., where he passed the remainder of his life. He was engaged chiefly in farming.

mer of 1777. They were assigned to General Poor's Connecticut Brigade in Arnold's Division and fought in both the battles with the enemy, September 19 and October 9, 1777, in the former losing more men than any two regiments in the field. Upon their dismissal, after the surrender of Burgoyne, General Gates spoke of them as the 'two excellent militia regiments from Connecticut.' ***

Nathaniel Waldo and Colonel Lattimer.†

Daniel Ashley lived in that part of Hampton known as Canada Parish and was a farmer. His house stood on Parish Hill, between Goshen and Clark's Corners, and about a mile and a half from Chaplin station. It was destroyed by fire a few years ago. He is remembered by a granddaughter,‡ "as a tall, broad-shouldered man, into whose composition the element of fear did not enter. He was a man of great force of character, and by sheer will performed tasks of labor in his old age that many a younger man would shrink from. When eighty-eight years old, while returning home after delivering a load of wood in Plainfield, his horses shied and cramped the wheels of his wagon, throwing him out and breaking his hip. Being carried to the house of a friend nearby, the latter wished to send for Dr. Sweet to set the fracture. 'Send for him, if you wish,' said Mr. Ashley, 'but tell him to meet me at my house.' He then was helped into his wagon, and drove the twelve miles home alone. He recovered from the shock, and, with the exception of a slight lameness, his life continued a strong and active one to the end."

Y., Mrs. LUCY (HUTCHINS) CADY, widow of Joseph Cady of Batavia, born in Killingly, Conn.; died ————— 1838 on the Cady homestead in Sterling, Mich.

Thomas Ashley was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1791. He lived some years in Killingly, Conn., then removed to the West. He read law in Marietta, Ohio, and began the practice of his profession in Batavia, N. Y. In the spring of 1820 he decided to emigrate to Michigan. He made the journey by way of Detroit and Pontiac, arriving in Mount Clemens, which he had chosen as his future residence, in May, 1820. His step-son Chauncey G. Cady accompanied him, and they were among the first settlers there. The following October his wife and her son Henry Cady arrived, and the family took up their residence in a log house which stood immediately in the year of the new Weeks block. His son Alfred and step-son Horace Cady arrived in May, 1821.

Thomas Ashley was the first lawyer admitted to the bar in the Northwest Territory, the date of his admission being July 11, 1820. Independence Day was celebrated for the first time in Macomb County on July 4, 1821, and Thomas Ashley was president of the day. That year he built the first entire frame structure erected in the village. It stood on the corner east of the bank. He there had his law office and conducted a hotel. He bought about twenty acres of land in the northwest part of the village and began improvements there.

Acting in the threefold capacity of lawyer, landlord and farmer, Mr. Ashley found plenty to occupy his time, and during his brief life in Mount Clemens gave the villagers an example of untiring industry. He was popular with the young people of the village and took part in all their merry-makings. He was also a leading spirit at meetings of the business community. He was elected the first town clerk of Clinton township shortly before his death, but resigned, and was succeeded in that office by his son. He left a large property.

I., ELIZA HUMPHREY, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Bullock) Humphrey, born 12 March 1785 in Barrington; died 20 December 1828 in Chaplin. He married, 2d, 6 May 1829 in Hampton, SARAH SMITH, daughter of Solomon and Sarah (Hodgkins) Smith, born 2 January 1790 in Hampton; died 10 February 1849 in Chaplin. He married, 3d, 6 December 1849 in New York City, his cousin Mrs. LUCY (SPENCER) WASHBURN, widow of Andrew Washburn of Chaplin, and daughter of David and Lucy (Ashley (290, ix.)) Spencer, born 8 October 1786 in Hampton, Conn.; died 29 August 1870 in West Randolph, Vt.

Luther Ashley enlisted in the War of 1812. He served as corporal of Capt. Charles Palmer's company from June 13 to July 14, 1813,§ but did not like camp life at New London and returned home, his brother Jonathan taking his place in the army. He passed most of his life in Chaplin, Conn., but late in life removed to Scotland, Conn., where he died at the home of his son Gilbert. He was a farmer. He was a selectman of Chaplin in 1822, and was one of the representatives from that town in the General Assembly in 1845.

Jonathan Humphrey Ashley settled in Chaplin, Conn. He owned a small farm, but gave little attention to its cultivation, his chief business being the manufacture of boots and shoes. He had an extensive business for those days, and employed a large number of workmen as journeymen and apprentices. Once in two weeks he drove to Hartford, thirty-two miles, with a two-horse wagon load of his goods. He made his trips summer and winter alike, starting at four o'clock in the morning, going over "Bolton Notch," and returning the following morning. In February of the winter before his death he invested in a large tract of land near Oswego, N. Y., and went there to inspect it. While there, he contracted fever and ague, and an illness followed which his overworked constitution could not withstand, and was the cause of his death.

Mr. Ashley was a very ambitious man and possessed good business ability. He was one of the prominent members of the Congregational church and one of its principal supporters. In his youth he served a short time at New London, Conn., during the War of 1812, taking his brother Luther's place in the army.

Benjamin Ashley lived with his father in Tolland, Conn., when he was a young man. He was a baker by trade, and was celebrated for his crackers and gingerbread, which were in great demand at military trainings early in the century. After his marriage he settled in Vernon, Conn., where he kept a tavern at Dobson's Factory, going from there to Ellington, where he also kept a tavern. In 1818 he returned to Tolland, and engaged in the bakery business again in Tolland Street, continuing in it until 1826, when he went back to the farm to care for his parents, and there passed the rest of his life, engaged in farming.

Samuel Ashley was graduated at Brown College in 1817. He studied law, and began the practice of his profession in Ashford, Conn., where he lived until 1828. He then removed to Providence, R. I., where he continued in practice until his death.

"I now turn to one whose path through life was not in the region of 'fat contentions and flowing fees.' Those who knew Samuel Ashley well, remember him with kindness and respect. He gained none of the prizes for which men contend—wealth nor power nor fame. He had a long struggle with ill health, and a profession which furnished no play for his best powers, but he fought a good fight, and I think enjoyed his rest when at last the weary wheels of life stood still.

Mr. Ashley had many clients, but their cases, as a rule, would hardly justify large fees. He had little taste for the technicalities of his profession, but with that kind of law, 'whose seat is the bosom of God, and whose voice is the harmony of the world,' he was quite familiar. In the higher regions of thought he was at home. He was a great admirer of the Hungarian Kossuth, and spent time in study of his speeches which might, in one sense, have been more profitably employed in the preparation of his cases for the Court of Magistrates and the Court of Common Pleas. He was also a careful student of the writings of Swedenborg.

During a professional life of more than forty years, I have known many lawyers who have risen to considerable eminence, who had not a tithe of the intellectual ability of Mr. Ashley, and who in moral character fell far below his standard. Tried by the severest tests, his life was a grand success. His hands were clean, his purposes were pure, his courage never failed; he had the respect of all who knew him, and above all he had his own self-respect."†

Alfred Ashley began the study of law in his father's office in Marietta, Ohio, but ill health compelled him to abandon the idea of following the law as a profession. Coming with his father to Batavia, N. Y., he was elected constable several years in succession, and was occupied chiefly with his official duties.

In May, 1821, he followed his father to Mount Clemens, Mich., arriving there on the 24th. He at once began clearing on the North Branch, two miles north of Mount Clemens, where, in company with his step-brother Horace Cady who had accompanied him from New York, he built a dam and erected a sawmill, which Cady ran during the following winter. The place was then known as Ashley's Mills. In the summer of 1822 they built an addition large enough to receive one run of stone for a gristmill, and in 1827 flouring machinery was added. About this time the mills were sold to a Mr. Haskins.

Mr. Ashley had moved into the village after his marriage, and kept a store there for several years. In 1828 he erected the Phelps House and opened it as a hotel. It was considered the best hotel north of Detroit. He bought a tract of land in Chesterfield township, and removed there in 1845 and founded the village of Ashley, now New Baltimore, Mich. He built the first sawmill and dock there, and constructed the first steamboat. He continued to reside there until his death.

Mr. Ashley was a very active and energetic man, and accumulated quite a large property. In 1827 he was elected to succeed his father as Clerk of Clinton township, an office which he held some years. Samuel Newell Ashley settled in Scotland, Conn., where he at present resides. He learned the carpenter's trade and worked at it before the war, but since leaving the army he has been engaged in farming. He enlisted for nine months on September 9, 1862, and was mustered November 10th, as a private in Company G, Twenty-sixth Regiment Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, and was discharged August 17, 1863, at the expiration of his term of service.

Mr. Ashley belongs to Shetucket Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, in Scotland, and was one of the charter members of Thomas G. Brown Post, G. A. R., of Chaplin, with which he is still identified.

315. HENRY ASHLEY (James<sup>290</sup>, Jonathan<sup>292</sup>, Abner<sup>290</sup>, Samuel<sup>288</sup>, Jonathan<sup>285</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 9 November 1816 in Windham, Conn.; resides in Hartford, Conn.; married, 1st, 16 September 1839 in Ashford, Conn., ELIZABETH CLARK, daughter of Oliver Clark, born 6 February 1816 in Ashford; died in December 1840 in East Hartford, Conn. He married, 2d, 27 March 1843 in Colchester, Conn., MARY ISHAM BIGELOW, daughter of Abner and Mary (Foote) Bigelow, born 3 January 1817 in Marlborough, Conn.; died 26 December 1888 in Scotland, Conn.

Henry Ashley was placed by his mother, his father having died when he was a year old, in the hands of his father's sister, Mrs. Ross of Chaplin, Conn., with whom he remained until he was sixteen years old. He then apprenticed himself to his uncle Jonathan Humphrey Ashley of Chaplin, to learn the trade of a boot and shoe maker. He was with his uncle five years, and, on attaining his majority, he bought a small place and started in business for himself as a manufacturer of boots in Chaplin. An unfortunate speculation in mulberry trees at the time of the "silk worm excitement" swept away all his savings in a day, and in the spring of 1840 he removed to East Hartford, Conn., where his wife died the following December. He then went to the home of his step-father, Mr. Harvey Smith, in Hampton, Conn., where he lived a few months, going from there to Norwich, Conn., where he remained a year.

He then went to Colechester, Conn., where he married again and lived a year or two. Removing from there to New York City in 1845, he became foreman of the New York Union India Rubber Company, and held that position ten years. During that time he received offers of responsible positions with two rubber companies, one of which was to go to Paris, which owing to his wife's health he had to decline, and about the other, which was at Trenton, N. J., the company and he failed to come to an agreement.

Retiring from the rubber business, Mr. Ashley opened a shoe store in New York, but two years later the health of his wife became so poor that he decided to give up city life and return to Windham County. He built a house in Scotland, and lived there thirty-six years. In 1867 he was elected to the General Assembly as a representative from Scotland, and served on the Committee on Constitutional Amendments. In May, 1894, he sold his place in Scotland and removed to Hartford, Conn., where he has since resided. He has had no children of his own, but James Ashley settled in Scotland, Conn., the first of April following his marriage. He was a farmer, but was not a strong man, and hired men to do the farm work. During the last years of his life he bought and sold farm produce, as he could do so by driving. He was a member of the Congregational church in Scotland, and its pastor in his address at Mr. Ashley's funeral said, "He died, not leaving an enemy, and was one who always wanted to do by others as he would like them to do by him."

Elijah Ashley remained on his father's farm in Tolland, Conn., until he was twenty-two years of age. He then taught school two years, after which he went to Philadelphia, Pa., where he pursued a two year course at a medical college and studied medicine with a physician in that city. He then settled in practice in Springfield, Mass., taking Dr. Kibbee as a partner, and met with excellent success in his profession. The life of a physician, however, proved too exacting for his health, and he was obliged to abandon it, which was a great disappointment to him. After a few months rest, in September, 1843, he bought of Apollos Munn the Independent Democrat, a weekly newspaper published on Springfield Hill. Dr. Ashley moved the establishment down to Elm Street, and continued to edit the paper until November, 1844, when it was merged with the Hampden Post, which at that time was owned by Alanson Hawley.

Dr. Ashley then engaged in mercantile business, in which he continued to a greater or less extent during the remainder of his life. He removed from Springfield to Tolland, Conn., where he kept store for Judge Waldo, and also engaged in farming for the sake of his health. After regaining his health, he went to Hartford, Conn., where he entered the wholesale commission house of J. S. Curtis, who carried on the business of dealing in all kinds of "Yankee notions," silver and plated ware, etc. Mr. Ashley was there four years, then going with him to New York City, and after the business was sold to Charles and Augustus Storrs remained with them four years. His health then failed again, and in 1860 he went to Ellington, Conn., where he purchased a farm and engaged in its cultivation. He also bought out a store there, and did an extensive business for a number of years. In 1872, his sons being settled in Windsor Locks, Conn., he sold his interests in Ellington and removed to that place, and there spent the rest of his life, engaged in farming.

Dr. Ashley was a Democrat in politics, but always voted for those candidates for local office whom he considered best qualified to serve. He did not seek office, but accepted a few town offices that were really forced upon him in Tolland, Ellington and Windsor Locks, and was a member of the General Assembly from Tolland in 1858. He always took great interest in the schools, and was on the school committee in Tolland and Ellington. He was also a notary public, and took the census of several towns in 1860. He was also a notary in Windsor Locks, took the 1870 census, and was more or less engaged in town business.

320. Rev. SAMUEL STANFORD ASHLEY (Samuel<sup>303</sup>, Samuel<sup>294</sup>, Abner<sup>290</sup>, Samuel<sup>288</sup>, Jonathan<sup>285</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 12 May 1819 in Cumberland, R. I., MARY ELIZABETH EELLS, daughter of Waterman and Luthinia (Tomlinson) Eells, born 31 March 1822 in Bridgeport, Conn.; resides in Northboro'.

Samuel Stanford Ashley passed his boyhood and early manhood at his father's home in Providence, R. I., and his early education was obtained in the public schools of that city. In 1842 he became the editor of the Samaritan, a paper published in Providence, and was afterwards principal of the Meeting Street school. He was from his youth a strong advocate of temperance, and delivered many earnest addresses in that cause in Providence and adjoining towns. He pursued his theological studies at Oberlin College and was graduated at the Theological Department of that institution in 1849. He received the degree of A.M. in 1865.

S. S. Ashley

On leaving college he became the first pastor of the Evangelical Congregational Church in Globe Village, Fall River, Mass., where he remained three years. In 1852 he was called to the Congregational Church in Northboro', Mass., where he labored with great zeal and fidelity until 1864, when, impressed with the conviction that it was his duty to bear some part in the labors and dangers of the Civil War then raging, he resigned his pastorate to engage with the Rev. S. W. Alvord of the Tract Society in work among the soldiers at City Point and Fortress Monroe, Va., under the auspices of the United States Christian Commission. At the close of the war he was appointed by the Government assistant-superintendent of the Bureau for Freedmen, Refugees and Abandoned Lands, and carried on at the same time the work of the American Missionary Association among the colored people at Willington, S. C., during the days of Reconstruction. While living in that State, he was elected a member of the Constitutional Convention and took a prominent part in its deliberations. He was the first Superintendent of Public Instruction under Governor Holden, being also a member of his Council, and the admirable school system still in operation was to a great extent the work of his hands. At the close of Governor Holden's administration he resumed his work among the freedmen, which he continued until 1871, when he went to New Orleans as an instructor in Straight University, being soon after appointed its acting president. While laboring successfully in that city, he contracted yellow fever, from which he never fully recovered, and was finally obliged to return to the North.

In 1874, having to some extent regained his strength, although far from well, Mr. Ashley offered himself for further service to the American Missionary Association, and was sent to Atlanta, Ga., as the pastor of the First Congregational Church. In this field he labored with marked success until 1878, when, with health sadly impaired by his long and arduous duties in the South, he returned to Northboro', hoping to regain his strength by engaging in active work in the open air on a small farm which he had purchased in that village. Here, although practically retired from active business and in infirm health, he still felt a deep interest in every thing that concerned the well being of the people among whom he lived. He was particularly interested in the town library and the public schools, being chairman of the school committee until failing health caused him to retire, and to the extent of his ability endeavored to elevate and improve them and extend their influence.

In politics Mr. Ashley was a Republican. He was appointed postmaster of Northboro' in October, 1883, retiring under President Cleveland.

.. It is difficult, if not impossible, for those who remained safely at home during the dark days of the war, to realize what this Christian minister sacrificed when he left the people for whom he had labored so many years and whom he had learned to love, or what he endured while laboring among the soldiers and freedmen; but following in the footsteps of the Master whom he served, he devoted his life to the service of the poorest of the poor and the neediest of the needy, and although skull and crossbones met him at every turn, and warnings of certain death if he persisted in his work for a downtrodden and despised race were showered upon him, modestly and quietly he labored on, a stranger to fear, heeding neither the threats of enemies, the advice of friends, or even the entreaties of the wife and children whom he so dearly loved; where he considered it his duty to go, there he would go; and what he believed it to be his duty to say, that he would say, although surrounded by dangers so great that but for the watchful protection of the colored men, who had learned to love and trust him as their friend and benefactor, and who followed him about without his knowledge, at times actually forcing him back from certain death, his life must have been sacrificed long before his work was done."*

ANNA LOUISE STOCKER, a Canadian by birth, who died in 1883 in Logan, Iowa, aged 45 years.

“James Nye Ashley spent his youth and early manhood in Providence, R. I., where he received a substantial education. His father was a lawyer, and the son inherited much of the strict sense of justice that inhered in the legal profession of the early years of this country. He served as a clerk in the post office in Providence a few years prior to 1850, and he has often referred to his experience in that office with much unction, as compared to the duties of a similar position of the present day. At that time of life he took considerable interest in the politics of the day, and was a frequent contributor of articles bearing upon national, state and municipal affairs. He was an admirer of the old school of politicians, such as Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Benton, and others of like calibre, but of late years had given but little thought to politics, although during the war his sentiments and feelings were of no uncertain character. In the early days of telegraphy he entered upon its study, and with Superintendent Lovett went to Cincinnati, and worked in that city and in Chicago on the House printing instrument. In the latter city he suffered from a serious attack of rheumatism, but a vigorous constitution enabled him to throw it off. Since then he never was known to wear an overcoat, and although in the exceedingly severe winter of 1856-57, when he resided in Cambridge, Mass., and braved the New England storms, which for severity were historical, he was urged to protect himself with warmer wraps, he declined, saying that the colder the wind the warmer was his blood.

After serving in the West for a time, he removed to the East, taking a position in 1854 in the Springfield, Mass., office of the old American Telegraph line. After being a few years in Springfield, he was induced to go to England, accompanied by young Mr. Bishop, to introduce the House printing instrument upon the lines between London and Liverpool. Several months were spent there, but the enterprise was not a success, owing to the fact that the wires were laid underground. He returned to this country, and was given the position of chief operator of the Boston office, made vacant by the death of Harry Lloyd. In Boston he soon made hosts of friends, not only among the telegraphic but with the newspaper fraternity. He did much to perfect the system of telegraphy, and many of the most eminent students of electricity were frequently to be found in his office, including Prof. Elliott and savants of Harvard University. It was while he was in the Boston office that the writer saw him receive on a House printing instrument, sitting with his back to the instrument, write out from sound the New York Stock Market, a feat of acoustics probably never before or since performed by any one. It was also while Mr. Ashley was in the Boston office that Professor Hughes tested his instrument between the hours of 2 and 4 A. M. by an unbroken circuit from Boston to New Orleans, and back to Halifax and Boston, which was then considered an extraordinary telegraphic reach.

About the time of the breaking out of the Civil War Mr. Ashley came to New York, and went to the front as a correspondent of the New York Times, reporting two heavy battles and several skirmishes for that paper. The New York Herald then secured his services as correspondent, and after serving in the field—being many times under fire—he was detailed to the Herald bureau in Washington, on the staff of Colonel Whiteley. In his services in the army as correspondent he won the esteem and enjoyed the confidence of the generals commanding and all with whom his duties brought him in contact. He subsequently became connected with the Associated Press office in Washington, and when a change of the general agency was made in New York City was employed upon the report to the New England press. He remained in the Associated Press office a few years, when other changes were made in that department. During these years in New York he corresponded with the Boston Traveler, and wrote an occasional letter to the Providence Journal, for which paper he always possessed a sincere liking. Upon the changes being made in the New England agency, he entered into business connection with telegraphing, and assumed the editorial charge of the Telegrapher, which subsequently became consolidated with the present Journal of the Telegraph.

In 1870 Mr. Ashley entered into business relations with Frank L. Pope and T. A. Edison, as the Gold and Exchange Reporting Telegraph Company, and subsequently added to their business the construction and management of private telegraph lines, which latter enterprise was the first successful organization of this nature. In 1871 a partnership was formed, comprising James N. Ashley, Frank L. Pope, S. C. Hendrickson and J. D. Lincoln, for the manufacture of Hendrickson's automatic electric railroad signals, which was successfully carried on till the latter part of 1880, when the patent was sold to a company upon very advantageous terms.

The relations of Mr. Ashley to the telegraphic fraternity have always been of the closest nature, nearly his whole life having been identified with their interests. As Treasurer of the Telegraphers' Mutual Insurance Company, his faithful performance of the duties pertaining thereto are well known to all our readers, and his ability and circumspection in treating of subjects allied to and cognate with the electric science of the world, have been well shown forth in these columns.

In all his life, James N. Ashley was the sincere friend, the plain, truth-speaking man, the good and faithful husband and loving father, one who despised all chicanery, loathed subterfuge, loved all that was noble, of high aim, admired all that was true, honest, sincere; rugged in his openness to all men, he avoided offence to others; gentle and kindly to those he daily met in his walk of life, his memory will not soon fade away. A most marked characteristic was his unselfishness. He never, until he became unconscious in death, ceased to consider the people around him—never himself. He put himself and his own wishes entirely to one side, except when a question of right or wrong arose; then he was like a rock. His life has been a true ensample for emulation by the younger members of the profession now coming upon the active stage of life. Many there were who gathered around his bier whose thoughts ran back to the years of close companionship with him as a friend and counsellor, and as his inanimate form was returned to the earth from whence it came, honest tears fell and coursed over faces that many, many times he had greeted with a cheery smile in years gone by. There were many snowy-headed veterans in the science of electricity who paid the last tribute of respect to him who had believed that his years would have outrun their own. May his upright life be a beacon to us all."*

dence under the firm name of Ashley & Colwell, and they were associated in practice up to the time of Mr. Ashley's removal to New York City in 1872. At the time of his changing his residence to New York, Mr. Ashley had become a leading member of the Providence Bar, and will be remembered by his associates as a man of marked native ability, and of thorough training and acquirements in his profession. He ably represented the city of Providence in the State Legislature from May, 1869, to May, 1871.

After coming to New York City in 1872, Mr. Ashley was for about ten years in partnership with his younger brother George, and from then until his decease they occupied adjoining offices. His time was mainly occupied in the successful practice of his profession, with the exception of a year spent in foreign travel. He went abroad in the spring of 1878, and returned in May, 1879, and within a year after his return resumed his practice.

Mr. Ashley was a strong Republican and was much interested in the success of that party. He was actively engaged as a member of the Republican Club of New York City, at first as a member of its executive committee and later as its vice-president. He always thoroughly studied the issues involved, and was a strong, interesting, and effective speaker in the political field. He was very happy in his married life, and was in every way an estimable man, both in social and professional life. His death occurred in Jacksonville, Fla., where he had been staying for some months, trying to recover his health.

His funeral services were held at Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church and were conducted by Rev. Messrs. Hinkle and Cameron. A committee of fifty from the Republican Club attended in a body, and there were also present a large number of the relatives and intimate friends of Mr. Ashley, including many prominent members of the bar. The burial took place in Woodlawn Cemetery.

“Mr. Ashley was a master of languages, and earnestly seeking for knowledge and truth had rendered him a fine scholar, without pretension. Those who were favored with his intimacy found him a man of profound thought, instructive and interesting. He will be further remembered as a man living practically up to a keen sense of all the obligations of life, with a genuine warmth of heart."*

A TRIBUTE TO LUCIUS C. ASHLEY.

To the Editor of the Tribune :

Sir—The death of Lucius C. Ashley, whose funeral took place this morning at Calvary Church, seems to merit more than a passing notice. As one who knew him intimately for many years, who knew his gentle nature and delighted in his companionship, I beg space for a brief tribute. He was refined, cultured and sympathetic. From his extensive travel, and his familiarity with the languages and literature of Europe, and his comprehensive reading generally, he possessed a well-rounded mind and character. As a lawyer he evinced not only great capacity for labor, but much readiness for digesting intricate questions of law and in expressing his views thereon with clearness. He realized that there was only one way to do anything, and that was emphatically the right way. As a philosophical thinker and lover of his fellow-men, he did all that lay in his power to raise them to a higher plane—morally and politically. As a companion in travel or by the fireside, he was entertaining. He was not only genial but witty ; not only witty but wise ; not only wise and noble, but educating. His nature was somewhat metaphysical and poetical. He loved to hold communion with Nature's visible forms, and allow his fancy to wander where the mind perchance could see "tongues in trees and books in running brooks"—for he saw good in everything. His mind was inductive, and he instinctively contemplated men, their natures and life to come. He loved, like Southey :

' Uncontrolled, as in a dream,
To muse upon the course of human things ;
Or, following upon thought's audacious wings,
Into futurity the endless stream.'

His habits and tastes were social and literary, and he drew around him the refined and cultivated. In him frankness and substantiality were marked characteristics, and these always inspire confidence and cement friendship. While his death is most deeply deplored by his immediate family, those who knew him well can but mourn the loss of his companionship. In the realization of the sweet resignation which possessed him—for he considered death but a transition—and the deep contemplation which made his life sublime, we may say of him :

Thy day has come, not gone ;
Thy sun has risen, not set ;
Thy life is now beyond
The reach of death or change.
Not ended—but begun.

O noble soul ! O gentle heart ! Hail ! and farewell.

SONNET IN MEMORY OF L. C. ASHLEY.

BY JOHN FREEMAN BAKER.

*A mighty man upon his dying bed,
Ere yet life's fitful spark had ebb'd away,
In darkness cried, "More light! more light!" while day
In regal beauty still on sunbeams fed.*

*But thou, dear friend, whose death makes heavy moan,
With resignation passed the silent vale,
In faith that He who made mankind so frail,
In His good time will claim them for His own.*

*To his loved spouse, give strength to bear her loss,
Thou whom this life-fill'd world hath richly blest,
And faith to feel that all is for the best.*

*That our afflictions are thy loving cross;
And that, there is no death to those who see
The Star of Hope that shines from Calvary.*

324. EDWARD CLARENDON ASHLEY (Samuel<sup>303</sup>, Samuel<sup>294</sup>, Abner<sup>290</sup>, Samuel<sup>288</sup>, Jonathan<sup>265</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 15 May 1834 in Providence, R. I.; died 11 January 1894 in Providence; married 2 September 1861 in Providence, JULIA ANNA BARTON, daughter of Robert Henry and Julia Ann (Bennett) Barton, born 16 August 1841 in Providence; resides in Providence.

Edward Clarendon Ashley settled in Providence, R. I., the city of his birth. He was educated in the public schools, and in early manhood was engaged in the jewelry business and for a short time in the office of Mr. Slocum the lumber dealer. In 1857, at the age of twenty-three, he was appointed deputy collector of the port of Providence by Collector James Aborn. The custom house had just been transferred to the present post office building which had been erected that year, and it was there that Mr. Ashley began his duties.

Throughout the political vicissitudes and upheavals which have occurred since, Mr. Ashley without intermission held the office of deputy collector, proving himself a most capable official. With the experience acquired by long continuance in office, he grew to be the tutor of each succeeding collector during the administrations of Lincoln, Johnson, Grant, Hayes, Cleveland, Harrison and Cleveland again, being still in office at the time of his death.

Mr. Ashley had been practically for a long time the working collector, as upon him each new appointee naturally relied for the proper discharge of the work of the office. He was also clerk of the port, and in this position as in the other his methods were most highly commended. It is probable that he was the oldest deputy collector in actual service in the United States, certainly in a port the size of Providence.

During his long life Mr. Ashley filled all positions with fidelity and integrity, and was unselfish and kindly considerate to all with whom he was brought into contact. Collector Pomroy, in speaking of him, said, "His qualities were of the noblest. In business his every act was praiseworthy." Mr. Ashley was an attendant at the Union Congregational Church. His death was the result of an attack of the gripe.

ALFRED ASHLEY (Alfred<sup>311</sup>, Thomas<sup>297</sup>, Joseph<sup>291</sup>, Samuel<sup>288</sup>, Jonathan<sup>285</sup>, Robert<sup>1</sup>), born 7 October 1825 in Mount Clemens, Mich.; died 11 November 1874 in New Baltimore, Mich.; married, 1st, 7 June 1858 in Mount Clemens, JOSEPHINE MARY COOKE, daughter of Dewey Benjamin and Almeda (Bevins) Cooke, born 22 April 1830 in Warrensville, Ohio; resides in Columbus, Ohio. They were divorced by mutual consent. He married, 2d, in November 1871 in New Baltimore, Mrs. ELLEN (ROSE) STONE, widow of Elias L. Stone of Romeo, Mich., and daughter of Henry and Matilda (Furman) Rose, born 26 October 1837 in Orange Co., N. Y.; died 25 May 1893 in New Baltimore.

Alfred Ashley in early manhood engaged in mercantile business in Detroit, Mich. At the death of his father, in 1857, he returned to his home in New Baltimore, Mich., where he established himself in the furniture and undertaking business, and was also occupied with the care of the considerable real estate left by his father.

In the second year of the Civil War, in June, 1862, Mr. Ashley received his commission as captain to recruit a company. The company was mustered on August 22d as Company F, Twenty-second Michigan Volunteers. Ill health compelled him to resign his captaincy on November 27, 1862, and he returned to New Baltimore, where he continued in business the rest of his life.

Mr. Ashley was a most honorable man in all the relations of life, and was highly respected by all. He was one of the earliest and most prominent residents of New Baltimore. He died after an illness of only three days.

Y.; married 28 October 1868 in Ilion, N. Y., ALICE IRLAM, daughter of John and Jane (Qualter) Irlam, born 4 October 1850 in Manchester, England; resides in Brooklyn.

Charles Newland Ashley as a young man was employed in several gun shops and similar manufactories. He enlisted in the Union Army September 3, 1862, for nine months, as a private in Company K, Twenty-sixth Regiment New Jersey Volunteers, but was discharged for disability (inflammatory rheumatism brought on by exposure) at Hagerstown, Md., the first of the following December. He was taken home, where he suffered more or less from rheumatism for two years. Being somewhat recovered, he reënlisted in Company E, Thirty-seventh Regiment New Jersey Volunteers, Col. E. Burd Grubb, and was mustered May 31, 1864, for one hundred days' picket duty from June 23, 1864. He was promoted corporal May 31, and sergeant June 24, 1864, and was discharged at Trenton, N. J., at the expiration of his term of service, October 1, 1864. He suffered greatly from rheumatism all the time he was out, but insisted on serving his time.

After leaving the army, Mr. Ashley went to work in a pistol factory in Elizabeth, N. J., and in October, 1867, removed to Ilion, N. Y., where he was employed in the E. Remington & Sons' gun factory, when his health permitted him to work, until 1872. He then entered Colt's factory in Hartford, Conn., where he worked on street car indicators. He returned to Ilion about a year later, and worked for the Remingtons on guns for the Spanish government. In February, 1879, he came to Brooklyn, N. Y., and entered the employ of the Hall Manufacturing Company in New York City, going with it in February, 1880, to Milford, Conn., where he remained until June, 1881. He then returned to Brooklyn, where he was in the employ of the Brady Manufacturing Company, makers of electric lamps, until 1889. From then until 1891 he was with the Hammond Typewriter Company in New York City.

His health having failed very rapidly for some time, he was obliged to give up work in October, 1891. He suffered very much from heart trouble, brought on by rheumatism contracted in the army, and he died suddenly early one morning while passing from one room to another in his house in Brooklyn. Mr. Ashley was a loving husband and kind father, and a general favorite among his friends. In religion he was a Spiritualist, as are all of his family.

She married, 2d, 2 March 1698-9 in Springfield, Joseph Williston of Springfield, and died 23 August 1711 in Springfield.

Joseph Ashley settled on the west side of the Connecticut River in what is now West Springfield. He had inherited all his father's lands in that part of Springfield, which made him a considerable land owner there. His home lot of five acres was bounded on the north by the land of John Bagg, on the east by the Connecticut River, on the south by the land of Nathaniel Morgan and on the west by the highway.† He also owned land in the Farm Meadow and in Chicopee Field on the west side of the river, as well as land near Agawam River, and a lot on the east side of the Connecticut in Springfield.

Joseph Ashley's homestead was in the Riverdale district of West Springfield. His eldest son inherited it, and the latter's descendants have lived on it and in that neighborhood. His youngest son's descendants became so numerous that the part of the town where most of them resided was named Ashley-ville, a name still in use. "It is a fact worthy of note, that the Ashleys as a family, during the entire long period they have lived in West Springfield, have been among the first in thrift, respectability, and all interests tending to advance the well-being of society."*

Joseph Ashley was chosen surveyor of highways on the east side of the town in 1676 and 1677. On January 1, 1678-9, he took the oath of allegiance to the Colony. In 1682 he was chosen town constable and held that office until 1684. On December 5, 1682, he was "chosen prizer for the Towne's stocke for makeing the Towne's Rates." With Nathaniel Morgan he was chosen fence viewer "for Chickuppe Field, West Side," on February 11, 1683, and held that office a number of years.

Joseph Ashley was involved with the court at various times, either on account of violating some ordinance of the town or for not performing satisfactorily the duties of the offices which he had been chosen to fill. On July 31, 1679, he was summoned by the warrant of Isaac Morgan for taking his horse out of pasture and riding him, and was fined ten shillings.

"At a County Court held at Springfield September 28, 1680: Joseph Ashley being presented by the grand jury to this Court for his working his team two hours or thereabouts, after sundown y<sup>e</sup> night before y<sup>e</sup> Lord's Day, and so for his prophaneing y<sup>t</sup> holy time this Court to bear due testimony against such kind of growing and provokeing prophaneness doe ajudge y<sup>e</sup> said Joseph Ashley to pay to y<sup>e</sup> County Treasurie as a fine the sum of 5<sup>s</sup>."†

On December 24, 1680, Joseph Ashley got an attachment against Thomas Hancock, and the latter, being committed to prison in Boston, afterwards engaged himself as apprentice to Ashley.‡ At a session of the court, held at Northampton March 29, 1681, Joseph Ashley appeared as attorney for John Higby of Windsor, plaintiff against Thomas Hancock, to recover £2 17<sup>s</sup> 10<sup>d</sup>, and the court found that sum for the plaintiff. In another case in which he appeared for Higby and others to recover £20, the court found for the defendant with costs of £1 12<sup>s</sup> 6<sup>d</sup>.

March 28, 1682, "Joseph Ashley, presented to the Court for taking and marking of other men's horses contrary to law and to answer at the next Court at Northampton, not appearing, is fined 10<sup>s</sup>."

September 30, 1684, "Joseph Ashley, late constable of Springfield, is fined 40<sup>s</sup> for not making proper returning of his collecting of County Rates."

May 18, 1685, "Joseph Ashley is presented for 10 rods of defective fence three days and we do sentence him to pay 15 shillings."

April 23, 1686, "Joseph Ashley is presented for want of a stake and is adjudged to pay nine shillings to the Towne." He was fined again for a like offence in 1688 and 1691.

February, 1691, "Joseph Ashley fined six shillings for absenting himself from town-meeting."

June 22, 1693, "Joseph Ashley and Nathaniel Morgan complained of for neglecting their duties as fence viewers and are fined five shillings."

In 1694 James Munn recovered damages from Joseph Ashley for "taking all the hay he had moved to halves."

The foregoing extracts show for what slight violations of the law a man could be summoned to appear before the court in those days. It was in the spring of 1686, however, that Joseph Ashley found himself involved in a serious difficulty, which gained him much unpleasant notoriety and nearly caused a separation between him and his wife.

A few months previous to his marriage Joseph Ashley had formed an intimacy with Deborah Miller,* a young woman in Springfield, which resulted in their being summoned before the court.† In consequence of this affair, his wife in connec-

Sufficient evidence of the correctness of this statement has been found aside from the convincing proof in Spring. T. tion with her brother and mother made application for a divorce in February, 1687, but through the exertions of mutual friends they became reconciled and lived together until his death.

The inventory of Joseph Ashley's estate was not taken until October 27, 1711, after the decease of his widow. It amounted to £329-9<sup>s</sup>-6<sup>d</sup>, and the property was divided among his five children, the sons taking the real estate and the daughters the movables and a money equivalent. His oldest son had the homestead.*

Joseph Ashley inherited his father's homestead in the Riverdale district in West Springfield, where he settled and passed his life, engaged in farming. He was chosen town constable March 12, 1717.‡

"On March 22, 1713-4, Benjamin Smith, John Bagg, Jonathan Bagg, Joseph Ashley and Nathaniel Sikes, Jr., presented a petition for liberty to set up a sawmill upon the stream called Paucatuck brook at the upper fall, with five or six acres of land for ponding, which permission was granted."

West Springfield, JANE SHAW, a native of Ireland,† who died 25 December 1788 in West Springfield, aged 87 years.

Benjamin Ashley was brought up by his step-father, Joseph Williston, and learned the trade of a carpenter and housewright. He settled in that part of West Springfield which is now called Ashleyville from the fact that his descendants became so numerous and such extensive land owners in that section of the town. He accumulated a considerable property, which at his death included a wharf, millpond and mills, besides a large amount of land.*

Benjamin Ashley does not appear to have sought public office. He was chosen fence viewer in 1731, 1737 and 1740, and town constable in 1742, but refused to take the oath of the latter office. He and his wife united with the First Congregational Church in West Springfield in 1742.

Springfield, ELEANOR MILLER, daughter of Capt. Joseph and Mary (Combs) Miller, born about 1722 in Ludlow, Mass.; died 14 April 1808 in West Springfield, aged 86 years.

Joseph Ashley settled on his father's homestead in Riverdale in West Springfield. He learned the trade of a carpenter and joiner from his uncle Benjamin Ashley, and followed it more or less throughout his life. He was engaged chiefly in farming, however, and owned a large amount of real estate in the Riverdale district.

346. JOHN ASHLEY (Benjamin<sup>340</sup>, Joseph<sup>337</sup>, Robert†), born 20 June 1740 in West Springfield, Mass.; died 17 July 1824 in West Springfield; married 10 May 1770 in ? West Springfield, ELIZABETH FREELAND, who died 28 May 1815 in West Springfield, aged 68 years.

John Ashley settled in Ashleyville in West Springfield and was a farmer by occupation. He built a house on the hill just west of the river road, on the road turning to the left a short distance north of the cemetery. Later he built a house for his nephew David Ashley, whom he had adopted, next east of his own, and after his uncle's death David went to live in his house. Both houses are still standing and attract much attention.‡

"The houses are pleasantly located on a rise of ground overlooking the Connecticut River and surrounding country. The John Ashley house,‡ which might well be the envy of the city dweller, is reputed to be one of the oldest houses in town, having been erected over one hundred years ago. It is built in a substantial manner, is well preserved, and presents an appearance of comfort and stability such as belongs especially to the houses standing on the fine old farms in New England, and which seem to connect the modern with the times of our worthy forefathers."§

* By W. Spring, T. Rec., 22 by his gravestone, which recites that "in consequence of a violent casualty, [he] expired in bitter anguish of body, but sweet consolation of mind."

"Read this my friends ! (with melting eyes),
And call to mind ! my last advice.
Truth which I spake ! with faltering tongue,
My grave proclaims ! in accents strong."

CHURCH ON MEETING HOUSE HILL,
WEST SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

John Ashley served in the Revolution, and his name is on the roll of Capt. Reuben Munn's company, Col. Nicholas Dike's regiment, dated at Roxbury, September 17, 1776,* and at Boston, November 26, 1776.† He was in Capt. Levi Ely's company, Col. John Moseley's regiment (the 3d Hampshire), from September 21 to October 1, 1777, and served "at the northward."‡

Mr. Ashley was a public-spirited man. He gave the town land for a burial place for the accommodation of the north parish in 1787, and in 1789 he gave the parish a small library. In 1792 he gave $174 to constitute a fund for the support of the communion table of the church. In 1799 he offered $1300 as a fund for the support of the ministry, on condition that the parish would erect a spacious meeting-house on a spot designated by him, about half a mile from the place where the old meeting-house stood. On January 6, 1800, they voted their thankful acceptance of the donation, and thus witnessed the termination of a long and violent contest, which had threatened the dissolution of the society. In 1819 Mr. Ashley gave $22 to purchase a bible for the use of the pulpit. Considering the times, the gifts of Mr. Ashley were very liberal.§

He and his wife had united with the First Congregational Church in 1772, and he was urged repeatedly to become one of its deacons, but he always declined to accept the office. He was usually to be found at town meetings, and acted as moderator in 1793.||

He and his wife were buried in Ashleyville, in the cemetery which he had given to the town. Their gravestones are inscribed:

|| His will, dated 18 Dec. 1818, proved 1 Sept. 1824, states that he had "adopted his nephew David Ashley as his own son," and mentions Moses, Elisha and Polly (children of his brother Moses, deceased), David, Solomon, Noah, Enoch, Aaron, Eunice and Lucretia (children of his brother David, deceased), and Francis son of their brother Justin, deceased. He left a trust fund "to be divided into two distinct parts; two-thirds to be appropriated exclusively towards the education of youth within the town of West Springfield, and the other remaining one-third to be appropriated towards the propagation and diffusion of Christian knowledge."

Benjamin Ashley settled on his father's land in West Springfield. He conducted a large farm, and kept a large number of stock and several hundred sheep. He also owned a sawmill at "Bear Hole" in the western part of the town. He and his son Daniel operated the ferry between West Springfield and Chicopee, and on that account opposed the building of the bridge over the Connecticut between those places. He was a man of wonderful energy, and, in addition to his other business, traveled around the country in search of churches, houses and other movable buildings. He thoroughly enjoyed superintending a job, and would work as laboriously for nothing as for pay. While urging on the work of moving a building one day, one of his men, becoming exasperated at his energy, exclaimed, "Captain Ben, it would take more cloth to make you a jacket than the Almighty an overcoat." Elijah Ashley inherited from his father a handsome landed property, and a number of fine horses and cattle in Ashleyville in West Springfield. He settled there, and had become a bachelor of thirty-four before he thought of marriage. He came with a coach and four to claim his bride at the Champion homestead in Amostown. The horses were magnificent black ones, and this bridal equipage, with its luxurious fittings, and yellow wheels and body, created a great stir in the town. It was called a chariot and was entered at the rear.

He removed in middle life to Tatham, another hamlet in West Springfield. When the Boston and Albany Railroad was staked out across his farm there, he did all he could to oppose its construction. The letters he wrote to the newspapers on this subject were bright and fearless, and indicate that he thoroughly enjoyed litigation. It is said that he tried

Elisha Ashley was born on his great-grandfather's homestead in Ireland Parish in West Springfield, now within the limits of the city of Holyoke, and settled there after his marriage. At one time 300 acres there, now of much value, was held by the Ashleys. The old homestead was sold soon after his father's death, in the summer of 1863, to the City of Holyoke, and Ashley Pond is now one of the sources of water supply for the city.

Mr. Ashley went to the public schools and worked on the farm, where his earlier years were spent. With the exception of a few years residence in Huntington and Westfield, he had always lived in Holyoke, and for years his home had been on Cherry Street. For eighteen years he had worked as millwright at the Merrick Thread Mill. His death was caused by pneumonia, with heart failure at the end. His wife's mother, Mrs. Emily M. Coit, aged 92, died of the same disease the same day at his house, a most unusual occurrence.

389. JOSEPH ASHLEY (Joseph<sup>337</sup>, Robert†), born 16 April 1686 in Springfield, Mass.; died 2 April 1780 in Springfield; married 15 December 1720 in Springfield,* MARY BIDWELL,† who died 14 July 1733 in Springfield.

Joseph Ashley settled on the east side of the Connecticut River in the southern part of Springfield and lived there all his life. He early learned the trade of a carpenter and joiner, which, together with farming, he followed most of his long life. Some of the items about him in the early Springfield records are as follows: "November 22, 1717, granted to Joseph Ashley five shillings and two pence for his work about y<sup>e</sup> pound;" "to Joseph Ashley for worke att y<sup>e</sup> schoole house 6<sup>s</sup>, for nailes for y<sup>e</sup> schoole house 12<sup>s</sup>;" "to Joseph Ashley for a Great Chaire for y<sup>e</sup> schoole 5<sup>s</sup>;" "to Joseph Ashley for repairing the meetinghouse on the east side 5<sup>s</sup>" [1722].

He appears to have held only minor offices in the town. He was chosen fence viewer in 1710. On March 13, 1715-6, he was "chosen to prosecute the law concerning swine."‡ In 1721 and 1722 he was "chosen to execute the law respecting bord and shingles." He was chosen tythingman in 1723 and constable in 1729. He held a few other minor offices at various times during his life. His "new house" is mentioned in 1770. His grave is unmarked.

Joseph Ashley was a member of the Springfield church, and in 1736 protested with twenty other men against the support of Mr. Robert Breck, upon the ground that he was not an orthodox minister.

† The compiler has been unable to prove which of the Mary Bidwells she was.

‡ See last foot-note to No. 337.

"It was about the time of the second visit of Whitefield that Joseph Ashley, a member of the Springfield church, charged Mr. Breck with a refusal to admit into his pulpit Whitefield, Wheelock and Dewey. The church promptly voted that Ashley had manifested a censorious and uncharitable spirit towards his Church and the Pastor of it."*

"But it would be uncandid to neglect to say that many in Springfield in Breck's time deplored the liberality he encouraged. It probably soon drove some from the parish. And we have at least one, Joseph Ashley, who absented himself permanently from divine service. When the church demanded his reasons, he replied that he 'looked upon the church as no church of Christ, and the greater part of the members of it to be carnal.' Being asked the reasons of his entertaining such ideas concerning the church, he said that 'most of the discourse of most of the members was upon worldly matters, and that he apprehended such discourse was mostly delightful to them. And further he objected against the manner of admission of members practiced in this Church, because they did not require a particular account of their experiences, but accepted of a Profession of dedicating themselves to God, and a Life and Conversation corresponding thereto.' The church lost no time in voting that Ashley had left its communion for errors that had not been authenticated."†

Joseph Ashley settled as a farmer in his native town. His first purchase of land was on July 26, 1744, from Gershom Ferry. In 1753 his father gave him "the twenty-five acre place where he now lives, near the new bridge at Mill River, and a twelfth part of a sawmill on Mill River." In 1765 he had a road laid out by the town "along by the plum trees to the Widow Bond's and also from his place to meet a cross road by Crandal's or Hale's." In 1767 he sold one-third of the sawmill at "Pecowsick Mills." He continued to hold a right in the corn and sawmill there, however, until his death. He was chosen surveyor of highways in 1751, constable in 1754 (excused) and 1756, and was deer-reeve a great many years.* Joseph Ashley and his wife Hannah were buried in the old cemetery at the foot of Elm Street. Timothy Ashley settled first in his native town and entered upon the profession of a journalist. On September 26, 1799, he purchased from Francis Stebbins the Federal Spy, a newspaper which had been started in 1793 by James R. Hutchins, who sold it to Mr. Stebbins in 1796. Mr. Ashley continued the paper until the spring of 1801, when he took Mr. Henry Brewer into the establishment. Two years later Mr. Ashley sold the Spy to Mr. Brewer. After this he is said to have been connected with a type foundry for a few years.

In 1815 he had removed to Boston, Mass., and was a journeyman printer, and may have worked for the Zion Herald. He lived in Boston the rest of his life. He and his wife joined the New Jerusalem (Swedenborgian) Church in Boston in 1830, and the latter made it a bequest in her will. She conducted a circulating library for some years at 134 Hanover Street.

Noah Ashley and his brother settled as farmers in East Longmeadow, Mass., their houses being on opposite sides of the village street. He is also said to have lived a short time in Windsor, Vt. After his second marriage he is supposed to have settled in Westfield,‡ Mass., where he kept a hotel.

"He was a hotel-keeper by nature, his own genial temperament peculiarly fitting him for such a position, and he made a success at the business. His wife Sarah had the reputation of setting the best table and being the best landlady in the county. During the winter season, when balls were common, they were frequently held at Captain Ashley's, as he was called, for Mrs. Ashley excelled in her roast turkeys and pigs, mince pies and fruit cakes."§

"Returning to Springfield, Mass., Captain Ashley married a third time, and lived there a few years. He then removed to North Adams, Mass., where his eldest son was living, and in his old age went to Port Huron, Mich., to pass his remaining years with his eldest son. He was a captain in the Massachusetts militia and was always called by that title."||

Charles Douglas Ashley, when a young man, was a cashier in a bank in Sandusky, Ohio. About 1839 he emigrated to Michigan and went into the dry goods business with his brother George in Adrian, Lenawee County.‡ They were together about a year, when George sold his interest to his brother. In the meantime Mr. Ashley's father-in-law had built a flouring mill in Canandaigua, Mich., and the latter persuaded him to take charge of that business. He did so in 1842, and at Mr. Penniman's death Mrs. Ashley inherited it, so her husband continued in charge, and did a flourishing business until the mill was burned, about 1856. He did not rebuild it, but engaged in farming, and was so engaged during the rest of his life. In the summer of 1867 he went to St. Charles County, Missouri, and bought a farm in Pauldingville, two and a half miles from Foristel Station, where he died six years later.

Y. She married, 2d, in October 1851 in Geneva, N. Y., John S. Chapin of Chapinville, N. Y., and Quincy, Mich., and died 3 December 1887 in Quincy.

George Douglas Ashley learned early in life to depend on his own exertions. It was his great desire to have a college education, his aspiration being the ministry. He entered Yale College, as a resident of Westfield, Mass., his mother's home, in the fall of 1835, but was obliged to leave college during his Junior year on account of ill health. This ended his student life, and about 1839 he emigrated to Adrian, Mich., where he and his brother Charles opened a dry goods house under the firm name of Ashley Brothers. It was among the first business houses and the first dry goods store established in the town. Not long after his marriage he sold his interest in the store, and removed to Canandaigua in the same county, where he was interested in a flouring-mill. He also opened a dry goods store there. This was in the line of a plan he had made to eventually settle in Toledo, Ohio, where he hoped to become a prominent business man of that already thriving town. During the fall of 1845 he sold out all his interests in Canandaigua and went to Port Huron, Mich., where he engaged in the lumber business. He removed the following spring to Toledo and opened a dry goods store. He also invested largely in wheat, being obliged to store it in a building unfit for such a purpose, as there was at that time no elevator in the town. The building was five stories high, and the great weight on the upper floor caused it to give way and it carried down all the others. The grain began to heat, and men were hired to remove it. While assisting at this work, he over-exerted himself and was seized with a bilious fever, a sickness his delicate constitution could not throw off, and he died in about two weeks.

Mr. Ashley was a most exemplary young man. His mother knew him as the best of sons, and his wife found him a kind and affectionate husband. His business abilities were marked, and while, no doubt, the ministry lost an able advocate, the commercial world gained a fine business man. He was an ardent Presbyterian in his religious views, and he and his wife were members of that church.

His widow returned to her native place, and in 1848 purchased a house in Geneva, N. Y., where, after a widowhood of five years, she married again and resided until 1854, when she and her husband removed to Quincy, Mich. After his death she resided the rest of her life with her youngest daughter in that place.

Simeon Ashley settled in his native place and was a farmer. His father built him a house on his farm at the time of his marriage, in which all of his children were born. Later he moved into the old homestead, which is now owned by the children of his youngest son. His own house was destroyed by fire a few years ago.

Mr. Ashley was a liberal supporter of the Congregational church, and gave generously to all benevolent objects. He had musical tastes, and was leader of the church choir for several years. He also taught classes in vocal music. He always declined all offers of public office.

Lewis White Ashley was a civil engineer by profession. He began his career at the age of nineteen, under his lifelong friend Capt. John Childe and George Whistler, both distinguished engineers, on the Western Railroad, now the Boston and Albany. In 1840, as engineer, he surveyed and completed the tunnel on the Boston and Albany near the Massachusetts State line, and in 1843 made survey and location of the Hartford and Springfield Railroad. In 1844 he was engaged in rebuilding the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad in North Carolina. The following year he was made general superintendent of the Hudson and Berkshire Railroad. In 1846, under Captain Childe, he constructed the Greenfield and Northampton Railroad, and in 1848, with Captain Childe, he surveyed and constructed the Cleveland and Columbus. In 1850 he was made general superintendent of the Michigan Southern and Erie and Kalamazoo, and the next year decided the final location of the Norwalk, Toledo and Cleveland Railroad in Ohio. While he was detained at Toledo, a great storm blew the water from the west end of Lake Erie so as to expose the bottom of Maumee Bay, seven feet below the lake surface level. The knowledge gained by this strange event caused the great depot to be located in the river, on what was called the "middle ground," instead of on the main land.

In 1852, with R. B. Mason, he surveyed the Illinois Central from Kankakee County to the mouth of the Ohio River, and, as division engineer, constructed it from Centralia to Cairo, with works at the latter place. He purchased most of the land that the town of Anna, Ill., now covers, naming it for an old lady whom he highly esteemed. The town of Ashley on this railroad was named in his honor. In 1854, with his old friend and patron John Childe, he was engaged as engineer of the Mobile Railroad, living at Paducah, Ky. This same year he bought land at St. Johns, Ill., and opened the first coal mine between Chicago and Cairo, now known as the "Du Quoin" mines. He sold the mines in 1859, and bought an interest in the Placer gold mine, twenty-one miles south of Santa Fé, and with his family crossed the great plains in 1860. He returned to Anna, Ill., in 1861, as rumors of war prevented work at the mines. In 1866 he went to San Antonio, Texas, bought water power and stock, built a mill, and resided there, on the Rio de la San Antonio, until his death.

David Franklin Ashley early learned the trade of a printer, under John B. Eldridge in the office of the Hampden Whig, which supported the administration of General Jackson. He became partner of E. D. Beach, Esq., who had bought the Whig of Mr. Eldridge in February, 1835. The paper was continued under the name of the Hampden Post by them and the firm of D. F. Ashley & Co. until July 1, 1843, when the establishment was purchased by Alanson Hawley.

In the spring of 1847 Mr. Ashley started the Palmer (Mass.) Times. The paper was printed in Springfield, but only one number was published, as the encouragement was insufficient to warrant its continuance. After he gave up publishing the paper, he went into the "Yankee notion" business, later giving this to his eldest son, who discontinued it on his removal to Troy, N. Y.

John Eckley Ashley settled in Boston, and became a clerk in a kitchen furnishing store in that city. During the Civil War, he enlisted August 29, 1862, as a private in Company F, Forty-fourth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers. He participated in no large battles, but was engaged in a few skirmishes, and was discharged June 18, 1863, at the expiration of his term of service. After leaving the army, he opened a lamp and glassware store on Kilby Street, Boston, and was burned out in the great fire of November, 1872. He managed to save a few goods, and opened another store on Union Street, but, on being again burned out, he sold his business, and at the time of his death was shipper in the bedding warehouse of A. L. Haskell & Co. of Boston.

Mr. Ashley lived for the two years succeeding his marriage in Boston, the next six in Charlestown, and the remainder of his life in Somerville. He and his wife were members of the First M. E. Church of Boston, transferring their connection to the First M. E. Church of Somerville on their removal there in May, 1867.

Mr. Ashley was a member of Willard C. Kinsley Post, G. A. R., of Somerville, and on the excursion of the Sheridan Veterans to Virginia he was appointed and served as commissary. He was also a member of the Knights of Honor. In 1880 he was appointed enumerator to take the Tenth Census in his district, including the manufactures in Somerville.

Frank Ashley came with his father to San Antonio, Texas, and entered the business of raising cattle and horses in the open in 1867, at the age of thirteen, on his father's ranch. He writes, that he "hardly knew what a fence was." In 1875, when a new precinct was created, he was elected a justice of the peace, and served about six years, when he resigned. In 1885 he began trading in horses, buying and selling them by the drove, and also shipped Texas ponies to over a dozen States, and was in that business for some years. From 1885 to 1892 he was occupied in conducting his farms and pasture on the west bank of the San Antonio River, opposite San Juan

I am preparing THE ASHLEY GENEALOGY, a history of the descendants of ROBERT ASHLEY, one of the first settlers of Springfield, Mass. Thus far I have been most successful in gathering the records of the earlier generations, and receiving prompt replies and a hearty endorsement of my undertaking from the members of the family now living to whom I have written for information concerning the later generations.

I began my work by visiting the localities where the early families of Robert Ashley's descendants settled, and personally examined and made extracts from the records of various kinds at Springfield, West Springfield, Westfield, Sheffield, Pittsfield, Deerfield, Stockbridge, Sunderland, Leverett and Longmeadow in Massachusetts, and Hartford and Windham in Connecticut. The system of record districts in Massachusetts rendered a visit to Northampton, Great Barrington and Greenfield also necessary. To supplement the information collected from these sources I have copied gravestones and rolls of military service, and examined hundreds of family and town histories and kindred books, and city, county and state directories.

From their birthplaces in Massachusetts and Connecticut the Ashleys emigrated to New Hampshire, Vermont and New York, and established themselves in Winchester, Claremont and Walpole, N. H., Shrewsbury and Vershire, Vt., and Catskill, Fort Ann, Hampton, Hudson, Lyons and Troy, N. Y. Others settled in several towns in Chautauqua, Lewis, Livingston and Saratoga counties in the latter State and in Susquehanna county, Pa. From these places they have spread through New England, the Middle States and the West. While I expect that it may still be necessary for me to visit certain localities in New Hampshire, Vermont and New York, I must depend largely on correspondence for the information I seek of the Ashleys in these as well as the States further west.

As many who receive this circular will wish to know why I am preparing this history, I will say certainly not with the expectation of any pecuniary return for my labor, but simply as the recreation of my leisure hours. I am one of Robert Ashley's descendants, and would be glad to place the family records in a permanent form. If a sufficient number of the family show their interest in the work by furnishing the particulars I need to make a creditable book, I shall publish THE ASHLEY GENEALOGY and sell it as near the cost of printing as possible, considering the pleasure derived from a correspondence with the Ashleys in all parts of the country, and the feeling that through my efforts they have gained a wider knowledge of their ancestors and kindred, a sufficient reward for the time devoted to compiling the history. In the meantime you will be at no expense in the matter, not even for postage, nor does furnishing material for the history place you under any obligation to buy a copy of the book if it is published. All I ask is that my correspondents reply without delay to my letters of inquiry and not unnecessarily retard my work.

The Genealogy, if published, will contain what can be discovered as to the English ancestry of Robert Ashley, which is still in doubt, family registers, biographical sketches, epitaphs, copies of wills, inventories, deeds, and old letters and documents relating to the family, and will be illustrated by family portraits and pictures of some of the old Ashley homesteads. I intend to make the biographical sketches a special feature of the book, and they will include as full an account as can be obtained of the services rendered by the Ashleys in the early colonial struggles and the later wars of the Republic, and their connection with the civil, educational and religious affairs of the communities where they lived. I therefore request correspondents to give full particulars on these subjects when writing of their own and their father's lives. I have already published two family histories, both of which have been highly commended for the completeness of their family registers and the fulness of their biographical sketches. From what I know so far of the Ashleys, THE ASHLEY GENEALOGY ought to be an interesting book, as so large a number of the family have occupied conspicuous places in the history of this country.

There were at least ten Ashleys, all supposed to be of separate stocks, who settled in America before 1685, and a large number have arrived since then. I intend to limit my Genealogy to the descendants of Robert Ashley, but may decide to enlarge the scope of my researches later. I shall be glad to have your coöperation, and hope you will give your immediate attention to the accompanying letter.

THE ASHLEY GENEALOGY

BY

FRANCIS B. TROWBRIDGE

Author of The Champion Genealogy and The Hoadley Genealogy.

---

This volume is devoted to the history of the descendants of ROBERT ASHLEY, who settled in Springfield, Massachusetts, in 1638. The compiler has been particular to verify all early statements by a personal search in town, church, and probate records, among monumental inscriptions, and by consulting family, town, county, and state histories and kindred works. The information derived from these sources has been supplemented by interviews and correspondence with hundreds of the family all over the country, thus rescuing from oblivion much interesting family history and tradition. The material so laboriously collected has been arranged in an intelligible manner, and printed in a handsome octavo volume of nearly 500 pages, with clear type and on fine white paper, thoroughly indexed, embellished by twenty-two portraits and views, and an engraving of the Ashley coat of arms, and substantially and neatly bound in dark red cloth. After completeness in the family registers, it has been the special aim of the author to give extended biographical sketches of all heads of families and many others, in which he has been very successful. A novel feature of this book is the record of the Ashleys' services in the colonial and later wars of the Republic, full authorities for all such services being printed in foot-notes. This feature will add to the value of the book to members of the family who desire to join the various patriotic societies, and render it interesting to many who are unconnected with it. Male lines have been traced to the present generation. Female lines have not been traced beyond the date of marriage and place of residence, but additional facts may be recorded on the pages prepared for the purpose at the end of the volume. These pages are also designed for recording future births marriages and deaths. The author will be happy to explain any points as to the numbering in the Genealogy, etc., which may not be understood.

The Genealogy is embellished by the following portraits and views: Ashley Homestead, Sunderland, Mass.; Ashley Monument, Ashley Falls, Mass.; Col. John Ashley's House, Ashley Falls, Mass.; Dr. Israel Ashley of Westfield, Mass.; Gen. John Ashley's House, Ashley Falls, Mass.; Capt. Stephen Ashley's Tavern, Troy, N. Y.; Ashley Homestead, Elm Street, Westfield, Mass.; Dr. Robert W. Ashley of Lyons, N. Y.; Rollin T. Ashley of Brooklyn, Pa.; "The Pines," Brooklyn, Pa.; Ralph Ashley of Brushy Prairie, Ind.; Ashley Homestead, Fort Ann, N. Y.; Ashley Homestead, West Springfield, Mass.; Jonathan Ashley of Deerfield, Mass.; Samuel Ashley of Dubuque, Iowa; Rev. William Bliss Ashley of Milwaukee, Wis.; William J. Ashley of Rochester, N. Y.; Dr. Maurice C. Ashley of Middletown, N. Y.; Samuel Ashley of Providence, R. I.; Dr. Elijah Ashley of Windsor Locks, Conn.; Rev. Samuel S. Ashley of Northboro', Mass.; Church on Meeting-House Hill, West Springfield, Mass.; David Ashley House, West Springfield, Mass.; Col. Lewis W. Ashley of San Antonio, Texas; Frank Ashley of Hellemans, Texas.

The preparation of this Genealogy has occupied over two years, but the author does not expect remuneration for the time he has spent on the work (in fact the subscriptions are at present several hundred dollars behind the cost of publication), and has placed the price as near the cost of printing as possible.

Price (including postage or express): $5.25.

sell it at the actual cost it will be to me in money, considering the time I have devoted to it to have been spent in a very pleasant manner. The cost of the book will be nearly $1500, which includes stationery and postage, traveling expenses, fees to public officials for searching records, photographs of homesteads taken at my expense, pictures in the book paid for by me, and printing and binding the book. I think my manuscript will make about 400 large octavo pages of print, and I will say that the paper, size of type, and general appearance of the book will be all that could be desired. The book will be embellished with a large number of portraits of prominent members of the family and views of old homesteads, copies of gravestones, abstracts of wills, newspaper obituaries, etc. There will also be an engraving of the Ashley coat of arms.

I have fixed the price of the book at $5, if bound in cloth, and $6.50, if bound in half morocco. I hope to be able to deliver the book, postage or express prepaid, at those prices, but may have to charge 25 cts. extra for carriage. You see, therefore, as the book will cost me $1500, I must sell 300 copies to "come out even" on the venture. I hope to do so.

I do not need subscribers to enable me to publish my book, but, if you wish, you can subscribe for one or more copies in advance, using the enclosed postal card for that purpose, and stating the kind and color of binding you prefer—dark red or brown being the most serviceable color. Subscribers' names will be printed in a list in the "introduction" to the book. I hope next June to send you a circular announcing that the ASHLEY GENEALOGY is ready for delivery.

Do not send me any money in advance.

Please show this to your relatives.

Yours truly,

ASHLEY GENEALOGY.

It will take several weeks for the printers to set up the thousand sheets of foolscap which constitute the manuscript of the Ashley Genealogy. You may, therefore, continue to report any births, marriages and deaths, or changes of residence, in your family. You will understand that the enormous correspondence I have carried on has necessitated the informal letters I have written you. You know how particular I have been to gather every kind of information about your immediate branch of the family, and I have been just as particular in my enquiries of all my thousand odd correspondents.

I think the Ashley Genealogy will be a most satisfactory one to the family, as the family registers are very complete, and the biographical sketches are full of interesting facts. The book will prove invaluable to those of the family who desire to become members of the various patriotic societies, as I give in "foot notes" my authorities for all statements as to the services of the Ashleys in the early colonial struggles and the later wars of the republic.

Families bearing the name of Ashley are brought down to date, but the "female lines" are not carried beyond the date of marriage and place of residence. That is, the children of Ashley women do not appear in the book. To have carried out the descendants in the "female lines" would have made so large a book that it would have had to have been published in two volumes, and could not have been sold at a price within the means of most of the family. But additional facts about the "female lines" may be fully recorded on pages which will be prepared for that purpose at the end of the book. These pages are also designed for the recording of future births, marriages and deaths in either "male" or "female lines."

As my book could not have been brought to its present completeness without the coöperation of the family, I shall
